PREFACE

TO THE SECOND EDITION

It is a gratification to know that this Manual, first published in 1882, did not fail in its aim of being a contribution, however humble, to that enlightened study of archaeology which has so vastly enriched our acquaintance with the history and literature of Greece and Rome. But the request of the Delegates of the Clarendon Press, that I should prepare a revised edition, was not without its embarrassments.

In the first place, the accession of new material, owing to discoveries at Athens, Delos, Delphi, and elsewhere, has been so large, that the volume must have grown beyond due limits had one attempted to cover the whole period embraced in the first edition. It seemed best to omit Parts vi–ix altogether, and close the collection with the death of Alexander. This sacrifice to the demands of space, although justified by an indifference to post-Alexandrine studies too common amongst British scholars, has been a painful one: for it was with Alexander that Greece entered upon her work of hellenizing the world, and Greek history might more truly be said to begin than to end at his death.

In the next place, my own hands had become so full of fresh duties, that I could not venture on the task of revision alone. I was fortunate in finding a collaborateur in Mr. G. F. Hill, whose work at the British Museum had proved him a competent archaeologist, and whose Sources of Greek History, B. C. 478–431, won him the thanks of all Greek historical students.

We have omitted a few inscriptions which were included in the first edition, to make room for others either more important or better preserved, viz. Nos. 13, 34, 43, 60, 107, 115, 122, 130 (the date of the last is now usually put later). We have also added a list of Athenian Archons from B. C. 500–321, with the authorities for their names. Some changes in the transliteration of inscriptions are explained in the Notanda.

In the selection of new material we have derived considerable help from the new edition of Dittenberger's Sylloge, and from Michel's Recueil, two books of the finest scholarship and indispensable to all students of ancient Greece.

We cannot sufficiently express our thanks to Dr. Adolf Wilhelm, who most generously undertook to read the proofs, and by whose advice we have benefited throughout Parts i–iv. The result is partly seen in the improved readings, which are acknowledged as they occur; but in addition he has furnished a great number of references to the literature of the subject, which might otherwise have escaped our notice.

We have further been kindly allowed to see the proof-sheets of the earlier part of vol. ii of Mr. Roberts's Greek Epigraphy, which is shortly to be issued by him in collaboration with Prof. E. A. Gardner; so that we have been able to give references to a certain number of the documents included in that volume. Our thanks are also due to Mr. R. C. Bosanquet, for kindly examining some of the stones at Athens.

Other obligations, it is hoped, are acknowledged in the text; nor should we omit to thank the Clarendon Press reader for an accuracy which has saved us much labour.

INTRODUCTION

TO THE FIRST EDITION

THE history of the Hellenic people, from the days of their struggle with Persia, down to their submission to the Western Conquerors, is a story which can never tire, if only for its wealth of striking and pathetic incidents. But it is the intellectual greatness of the Greeks, and their important influence upon the world, which invests with a peculiar interest everything connected with them. In poetry, in philosophy, in art, they have shaped the thoughts of all succeeding time. And the history of the Greeks, thus unique in its interest, lies open to us in a literature equally original. So rich is their historical literature, that the very brilliance of Herodotos, Thukydides, and Xenophon almost blinds us to the sterling common sense of a Polybios, or the painstaking labours of a Diodoros. Nor do we always remember how much valuable history we owe to the accurate notes of travellers like Strabo and Pausanias. Even the very gossip of Greek political circles survives for us in the jests of Aristophanes, or the anecdotes of Plutarch and Athenaeos.

The literary documents bearing upon Greek history form a very wide field, upon which the labours of many generations of scholars have been spent, with the result of recalling for the modern reader the very colour and movement of ancient Greek life in the pages of Thirlwall, Grote, Curtius, and other great writers. But while the literary data have thus been subjected to the most careful sifting, and have been assuming a more complete and final form, another and supplementary class of documents has been acquiring new prominence. The liberation of Greece, and the increasing facilities for travel in the Levant, began early in this century to bring to light a larger number of archaeological monuments connected with classical Greece than had ever been known before; and it suited the scientific temper of the time to turn to these with an instinctive energy for their careful investigation.

To a certain degree any and every object recovered from the ruins of antiquity will help in the illustration of ancient life. But the study of archaeology rises almost to an equality with the study of ancient literature, when we find in a work of art the interpretation of the spirit of a period, or when the excavation of an ancient site unlocks the secret of its history. It is true that the very richness of Greek literary records has deprived the evidence of Greek archaeology of some of its importance. Nevertheless the evidence of Greek coinage has never failed to engage the attention of historians; and any scholar may see at a glance how intimately Greek politics are illustrated by Greek coinage, by turning over the numismatic manuals lately issued by the British Museum [1].

With good reason I have reminded the reader of the historical importance of Greek coinage; for in approaching the study of inscriptions, it will be instructive to compare our work with the work of the numismatist. Now the coin and the inscription have this in common, that both of them are works of art, and both of them also bear a written record. But although the coin usually contains a stamped legend, yet it obviously belongs more to archaeology than to literature. When however we turn to inscriptions, the literary interest is the primary consideration, the archaeological interest stands second. The inscription combines, it is true, some of the interest of a piece of sculpture, together with that of a manuscript. The archaeologist is concerned to note the metal, or the kind of marble employed; the ornamentation, if any, as an index of the age and the style of art-cultivation; the size, shape, and manner of the lettering, as invaluable marks of the date and locality. But as a literary document the inscription has all the interest of an archetype manuscript: it is an authentic record of the time to which it refers. Whatever amount of information the inscription may convey, be it little or much, its evidence will at least be welcomed with eager curiosity. It is impossible to linger, for example, over those awkward-looking numeral letters in the financial inscriptions of the Periklean time, without a peculiar sense of satisfaction. We are here face to face with state documents which Perikles may have issued, and Thukydides may have read.

Such reflections, however, it may be said, belong merely to the sentiment of the dilettante. What is the real value of Greek inscriptions to the serious student of Greek history? And here I might perhaps regret that my Manual appears at a moment when the greatest of Greek historians has been lately strengthened in his just hold upon English scholars by a translation which will become classical. For Professor Jowett is so engrossed by the genius of his author and by the paramount value of Greek literary records, that he can find little to glean from the duller study of inscriptions. Some may find a pleasure (he says) 'on Greek soil, under the light of the blue heaven, amid the scenes of ancient glory, in reading inscriptions, or putting together fragments of stone or marble.' But 'they add to our knowledge' only 'a few facts.' We must return to the study of the literature of Hellas, 'finding some little pleasure by the way (like that of looking at an autograph) in deciphering the handwriting of her children amid the dust of her ruins[1].' We may trace in this estimate a lingering echo of that controversy which long continued between the last and greatest representative of the old school of purely literary scholarship, and Augustus Böckh, the founder of the newer school. It seemed impossible for Godfrey Hermann to understand those new methods of study, wherein (so far from Greek literature being dethroned) archaeology and literature combine to call to life again the features of classical civilization. But since the time of Böckh, whose patient learning was only equalled by his brilliant generalizations, it has become not so much a maxim as an instinct with scholars to regard archaeology as the handmaid of literature, and to study the life of ancient Hellas as a whole, illustrating it by every light that can be thrown upon it, whether from the genius of her authors, or the witness of her inscriptions, or the progress and decay of her art, or the physical features of the country, or the excavation of ancient sites.

The most devoted students of inscriptions will be the first to urge that too much must not be expected from them. If we leave out of sight the more private inscriptions, and confine ourselves to those which illustrate history, and have a place in this collection, we find that they nearly all consist of decrees of public assemblies, laws, treaties, letters of kings and others, votive offerings, or statements of public accounts, and these all share the usual reserve and formality of official documents. The information they yield is indirect. It is like examining mediaeval charters, or financial state-papers, or the letters and other documents of the Record Office, for the illustration of English history. You must know how to interrogate the documents rightly, in order to get at the information they contain.

We shall express precisely the strength and the weakness of inscriptions as bearing upon history, when we say that they give us almost always just the information we least expected. They supplement, even more than they confirm or illustrate, the writings of ancient historians. For the inscriptions at present discovered are but a few fragments from the wreck of the ancient world. They were originally deposited chiefly in temples or other public buildings, where they might be at once safe and accessible, and these buildings have been long ago destroyed by earthquake or invasion, and their ruins have often for centuries served as convenient quarries for the successive inhabitants of ancient sites. We need not therefore wonder that though some 4000 Attic tombstones have been read, yet we have hardly ever come upon the epitaph of any historical character. Among the numberless public documents found upon the Akropolis, only now and then do we light upon the names of men known to fame, like Nikias, Alkibiades, Demades. Only occasionally do we meet with documents (such as Nos. 39–60), which a reader of Thukydides would have expected to find. Considering the large extent of colonization in Greece, it is singular that No. 29 is the only known decree upon the subject, and this deals with an almost unheard-of settlement. But it is this unexpectedness which constitutes the chief interest of inscriptions; they afford information which we cannot get elsewhere.

A more serious defect arises from the fact that so few localities in Greece have been at all made to yield up the inscribed monuments which lie buried beneath. On some few sites indeed, chiefly the sites of ancient temples, systematic explorations have been made, as at Delphi, Priene, Olympia, Ephesos, Delos, Dodona. To these may be added the excavations of Mr. Newton at Knidos, Halikarnassos, and Branchidae, those of the Athenian government on the Akropolis or the Great Theatre, and the German excavations at Pergamon. Upon these and other sites inscriptions have been diligently searched for and found. But for the rest, we have to trust to the chance discoveries made in the course of modern building on ancient sites. Thus by far the largest yield has been from those localities which are still in modern times the sites of flourishing towns. Here in the continual course of the demolition of old buildings and the erection of new, large numbers of documents have come to light. Let any one glance at a collection like Böckh's Corpus Inscriptionum Graecarum, and see how large a proportion comes from places like Athens, Thessalonika, Smyrna, and Rome, and he will understand how partial and accidental is our present acquaintance with the inscribed monuments of ancient Greece. But small as it is in comparison with the ancient total, it is sufficiently large to occupy the energies of many students, and to afford valuable results.

It is a serious drawback that the marbles which survive to us are often miserably chipped and broken. The result is that their value often becomes apparent only after a wide and careful study of similar documents [1]. To those whose business it is to edit these inscribed texts, no fragment is without value. A tiny bit of marble in an English collection may just complete some broken slab recently discovered in Greece, so that you cannot pronounce a priori any fragment to be unimportant. Those who open a volume of inscriptions for the first time think very differently. They are naturally disappointed at the incompleteness of most documents, and they find a stumbling-block in what appear to be the capricious restorations of the editor. Why should such license of conjecture be allowed in an inscription, when no sound critic would deal so with a manuscript? The answer is twofold. In the first place, the language of inscriptions (especially honorary decrees, treaties, and other kinds) is often formal and stereotyped; the same phrases recur, with very slight variation, from one end of Greece to the other. This sameness and formality of phrasing makes the restoration of many

[1] The following anecdote, which I borrow from the Register of the British Museum, will illustrate my meaning. It relates to a fragment of an Athenian Quota-list of the fifth century B.C., presented to the British Museum in 1863. The fragment is stated to have been originally obtained from the Parthenon by an English traveller, who, afterwards being present at a scavo at Pompeii, made use of this opportunity to test the acumen of the Director of the excavations by surreptitiously introducing into the soil then under examination this fragment from Athens. This having been done, a lady whom the traveller brought with him as an accomplice pretended to discover the fragment accidentally, while the excavation was going on, and handed it to Cavalier Fiorelli. He immediately detected the trick, and declared that the fragment must be of Athenian origin, and from the Parthenon itself. The gentleman confessed his trick, and the fragment was presented to the British Museum in 1863. I am informed by Dr. Adolf Wilhelm that the piece must have been broken away from fragment 31 of the great stelé containing the first fifteen quota-lists (C. I. A. I. 231–240).

inscriptions an easy matter. And secondly, where the general sense of a fragment is tolerably clear, it is allowable to supply by way of suggestion a few words that may help the reader to follow the probable sequence of syntax and meaning. In such cases the editor is bound to point out that no certainty attaches to the verbal restorations suggested: they are only to serve as a convenient commentary.

The growing amount of materials has called into existence a school of students, with Augustus Böckh as their founder, whose task it is to collate, edit, and arrange the ancient texts; and further, to gather from the edited texts the historical and other results of their studies. Böckh's Political Economy of Athens, well known in England through its translation by Sir G. C. Lewis, was an early and a signal example of this kind of study. A similar value belongs to Köhler's Urkunden und Untersuchungen zur Geschichte des delisch-attischen Bundes, Dumont's L'Éphébie Attique, Foucart's Des associations religieuses chez les Grecs, Lüders' Die dionysischen Künstler, and many others, some of which are enumerated at the end of this Introduction. Neither could such manuals as the Griechische Alterthümer of K. F. Hermann, or of G. F. Schömann, have been written, but for that study of inscriptions to which Schömann especially was devoted.

It is from works like these that we can best appreciate the benefits conferred upon Greek studies by the discovery of inscriptions. But the reader of such a book as Curtius' History of Greece will not unfrequently have been reminded of the epigraphical pièces justificatives available for the illustration of Greek history. And Mr. Capes, in his lectures on University Life in ancient Athens, has shown that the curious information afforded by inscriptions is sometimes entertaining; although anything more dreary than the original documents upon which Dumont and Dittenberger had based their descriptions, I cannot conceive.

In the present volume it seemed best, with the consent of the Delegates of the Press, to confine myself to documents directly illustrating history only. Of course a very large number of Greek inscriptions relate to religious ceremonies, agonistic contests, and concerns of private life; or have to do with legal and constitutional antiquities rather than with historical events. If it is thought desirable, another volume embracing these classes of documents could easily be prepared, which would probably exceed the present volume in interest, inasmuch as the subjects it would illustrate are less familiar to the readers of Greek literature.

This volume therefore contains only Historical inscriptions. And in presenting these to the reader, I have denied myself the pleasure of enlarging upon the archaeology of the subject. Thus I have been content to print the texts (with three exceptions[1]) in cursive only, without trying to represent the originals in facsimile, or in various alphabets of uncial type. For the original appearance of the marble concerns rather the professed epigraphist than the historical student, to whom the inscription is merely one more historical document. At the same time, no pains have been spared to secure the accuracy of the texts. Whenever the original was out of my reach, the copies only of the most recent and most careful editors have been followed. Sometimes I have had access to unpublished copies or impressions, through the kindness of friends. Nearly all of my texts have been edited before; nevertheless, whenever possible, I have verified the published texts by a reference to the marbles. The result is, that whenever my texts differ from the copies already published, it is because I have to offer a better and completer text. Whenever the size of the page allowed it, the lines of text are printed just as they stand on the marble, so as the better to show at a glance what portions of the stone are mutilated. When the text is printed consecutively, as in ordinary Greek prose, the original division of the lines is marked by vertical strokes (e. g. τοῦ|το).

In the notes and explanations nothing has been admitted which did not strictly belong to the matter in hand. Words, however curious, which have found a place in Liddell and Scott's Lexicon, are passed over without remark. And legal and constitutional terms are not dwelt upon, when any reader can refer for explanation to Smith's Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities, or Pauly's Real-encyclopädie, or the admirable works of Schömann, Antiquitates Juris publici Graecorum and Griechische Alterthümer. Nothing, again, is more valuable to the student of Greek Dialects than the evidence of inscriptions—a subject which has been already dealt with in H. L. Ahrens' De dialectis, in Cauer's Delectus, and other works. Now, although many of my texts suggest points of dialectical and grammatical interest, these points will receive very little comment, since this selection was made with a very different purpose, and it was desirable to avoid wordiness.

There is an impression of unfamiliarity and strangeness about the style and expression of inscriptions, and there are many scholars to whom they are an unknown and uninviting region. I am, however, sufficiently sanguine to hope that this Manual may be the means of bringing some students face to face with the original marbles. Any one who has worked much at these will readily echo the confession of Böckh: 'However dry may seem the task of tracing the worn or broken characters upon the cold surface of the stone, yet the existing books on this subject sufficiently prove what a genuine enthusiasm many have felt for these time-honoured monuments of ancient civilization,—and I frankly own myself of their number[1].' With this hope, I have been glad, whenever it was possible, to include in this selection any monuments which are close at hand, either in the Ashmolean and the Marble Room at Oxford, or in the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge, or are almost equally accessible to the English student in the Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities at the British Museum. The Oxford reader e. g. is invited to work out carefully the printed texts, the originals of which are in the University Collection. If he will then, book in hand, consult the marbles word by word, he will in a few hours have learned more about Greek inscriptions than any written account could have taught him. If he wishes to proceed further into the subject, the best introduction is Franz's Elementa Epigraphices Graecae[1].

An editor of inscriptions who desires to conciliate his reader's goodwill, must chiefly rely upon orderly arrangement of his materials—lucidus ordo. The arrangement of this volume is strictly chronological; and a date, more or less precise, is assigned to each document. The date of inscriptions has, in most cases, to be determined by internal and circumstantial evidence, the style of the characters being a principal indication. Neither is it always easy to connect an inscribed decree or treaty with known historical events. Though I do not share the scepticism of Professor Jowett, I hope I have used due caution, and have endeavoured in every case to draw a distinct line between what is fairly certain and what is as yet unverified hypothesis. The reader is throughout referred in the notes to sources where he will find the date and other details concerning the inscriptions fully reasoned out.

The divisions of the work follow the obvious periods into which Greek history seems to fall. It will be seen that the documents from Athens alone outnumber those from all the rest of Greece. This is partly owing to the greater historical importance of Attic inscriptions, requiring a larger proportion to be therefore included in an historical collection. But it is also true that no Greek government was so careful in inscribing[2] its public records as the Athenian; and moreover at Athens far more has been done than elsewhere in the way of excavation and the discovery of ancient monuments. It will be also noticed how at Athens (as elsewhere) the inscribed records became more numerous, and also more intolerably wordy, the later we proceed in the history. I have therefore spared the reader's patience by admitting very few of these later verbose decrees. Specimens, however, are given of various kinds, and examples have been selected as far as could be from every part of Greece. It is perhaps tedious and disappointing to examine the many hundreds of commonplace honorary decrees which are being turned up in every ancient site in Greece proper, in the islands, and in the Thrakian and Asiatic colonies. And yet even these have a value. It is a fact of immense interest to the historical student to recognize the general resemblance of the formulas in which are cast the records of all the Greek-speaking race, from the time of Perikles onward. We are accustomed to dwell upon the isolation which prevailed among the Greek cities. We note how seas and mountains and diversities of race kept the Greeks asunder. The strange fact is that they should have been so sundered. For in truth the most rigid separation existed side by side with the closest resemblance and general unity. Their most divergent dialects were yet mutually intelligible. Their games, their religious centres, were bonds of unity. And though throughout the whole of that wide area every little town was a separate centre of corporate life, though the titles of their magistrates, and the names of their political and social institutions might differ, yet the type of civil government everywhere developed was the same with insignificant variations; or, if you looked more closely, you found but two types, the democratic and the oligarchic, and these admitted of very slight modifications.

[1] I may be allowed also to refer to an article on Inscriptions (Greek) in the new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

[2] Ἀναγράψαι εἰς στήλην λιθίνην.

It would have been possible to prolong the selection down to the times of Byzantine history. But it is evident that the political history of Greece as such comes to an end with the Roman Conquest. Accordingly, only a few documents have been included after the 'Liberation' decreed by Flamininus, B.C. 196. As we proceed later, although the Greek people still retained their own peculiar character, and their national existence was unaffected by conquest, yet their historical documents became less and less important; the centre of things has shifted to Rome. What the interests of the Greeks were under the Empire, can be read in the Orations (far from uninteresting) of Aristides or Dion Chrysostom. We need by no means endorse the slighting estimate of the Greeks given by Tacitus and Juvenal. It was impossible for the Romans to do justice to the Greeks; they inevitably came into contact with them at their worst. Although their historical inscriptions are of little interest after the Roman Conquest, yet some of the most valuable inscriptions relating to the religious customs and other more private institutions of Hellas belong to these later days. The Greek religion, and all that gathered round it, still survived: and the very absence of great political interests will alone account, not only for the exuberance of later Greek rhetoric, but also for that excessive and universal growth of agonistic contests and religious festivals which marked the days of Greek subjection.

I have kept closer to Grote than to Curtius in the preparation of the volume. It did not suit the design of the great German historian to discuss fully at every step the grounds of his conclusions, and give the evidence on which they rest. Although in his later volumes his references to documents become more frequent, yet it is clear that Curtius feels himself to be writing πρὸς εἰδότας,—he is giving a brilliant representation of Greek national life, as the outcome of varied researches in which he himself has borne a distinguished part, and in which Böckh, Schömann, Kirchhoff, and Köhler may be taken as representative names. For most English students Grote's History is of paramount value. True that only in his later volumes does Grote awake to the importance of epigraphical evidence, and then he only cites it cautiously and at second hand. But from first to last the reader is brought face to face with the existing literary evidence. Herodotos, Thukydides, Xenophon, Demosthenes, acquire life and voice, and are made to tell us their own tale of what they themselves had seen and heard. Not only in its human and political interest does Grote's work possess a fascination for the reader, but it is a valuable intellectual discipline to be shown at every step the processes of historical enquiry, and to be made by the great historian not only a listener to his story, but a sharer in his investigations. There is therefore this practical reason for citing Grote so often in this volume, that the reader will there find all the references to ancient historians which bear upon the events under discussion. Worthy to compare with Grote for his patient sifting of ancient texts, comparable to Curtius in his archaeological learning, is Droysen, who, in the last edition of his Hellenismus, has given a picture of Alexander's career, and of the terrible convulsions which followed his death. Certainly he has infused a new life and interest into a period which is of deep importance to the world's history, although most of us are repelled from it by the ghastly monotony of bloodshed and despotism, or are only attracted by a biographical rather than a historical interest.

Besides a continual reference to these principal modern historians, the reader will be in every instance informed where to find the various documents best edited and discussed. Since the publication of Böckh's Corpus Inscriptionum Graecarum, great numbers of inscriptions have been discovered; and an attempt has been made to edit a complete collection of those from Attika in Kirchhoff's Corpus Inscriptionum Atticarum, three volumes of which have appeared. But for the inscriptions from other parts of Greece, and for many of the Attic ones also, you have to search up and down the volumes of the Archäologische Ze tung, the Monatsberichte of the Berlin Academy, and the various German, French, and Greek periodicals; not to mention the numerous dissertations which issue from the foreign Universities. I have endeavoured to glean from all of these the most interesting results of epigraphical studies; but much may have been overlooked. The task did not allow much room for originality; but the views of others have not been adopted without weighing them, and where possible some improvement has been added.

The wants of English readers have been steadily kept in view,—readers such as are to be found in growing numbers especially among the students of our Universities, who are well acquainted with Greek literature, and with the best modern writers upon classical civilization, who have perhaps visited Greece and the Levant, and have conceived a lively interest in classical archaeology. To such readers this volume is commended, as a humble attempt to further Hellenic studies. Perhaps some may wish the collection were more complete and comprehensive. At first I had thought of collecting into one chapter all the inscribed letters of kings, into another all inscribed laws, into another all known treaties, &c. But if that had been done, this volume would have assumed a very different shape, and would have included a great deal that is of little value. And, in fact, such an exhaustive collection of various kinds of documents did not fall within the scope of the book. Neither have I included the famous Parian Chronicle (C. I. G. 2374). For valuable as it is to the chronologer, we must not forget that it is merely a private document drawn up about the third century B.C., probably by some schoolmaster for the instruction of his pupils. It was with more regret that I forebore to include the whole series of Quota-lists from B.C. 454 to 420. But the fact is that however important these documents are (being no less than authentic lists of the Athenian Confederation), yet it is certain that all who wish to study them to advantage must go straight to Köhler's Urkunden (or to Böckh's Staatshaushaltung, vol. ii), where not only the texts are exhibited at large, but all sorts of questions arising out of the texts are fully discussed. It would have done the reader little service to present him with the complete series of texts, without reproducing also a great part of Böckh's and Köhler's remarks. It seemed wiser therefore to insert four or five especially interesting specimens of the series, with suitable notes; and to refer the reader to previous writers for further information. For similar reasons I have not made any selections from the Athenian admiralty records, which occupy the third volume of Böckh's Staatshaushaltung.

I have received help from so many friends in the course of the work, that I must be content to make this general but not less sincere acknowledgment of their kindness. For the book, as it stands, I am alone responsible. I have endeavoured to be accurate; and those who have worked at such subjects the most will be the kindliest critics of a task wherein the countless points of detail afford as many opportunities of error.

NOTANDA

The Printing of the Inscriptions.

[ ] Square brackets enclose letters which are supposed to have stood formerly on the original and are supplied by conjecture: e.g. ΕΔΟΧΣΕΝΤΕ ΟΙΕΙ ἔδοχσεν τῆ[ι β]ουλῆι.

( ) Curved brackets enclose:

1. Letters supposed to have been wrongly omitted by the stone-cutter: e.g. ΜΕΓΑΚΕΟΥΣ Μεγακ(λ)έους.

2. Letters supposed to have been misrepresented by the stone-cutter: e.g. ΟΤΔΟΗΙ ὀ(γ)δόηι.

3. Letters completing an abbreviation: e.g. ΔΡΑΗΗΗ𐅵 δρα(χμέων) ΗΗΗ𐅵.

⟨ ⟩ Angular brackets enclose letters supposed to have been superfluously written by the stone-cutter: e.g. ΚΑΙΕΓΕΝΟΣ καὶ ⟨ε⟩ γένος. Note that the epigraphic usage in this point differs from that of textual criticism.

| Marks the beginning of a new line on the stone.

|| Every fifth new line. In most cases in the present volume the divisions of the original are followed in the text, so that the use of these signs is unnecessary.

. . . . Dots represent each a single letter for which there is space on the originals, but of which no restoration is attempted. The distinction between a single dot of this kind and a full-stop must be left to the sense.

- - - Dashes represent a lacuna of which the extent is uncertain.

Alphabets.

A cursive text fails to give any idea of the appearance of the original. Apart from the slightly varying forms of letters such as Α, Λ, Ϛ, Σ, which may furnish valuable indications of date, there are, to take only the alphabet of Attic inscriptions, certain important distinctions of spelling which must be briefly noted here. In B. C. 403 (the archonship of Eukleides) Athens first officially adopted the Ionic (Milesian) alphabet, although even in official documents we occasionally find it used, either in some of its forms, or systematically, as early as the middle of the fifth century. Up till the archonship of Eukleides, however, the regular Attic alphabet preserves the following as its most important peculiarities:

Λ represents γ
Ε „ ε, η or ει
Η „ the rough breathing
Γ „ λ
+ϟ (Χϟ, +Σ, ΧΣ) represents ξ
Ο represents ο, ω or ου
Φϟ (ΦΣ) represents ψ.

The diphthongs ει and ου are however often written in full, especially when they do not result from contraction; thus ΤΟΥΤΟ may stand for either τούτου or τοῦτο. But there is considerable irregularity in practice, and Ο continues to represent ου for some time after the Eukleidean reform.

The method adopted in many modern epigraphic works, of using ε and ο wherever and with whatever value Ε and Ο appear on the original, has much to recommend it. We have not adopted it, out of deference to the traditions of English education, to which writings like θετὸν καὶ ζευγιτὸν for θητῶν καὶ ζευγιτῶν appear to be offensive. But χσ and φσ have invariably been used where the double letters on the original stand as indicated above. As regards the rough breathing, various courses were available:

1. To ignore its presence or absence, spelling the word in its usual literary form, and writing ἡμερῶν whether the original has ΗΕΜΕΡΟΝ or ΕΜΕΡΟΝ or ΗΕΜΕΡΩΝ;

2. To represent these three forms by ʽημερῶν, ημερῶν (or ἠμερῶν) and ἡμερῶν respectively (the position of the sign to the left of the vowel in the first showing that it represents a distinct letter in the original);

3. To adopt a new sign. Most editors in this case employ a Latin h. It has seemed more in keeping with the rest of the fount to use the form ʰ, which is recommended by the fact that it actually recalls one of the forms used for the aspirate in some Greek alphabets and by the Alexandrian grammarians. In this volume therefore, ʰ implies that Η or some such form is used on the stone for the aspirate, ʽ that it is omitted, either by the stone-cutter's mistake, or because it is foreign to the alphabet. Of the three forms given above the first will therefore appear as ʰημερῶν, the two others as ἡμερῶν.

For further peculiarities of alphabets, which must not detain us here, the student should consult A. Kirchhoff's Studien zur Geschichte des griechischen Alphabets or Roberts' Greek Epigraphy.

Spelling.

Many peculiarities of spelling will confront the beginner. Perhaps the most disturbing is the tendency to represent doubled consonants by single ones, which is characteristic of many early inscriptions: ἀλογλώσους for ἀλλογλώσσους in no. 3 (a) is a good example. Assimilations such as τὸλ λόγον and τὴμ πόλιν offer no difficulty. Forms like ἐστήλην for ἐς στήλην, ἐστήλη*ι* for ἐν στήλη*ι* are more peculiar. These have been printed ἐ' στήλην, ἐ' στήλη*ι*, since either (1) the final letter of the preposition is first, if necessary, assimilated to the initial of the next word, and the resultant σσ represented by the single σ; or (2) the final letter of the preposition is simply dropped. A similar case is found in no. 24, where τοῖς Λ seems to have become τοῖλ Λ and then τοι' Λ.

The ι which in classical texts is represented as subscript, is always, where on the original it appears in the line with the other letters, printed as adscript: ΤΕΙΒΟΛΕΙ is represented by τῆι βουλῆι, not τῇ βουλῇ. An instance of inconsistency in a single line is furnished by no. 89. Here, and in no. 158, l. 6, where the omission of the ι is exceptional, we have represented it as subscript. On the other hand, where, as in the Lesbian portions of no. 157, its omission is characteristic, it has not been represented at all.

The Greeks of the fourth century B.C. and later appear to have pronounced ΗΙ and ΕΙ so much alike that these forms are often substituted for each other:

τεῖ βουλεῖ for τῆι βουλῆι
εἰτήσατο for ἠιτήσατο
δόξει for δόξηι.

See p. 189. For further details on this and similar matters reference should be made to Meisterhans' Grammatik der attischen Inschriften.

Cutting and Disposition of Inscriptions.

The documents with which we have to deal are usually cut with a chisel; in a few cases they are merely scratched with a sharp point. For inscriptions on bronze a graver could be used, or the letters could be pricked out; again, the letters of no. 115 are in repoussé work. In the more carefully cut inscriptions the lapidary was guided by a sketch on the stone, or by straight lines lightly ruled with a point. After cutting, the letters were frequently coloured red, or red and blue, in order to make them more easily legible.

The earliest Greek inscriptions read from right to left—a feature due to the Phoenician origin of the Greek art of writing. The next stage is that known as βουστροφηδόν, in which the lines read alternately from right to left and from left to right. The metaphor from the direction taken in ploughing is obvious. This again gave way to the style to which we are now accustomed, in which the lines read consistently from left to right. In Attika this last change came in about the middle of the sixth century B.C.

As regards the disposition of the letters, the only peculiarity to which it is necessary to call attention here is the arrangement known as στοιχηδόν, in which each letter stands immediately beneath a letter in the line above, so that, supposing all the lines to be of the same length, the number of letters in the line is constant. The earliest instance of this arrangement is found in the first six lines of the Salamis inscription (no. 4). It was especially characteristic of Attic inscriptions in the fifth and fourth centuries, but was by no means invariably employed even in Attika. Occasionally also we find a narrow letter like | forced into the space belonging to the letter preceding it; and the spacing of numerals is especially irregular. This feature, conditioning as it does the restoration of a mutilated inscription, is of great importance to the epigraphist.

Numerical and Monetary Signs.

The signs which chiefly concern us here are those used in Attic inscriptions in the calculation of sums of money. In some lists we meet with the usual numeral signs Γ(ἑντε) = 5, Δ(ἑκα) = 100, Η(ἑκατόν) = 100, Χ(ἱλιοι) = 1000 with combinations such as 𐅄 or 𐅅 (= Γ × Δ = 50). When, in expressing sums of money, these signs are used simply, they express drachmai; in order to express other denominations they must be combined with the signs appropriate to those denominations. These are, for the Attic system:

					Represented by
Talent					Τ
Mina	60				Μ
Drachme	6,000	100			Η
Obol	36,000	600	6		Ι
Hemiobelion	72,000	1,200	412	2	C or ↄ

In addition the stater of gold is represented by ϟ or Σ. Attic money is generally reckoned in talents, drachms, and obols; but we frequently find mention of Kyzikene gold staters and the like. The following table may give some idea of the way in which the signs are used.

	1	5	6	10	25	50	100	500	1000
Hemiobols	C
Obols	Ι	IIIII
Drachms	Η	Γ	ΓΗ	Δ	ΔΔΓ	𐅄	Η	𐅅	Χ
Talents	Τ	𐅅	𐅅Τ	𐅄	𐅄𐅄𐅅	𐅄	Η	𐅅	Χ
Staters	Σ	𐅅	𐅅Σ	Δ or Δ	Δ Δ 𐅅	𐅄	Η	𐅅	Χ

Value of Money.

In spite of the misleading nature of all attempts to express the value of ancient coins in modern, it is as well to remember that, the standard weight of the English shilling being 87·27 grs. troy, and that of the Attic drachm 67·28 grs. troy, the latter coin compares with our shilling as about 9¼*d.*, or, roughly, a franc. On the same principle, an Attic silver talent would correspond to something over £230. The Attic gold stater weighed normally 134·57 grs. troy (our sovereign weighs 123·27 grs. troy). The Kyzikene stater of electrum (a mixture of gold and silver in somewhat fluctuating proportions) weighed normally about 252 grs. troy; its value in terms of silver is uncertain.

The Athenian Civil Year.

The Athenian civil year began on 1st Hekatombaion (July), and most of the officials took office on this date. But the treasurers of Athena and the 'Other Gods,' the Hellenotamiai, and some others, entered on office at the Panathenaia (28th Hekatombaion). The Athenians reckoned the Olympian year from the same date as their own civil year. Thus the year B. C. comprises the last six months of one archonship and year of the Olympiad, and the first six months of the next. (See the list of archons, pp. 314 foll.)

Council and Assembly.

The Attic year, so far as the βουλή was concerned, was divided into ten periods (πρυτανεῖαι) of 35 or 36 days each. Each tribe 'prytanized' in turn (ἐπρυτάνευε) in an order determined by lot, in the person of its 50 βουλευταί. These 50 πρυτάνεις during their term lived in the πρυτανεῖον and acted as the 'Government' or Cabinet for the time being. The addition of two tribes in B. C. 307 made the cycle of prytanies coincide with the twelve months. The president (ἐπιστάτης τῶν πρυτάνεων) was appointed by lot for one day and night. In the fifth century he presided in the Ekklesia as well as in the Council. But soon after the archonship of Eukleides it became the rule for the ἐπιστάτης of the πρυτάνεις to appoint by lot a πρόεδρος out of each of the tribal sections of the βουλή excepting the φυλὴ πρυτανεύουσα. Among these nine πρόεδροι one was further appointed ἐπιστάτης, and thus to the πρόεδροι and their foreman were transferred the duties of presiding in the sittings of the βουλή and ἐκκλησία. The πρυτάνεις and their ἐπιστάτης retained only their more formal duties, such as the custody of the public seal, and the performance of the periodical sacrifices of the βουλή. At the meetings of the Ekklesia, all business was introduced by the Council, who drew up a προβούλευμα which was laid before the Assembly by one of their members. This προβούλευμα either contained a definite proposal, or asked the Ekklesia to decide independently. The chief secretary to the Council, until some time between B. C. 368–7 and 363–2, only held office for one Prytany; afterwards he was appointed for a whole year. For further details as to these subjects see especially Gilbert, Greek Const. Ant. (Eng. trans.), pp. 268 ff., 291 ff.

PART I

BEFORE THE PERSIAN WAR

B.C. 700–490.

THE date of the introduction of writing among the Greeks has been a matter of keen controversy, especially from the time of Wolff. Thanks chiefly to the discoveries of Mr. A. J. Evans, we know that long before the introduction of what was to become the Greek alphabet, the inhabitants of the Islands were in possession of a system of writing. This however does not seem to have had any influence on the future development of the art among the Greeks, who, so far as the historic period is concerned, must still be regarded as the debtors of the Phoenicians. It is now generally admitted that the Greeks had learned the art of writing from this great commercial people not later than the ninth century, and probably as much as three centuries earlier (see Larfeld, Griech. Epigraphik, in Iwan Müller's Handbuch, Vol. I, pp. 496 foll.). For a long time however it would only be employed for such limited and private uses as the writing of names on lots (κλῆροι). Probably its more extended use began in the temples, where inscribed offerings (ἀναθήματα) and registers of priests and of sacrifices existed at an early date. The first public use of writing was perhaps in making official record of agreements between allied cities; and then by degrees it came to be generally employed for public documents. It is likely that the Greeks did not begin to inscribe upon marble until they had experimented with the use of writing on leaves, clay, metal, wood, and other substances. Certainly the cramped and awkward characters of the earliest extant inscriptions prove that writing must have been an unfamiliar art in Greece as late as the seventh century.

The earliest recorded example of an inscribed offering is the Quoit of Iphitos, thus described by Pausanias (v. 20. 1; cp. 4. 4; Plut. Lycurg. 1): ἔστι δὲ ἐνταῦθα (in the Heraion at Olympia) καὶ ἄλλα ἀναθήματα . . . . καὶ ὁ Ἰφίτου δίσκος . . . . ὁ δὲ Ἰφίτου δίσκος τὴν ἐκεχειρίαν ἣν ἐπὶ τοῖς Ὀλυμπίοις ἐπαγγέλλουσιν Ἠλεῖοι, ταύτην οὐκ ἐς εὐθὺ ἔχει γεγραμμένην, ἀλλὰ ἐς κύκλου σχῆμα περίεισιν ἐπὶ τῷ δίσκῳ τὰ γράμματα. It contained the formula for proclaiming the sacred armistice; Iphitos, with Lykurgos, being named upon it as the founder of the Olympian Festival. There is no reason to suspect this of being a late forgery; but it is very doubtful whether it was inscribed before the first Olympiad (B. C. 776), the date at which the definite chronology of Greece is supposed to begin; and there are even grave doubts as to the authenticity of the early Olympian register (Mahaffy in Journal of Hellenic Studies, 1881, pp. 164 foll.; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. i². p. 586). The Theban inscriptions which impressed Herodotos with their antiquity (v. 58 foll.) can hardly be earlier than the seventh century (Bergk, Gr. Literaturgesch. i. p. 205). And to this century at the earliest belong the oldest extant inscriptions from Thera and Krete (Roberts, Introd. to Greek Epigr. i. pp. 31, 52).

Of the other kind of sacred inscriptions, the temple-registers, or ἀναγραφαί, no original specimen has survived. They are often mentioned by ancient writers, though it is doubtful how many were really of high antiquity (see Böckh, C. I. G. i. p. 63; A. von Gutschmid, Kleine Schriften, iv. p. 292; Müller, Dorians, Eng. Tr. i. p. 149; Comm. on Thuk. ii. 2; and Preller, de Hellanico in his Ausgew. Aufsätze, p. 51, on the register of the Argive priestesses). But a very interesting transcript exists of one such register, in an inscription from Halikarnassos (C. I. G. 2655; Michel, Recueil, 877; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 608), the opening of which is thus restored by Böckh:

[Ἔδοξε τῆι βουλῆι καὶ τῶι δήμωι (or the like), εἰπόντος τοῦ δεῖνος
τοῦ Ἀ]ριστοκλέους· μεταγράψαι [ἐκ τῆς ἀρχαίας
σ]τήλης τῆς παρεστώσης τοῖς ἀγά[λμασι τοῖς
τ]οῦ Ποσειδῶνος τοῦ (Ἱ)σθμίου τοὺς γεγ[ενημένους]
ἀπὸ τῆς κτίσεως κατὰ γένος ἱερεῖς τοῦ Πο[σειδῶ]- νος τοῦ κατιδρυθέντος ὑπὸ τῶν τὴν ἀποικί[αν ἐκ]
Τροι(ζ)ῆνος ἀγαγόντων Ποσειδῶνι καὶ Ἀπόλλω[νι.

Then follows a list of the priests, beginning with 'Telamon son of Poseidon' and other mythical names, but of course comprising also the true names and succession of historical priests. Böckh imagines this transcript to have been made not earlier than the second century B. C. But the ancient original he assumes to have been inscribed about the time of the latest recorded priest, i. e. probably 691 B. C. The data however are not to be implicitly trusted.

Epitaph on Orsippos, who won the foot-race at Olympia B. C. 720 (Ol. 15), and freed the Megarid from the encroachments of the Korinthians: composed perhaps by Simonides (B. C. 556–467 B. C.), when this tomb was erected by command of the oracle. The present inscription is not older than the time of Hadrian, but is clearly a copy of the old inscription, then wearing out. Pausanias (i. 44. 1) appears to have seen the original epitaph: Κορόιβου δὲ τέθαπται πλησίον Ὄρσιππος, ὃς περιεζωσμένων ἐν τοῖς ἀγῶσι κατὰ δή τι παλαιὸν ἔθος τῶν ἀθλητῶν ἐν Ὀλυμπίᾳ ἐνίκα στάδιον δραμὼν γυμνός. φασὶ δὲ καὶ στρατηγοῦντα ὕστερον τὸν Ὄρσιππον ἀποτεμέσθαι χώραν τῶν προσοίκων. See Frazer ad loc., and cp. Scholiast and Comm. on Thuk. i. 6; Grote, pt. 2, ch. 9.

This could hardly be the 'earliest known sea-fight' recorded by Thukydides as having taken place B.C. 664 (i. 13); it appears to have rather been a fight on shore, at the mouth of the Arachthos. But the fight was very probably between Korkyraians and Korinthians; both Herodotos (iii. 49) and Thukydides (i. 25) mention the early struggle between Korkyra and her mother-city for the supremacy by sea, and for the monopoly of trade with the inhabitants of Epeiros and Illyris; cp. Grote, pt. 2, ch. 23.

The last is βουστροφηδόν.

It has been much doubted whether the king mentioned in (a) is Psammetichos I (B. C. 654–617), or Psammetichos II (called Psammis by Herodotos, but Psamatik in Egyptian monuments), who reigned B. C. 594–589. We follow A. Wiedemann (Rh. Mus. l. c.) in adopting the later date. It appears that certain Greek and other soldiers in the service of the Egyptian king had marched with him as far south as Elephantine. Here they took boats and explored the river νῖς (=quo) ὁ π. ἀνίη, 'as far as it let them go up,' i. e. up to the second cataract. On their way back they wrote their names at Abusimbel, in memory of the exploit. Κέρκιος seems to be intended for Κέρτιος, Kerti in the Egyptian texts signifying the surface of water which broadens from the first cataract as far as Elephantine. In (a) we may take 'Psamatichos son of Theokles' to be the son of a Greek mercenary of Psammetichos I (Herod. ii. 152), who named his son after his master. The Ionian or Karian mercenaries whom Ποτασιμτώ commanded are called ἀλλόγλωσσοι in opposition to the Egyptians (cf. Herodotos ii. 154: πρῶτοι οὗτοι ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ ἀλλόγλωσσοι κατοικίσθησαν). The commandant's name is Egyptian (see Krall, Wiener Studien, 1881, p. 164). (b) Ἐλεσίβυς for Ἐλεσίβιος (Hoffmann prefers Ἡγησίβυς for Ἡγησίβουλος). (e) Πά(μ)βις for Πάμβιος. (g) Πασιρων is perhaps a mis-writing for Πασιφῶν. In (i) the long vowel of ἤλασε is expressed by η and ε combined.

A thoroughly satisfactory restoration of this important inscription will doubtless never be made; but enough remains to show that this, the oldest extant decree of the Athenian people, relates to the settlement of the affairs of Salamis at some time in the sixth century B. C. The phrase οἰκεῖν ἐᾶν and the formula παρ' Ἀθηναίοι]σι τε[λ]εῖν καὶ στρατ[εύεσθ]αι make it almost certain that we have not to do with a kleruchy, since in that case we should expect merely the command οἰκεῖν, while the formula as to taxation and military service is not applicable to Athenian citizens. Wilhelm's suggestion, adopted by Judeich, that the persons concerned are the old population of Salamis who are left in possession of at least a part of their lands, seems to be suitable to the text. (The phrase ἐᾶν οἰκεῖν applied to kleruchs would mean merely 'permission to reside'; applied to inhabitants already there it would mean more, and would be quite compatible with the compulsory residence for which the regulation is given in § 2.) The restorations given in the text are those adopted or for the first time suggested by Judeich, who however prefers κλῆρον to χῶρον in lines 3 and 4. His suggestion πολεῖν in l. 2 must be taken in the most general sense of the word, i. e. to live in a place. In the great uncertainty which attaches to these restorations, we can only say that the decree regulates (§ 2) the tenure of land in Salamis by the old inhabitants; forbidding them to let their land on pain of a fine; and (§ 3) the arrangements for military service with the Athenian army.

Such a regulation of the affairs of Salamis as we have here, whatever may be the true restoration of the details, must have been effected at the time of the Athenian acquisition of the island in the first half of the sixth century. Sparta decided in favour of the Athenian claim, probably after the seizure of Nisaia by Peisistratos about 570. See Judeich, op. cit. p. 333, note 1; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. ii². p. 217, note 2.

The restored readings are highly probable. Herodotos says (i. 92): Κροίσῳ δὲ ἔστι καὶ ἄλλα ἀναθήματα ἐν τῇ Ἑλλάδι πολλὰ . . . . ἐν δὲ Ἐφέσῳ, αἵ τε βόες αἱ χρύσεαι καὶ τῶν κιόνων αἱ πολλαί.

We may take Chares to have been one of the many 'tyrants' who flourished in the Greek cities of Asia under the Persian rule between 550 and 500 B.C. At a later date Teichiussa was a dependency of Miletos. The statue was intended as a portrait of Chares; ἄγαλμα is 'an offering in honour of' the god (see Böckh, C. I. G. vol. i. p. 7).

The pillar, on the top of which is a socket, was probably surmounted by an aëtoma, or possibly by a small relief; it is too narrow to have supported a bust. Above and below the inscription the spaces which are now blank were probably once painted. Kirchhoff's view is that Phanodikos was tyrant of Prokonnesos in the first half of the sixth century B.C. (like Metrodoros, Herodotos iv. 138, i.e. B.C. 515). Being on good terms with the government of Sigeion, then in the hands of the Athenians, he presented a bronze (?) krater and tripod-stand for it, together with a wine-strainer, for the use of the Sigeian prytaneion. He accompanied this gift with a pillar to commemorate himself, inscribed in his Ionic home by Prokonnesian workmen (inscription a), and adorned with a picture of himself. When the Sigeians erected the monument, they re-engraved the inscription in Attic lower down on the pillar, nearer the eye-line, with one or two improvements (inscription b) and a second painting below (?). The monument of Phanodikos loquitur: 'And if I am receiving injury, take care of me, Sigeians. Now Aisopos made me, and his brethren.' The reading of lines 10, 11 was probably as here given; an examination of the stone reveals no trace of the strange form Συκεεῦσιν read by Röhl. Compare a similar twofold document from Kyzikos, discovered 1874: Hermes, xv. p. 92; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 464; Michel, Recueil, 532.

ελεστὰ αἴτε δᾶμος, ἔν τ' ἐπιάρωι κ' ἐνέχοιτο τῶι 'νταῦτ' ἐγραμένωι.

Those who are curious about the dialect may consult Meister, Griech. Dialekte, ii. pp. 47 foll., and cp. Strab. 333. Double letters (λλ, μμ, δδ) are not written. For the second proper name many read Εὐϝαοίοις, but the second letter is more like ρ than υ. We append a version:

'This is the covenant between the Eleians and the Heraians. There shall be alliance for a hundred years: and this (year) shall begin (it): and if either need help, whether of word or deed, they shall stand by one another, in all other affairs, and in respect of (πάρ = περί) warfare: and if they stand not by each other, they who have so offended (Zeus) shall pay a talent of silver to Olympian Zeus, to be confiscated to him. And if any one shall injure this inscription, whether private man, or magistrate, or community, (the offender) shall be liable to the sacred fine (τῷ ἐπιάρῳ) here written.'

The Eleians, after a long struggle, dispossessed the Pisatans of the management of the Olympic temple and games (B.C. 572), which appears to have been in the hands of the former people at the time of this treaty (Grote, pt. 2, ch. 7 fin.). The Spartans, now masters of Messenia, and extending their conquests in the direction of Arkadia and Argolis, found it to their interest to play the part of protectors of the Eleians in their sacred prerogative (Grote, ibid.; E. Curtius, Hist. of Gr., Eng. tr., i. p. 237). As for Arkadia, its several states, with no power of mutual cohesion, were either drawn into the Spartan alliance (as Tegea, Mantineia, Orchomenos), or formed other connexions as fortune might dictate. This tablet shows us the Heraians associating themselves with the now influential Eleians. (Another interpretation dates it somewhat earlier, before the subjection of the Pisatans—see Busolt, loc. cit.) It would be an anachronism to speak of Elis or Heraia, for neither was united into a city (συνοικισμός) until the fourth century B.C. (Strabo, p. 337); till then they had dwelt κατὰ κώμας: hence δᾶμος in the treaty. τὸ ἐπίαρον must refer to the fine already mentioned, rather than mean 'curse' like the Attic ἐπαρά (cf. Ziebarth, in Hermes, xxx (1895), p. 64), since no such curse has been mentioned, and the inscription seems to be quite complete.

The Peisistratids: B. C. 527–510.

In 1877 there was dug up part of the cornice of the altar dedicated by Peisistratos, the eldest son of Hippias, who had served the office of archon during his father's rule: it contains the inscription cited by Thukydides, vi. 54. For facsimile see C. I. A. iv (1), p. 41, no. 373 e; Ἀθήναιον, vi. p. 149; H. Röhl, Imagines (1898), p. 83; and Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. xxiii (1898), pl. x. and p. 466. Comp. Μνῆμα τόδε ⸢ἧς ἀρχῆς Πεισίστ[ρατος ⸢Ἱππίου ⸢]υιὸς θῆκεν Ἀπόλλωνος Πυθ[ί]ου ἐν τεμένει.

The date falls between the death of Peisistratos the elder B. C. 527, and the expulsion of Hippias in 510. Thukydides says that in his time the inscription was 'dimly legible' (ἀμυδροῖς γράμμασι): but the letters are to this day as fresh as when first cut, and are clearly no later restoration, so that he must refer to the fading of the colour with which the letters had been painted in. It has, it is true, been suggested that he uses the word ἀμυδρά in the sense of 'obsolete' (Szanto in Wiener Studien, iii (1881), p. 155). Yet it is doubtful whether the word can bear this sense. Its meaning is 'indistinct'; cp. its use by Archilochos (54) and Pausanias (x. 28. 1) of objects seen through water. In [Dem.] lix. in Neaer. 76 (ἀμυδροῖς γράμμασιν Ἀττικοῖς) it does not necessarily mean 'obsolete,' and in Lucian, Ver. Hist. i. 7 (Ἑλληνικοῖς γράμμασι . . . ἀμυδροῖς δὲ καὶ ἐκτετριμμένοις) it certainly means 'indistinct.' The former interpretation is therefore to be retained.

Ἀθηναῖοι ἀνέθεσαν τὴν στοὰν κ[α]ὶ τὰ ⸢ὅπλ[α κ]αὶ τἀκρωτήρια ⸢ελόντες τῶν πο[λεμίω]ν.

Pausanias connects the dedication with Phormion's successes in B. C. 429, x. 11. 5: ᾠκοδόμησαν δὲ καὶ Ἀθηναῖοι στοὰν ἀπὸ χρημάτων ἃ ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ σφίσιν ἐγένετο ἀπό τε Πελοποννησίων καὶ ὅσοι Πελοποννησίοις ἦσαν τοῦ Ἑλληνικοῦ σύμμαχοι. ἀνάκειται δὲ καὶ πλοίων τὰ ἄκρα κοσμήματα καὶ ἀσπίδες χαλκαῖ κ.τ.λ. [See Frazer's note ad loc.] But the archaic writing belongs to an earlier date, and the inscription is before the time of Marathon, although too much stress must not be laid on the fact that ⊕ occurs here as opposed to ⊙ in no. 13, since the latter is a copy. We may therefore follow Wilamowitz-Möllendorff and Homolle with Dittenberger and Wilhelm (Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. xxiii (1898), p. 478) in connecting the inscription with victories near and on the Euripos (Herodotos v. 73–78; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. ii². p. 443), when the Athenians, although nothing is said of a sea-fight, seem to have captured some of the Chalkidian vessels. The same victory gave us the inscription which follows.

The former inscription comes from the original base which supported the bronze chariot dedicated out of the spoils of the victory over the Boiotians and Chalkidians about B. C. 506:

Herodotos v. 77 Καὶ τῶν λύτρων τὴν δεκάτην ἀνέθηκαν, ποιησάμενοι τέθριππον χάλκεον· τὸ δὲ ἀριστερῆς χερὸς ἕστηκε πρῶτον ἐσιόντι ἐς τὰ προπύλαια τὰ ἐν τῇ ἀκροπόλι· ἐπιγέγραπται δέ οἱ τάδε·

Ἔθνεα Βοιωτῶν καὶ Χαλκιδέων δαμάσαντες
παῖδες Ἀθηναίων ἔργμασιν ἐν πολέμου, δεσμῷ ἐν ἀχλυόεντι σιδηρέῳ ἔσβεσαν ὕβριν·
τῶν ἵππους δεκάτην Παλλάδι τάσδ' ἔθεσαν.

Comp. Pausan. i. 28. 2 καὶ ἅρμα κεῖται χαλκοῦν ἀπὸ Βοιωτῶν δεκάτη καὶ Χαλκιδέων τῶν ἐν Εὐβοίᾳ. It appears from the inscription that on the original monument and in the text of Herodotos the two hexameters have changed places. The fact is that Herodotos saw, not the original monument, but its restoration, made about the middle of the fifth century; the second version belongs to this restored monument. To explain the change, it has been suggested that in its new position (on the left hand immediately on entering the Propylaia) the quadriga was far from the chains (which hung, as Herodotos says, ἀντίον τοῦ μεγάρου τοῦ πρὸς ἑσπέρην τετραμμένου, i. e. probably the old temple of Athena). Consequently the chains could hardly be mentioned in the first line. (See Kirchhoff, Sitzungsber. der Akad. zu Berlin, 1887, pp. 111 foll.; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. ii². p. 443.) The restoration of the monument was probably made upon Perikles' conquest of Euboia in B. C. 445, thus connecting his own victory with the victory of sixty years before. In that year, 445, Perikles would leave no means untried to reanimate the failing hopes of his countrymen (Grote, pt. 2, ch. 45).

Treasury of the Athenians at Delphoi : between B. C. 490 and 480.

Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén. xx (1896), pp. 608 foll. ; Frazer on Pausanias, x. 11. 5 ; Pomtow, Arch. Anz. 1898, pp. 43 foll. ; Michel, Recueil, 1117. On various fragments found from 1893–1896, mostly among the ruins of the Treasury. The sequence of the fragments is not quite certain, but the following is suggested as most probable :—

'Αθηναῖοι τ[ῶ]ι 'Απόλλωνι ἀπὸ Μήδ]ων ἀκ[ροθ]ίνια τῆς Μαραθ[ῶ]νι μ[άχης].

Pausanias (x. 11. 5) says: οἱ δὲ θησαυροὶ Θηβαίων ἀπὸ ἔργων τῶν ἐς πόλεμον καὶ 'Αθηναίων εἰσὶν ὡσαύτως . . . ἐπεὶ Θηβαίοις γε ἀπὸ τοῦ ἔργου τοῦ ἐν Λεύκτροις καὶ 'Αθηναίοις ἀπὸ τῶν ἐς Μαραθῶνα ἀποβάντων ὁμοῦ Δάτιδί εἰσιν οἱ θησαυροί. The inscription is not the original one but an apparently faithful copy, made probably in the fourth century. A description of the remains of the Treasury may be read in Frazer's Pausanias (loc. cit.), where further references are given. At the same time it is doubtful whether this inscription refers to the Treasury itself, and not rather, in spite of the words of Pausanias, to spoils (ἀκροθίνια) from Marathon set up on bases in front of the Treasury.

Ostracism at Athens, B. C. 487–483.

Four potsherds. See R. Zahn, Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. xxii (1897), pp. 345 foll.

(1) From the 'Persian deposit' east of the Parthenon. Benndorf, Griech. u. Sicil. Vasenbilder, pl. 29. 10, p. 50; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. iv (1), p. 192 (no. 569); Röhl, Imagines (1898), p. 84; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 4.

Μεγακλῆς [Ἱππο]κράτους Ἀλω[π]εκῆθε.

This Megakles was the brother of Agariste and uncle of Perikles. His ostracism (as one of the 'tyrannizing' party) took place in B. C. 487–486 (Arist. Ἀθ. Πολ. 22), and must be distinguished from that of Megakles, son of Kleisthenes, and maternal grandfather of Alkibiades (Lysias, xiv. 39; Andokides, iv. 34); unless indeed we suppose that they are the same person, and that Isokrates (xvi. 26) is wrong in calling Alkibiades' grandfather the son of Kleisthenes. The potsherd has been cut to a circular shape, and the inscription incised on it in a spiral beginning at the edge and working to the centre.

(2) From the same place as no. 1. Studniczka, Arch. Jahrb. ii (1887), p. 161; C. I. A. iv (1), p. 192 (no. 570); Röhl, Imagines (1898), p. 84; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 5.

(3) Found in 1891 in the rubbish from some old graves on the Peiraieus road. Lolling, Δελτίον ἀρχ. 1891, p. 79; C. I. A. iv (1), p. 193 (no. 571); Röhl, Imagines (1898), p. 84. The incision of the second name was not completed.

Χσάνθιππος
Ἀρρίφ[ρ - -

Xanthippos, son of Arriphron, was the father of Perikles, and the leader of the constitutional party, as opposed to the progressive democrats. His ostracism fell in B. C. 485–484 (Aristot. loc. cit.).

(4) Found in excavating to the north-west of the Akropolis in January, 1897. R. Zahn, l. c.; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 6.

Θεμισθοκλῆς
Φρεάρριο[ς].

This last, which bears the name of the great Themistokles, may belong to the year B. C. 484–483, when Aristeides received the greater number of ostraka; or it may have been used on the occasion, some ten years later, when Themistokles himself was the victim.

Notice the variety of ways in which the persons are indicated (own name + father's name + demotikon, own name + father's name, own name + demotikon). The official method, since the reform of Kleisthenes, was to give the demotikon, but on these potsherds incised by individual voters it is natural to find variety. Cp. von Wilamowitz-Möllendorff, Aristot. u. Athen, ii. pp. 169 foll.

The Sicilian cities: Kamarina, shortly before B.C. 484.

A statue-base discovered at Olympia, 1876. E. Curtius, Arch. Zeit. 1877, p. 48; cp. 1878, p. 181; 1879, p. 43; Kaibel, Epigr. Gr. 744; Dittenberger, Hermes, xiii. p. 388; Röhl, Inscr. Gr. Ant. 95; Imagines (1898), p. 32; Dittenberger-Purgold, Olympia-Inschr. 266; E. Hoffmann, Sylloge Epigr. 309.

Πραξιτέλης ἀνέθηκε Συρακόσιος τόδ' ἄγαλμα
καὶ Καμαριναῖος· πρόσθα (δ)ὲ Μαντινέαι
Κρίνιος Ϝιὸς ἔναιεν ἐν Ἀρκαδίαι πολυμήλω[ι]
Ϝεσλὸς ἐών, καί Ϝοι μνᾶμα τόδ' ἐστ' ἀρετᾶς.

The inscription stands on a base which supported two statues or groups, one by Athanodoros and Asopodoros, the other by Atotos and Argeiadas; both were dedicated by Praxiteles. The position in which the base was found shows that the dedication existed before the temple of Zeus was built (completed about B. C. 458).

We may see in Praxiteles a noble Arkadian, who, not satisfied with the obscure career open to him in his native country, sought fame and fortune in foreign lands. Like Phormis of Mainalos (Pausan. v. 27. 1) and Agesias of Stymphalos (Pindar, Olymp. 6), so Praxiteles doubtless had been at Syrakuse in the service of the tyrants. At the time of the dedication he was a citizen of two cities, Kamarina and Syrakuse (a possibility in Greek, though not in Roman law).

The inscription must therefore belong to some time before B. C. 484, in which year Gelon destroyed Kamarina, transferring its inhabitants to Syrakuse. For between B. C. 461 (the date of the restoration of Kamarina) and the beginning of the temple of Zeus at Olympia, there is barely time for the erection of these dedications.

Gelon's Dedication at Delphoi, B. C. 479.

On a base which formerly supported a tripod at the summit of the Sacred Way at Delphoi. Perdrizet, Bull. Corr. Hellén. xx (1896), pp. 654 foll.; cp. Rev. d. Ét. anc. 1900, p. 268; Th. Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén. xxi (1897), pp. 588 foll.; Mélanges Weil (1898), pp. 207 foll.; U. von Wilamowitz-Möllendorff, Gött. Gel. Nachrichten, 1897, p. 313; F. Blass, Bacchylidis carmina, ed. 2 praef. p. lvi; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 910; Michel, Recueil, 1119.

Γέλων ὁ Δεινομέν[εος]
ἀνέθηκε τῶπόλλωνι
Συραφόσιος.
Τὸν τρίποδα καὶ τὴν Νίκην εἰργάσατο
Βίων Διοδώρου υἱὸς Μιλήσιος.

A second mutilated inscription, on a similar base, is restored by Homolle (ibid.) as follows:—

[ᵀΙάρων ᵀο Δεινομέ]νεος ἀνέθηκε [ᵀ]ϵ[λ-
. . . . τάλαντα . . . . .] ᵀεπτὰ μναῖ.

Finally, two other similar bases, but wanting inscriptions and slightly smaller, have been found near the two described.

These are the bases of the four golden tripods dedicated by Gelon, Hieron, Polyzelos and Thrasybulos, out of the Karthaginian spoils, of which a record is given by various writers. Diodoros (xi. 26. 7) states merely that Gelon, after the victory of Himera, dedicated a golden tripod; but Athenaios (vi. 231 F) quotes Phainias of Eresos and Theopompos as saying that Gelon and Hieron adorned the Pythian shrine, each of them dedicating a tripod and a Nike of gold. The Scholiast on Pindar, Pyth. i. 155, quotes the epigram (attributed in the Anthology, vi. 214, to Simonides) which was inscribed on the dedication:—

Φημὶ Γέλων', Ἱέρωνα, Πολύζηλον, Θρασύβουλον, παῖδας Δεινομένευς, τοὺς τρίποδας θέμεναι,
βάρβαρα νικήσαντας ἔθνη, πολλὴν δὲ παρασχεῖν
σύμμαχον Ἕλλησιν χεῖρ' ἐς ἐλευθερίην.

The last two lines are omitted by the Anthology and by Suidas (s. v. Δαρετίου), and replaced by

ἐξ ἑκατὸν λιτρῶν καὶ πεντήκοντα ταλάντων
Δαμαρετίου χρυσοῦ, τὰς δεκάτας δεκάταν.

Δαμαρετίου is Bentley's emendation of Δαρετίου. It is an allusion to Damarete, Gelon's wife, who interceded for the conquered Karthaginians and was rewarded by them with a gold crown worth a hundred talents (Diodoros, xi. 26. 3). But both of the alternative second couplets have the appearance of being later additions, although that given by the Scholiast has more to recommend it than the version of Suidas and the Anthology. The fine verses of Bacchylides (iii. 17 foll.) probably refer to Hieron's gift:—

λάμπει δ' ὑπὸ μαρμαρυγαῖς ὁ χρυσὸς
ὑψιδαιδάλτων τριπόδων σταθέντων
πάροιθε ναοῦ, τόθι μέγι[στ]ον ἄλσος
Φ[οί]βου παρὰ Κασταλία[ς ῥε]έθροις Δελφοὶ διέπουσι.

It will be noticed here that the poet speaks of τριπόδων; the plural may be a mere poetic licence, or it may point to the dedication of more than one tripod by Hieron in honour of more than one Pythian victory; or, again, Bacchylides may be giving the credit of all four dedications to Hieron. Bion the Milesian, as Perdrizet has pointed out (loc. cit.), is known from Polemon the στηλοκόπας (Diog. Laert. iv. 58) and is to be distinguished from the native of Klazomenai or Chios, who lived half a century earlier.

17 [11].

Epitaph upon the Megarians who fell in the Persian War, at Artemision, Mykale, Salamis, Plataiai: between B. C. 478–467.

The inscription was first edited by Böckh, C. I. G. 1051, from a copy by Fourmont; see also his Kleine Schriften, iv. p. 125; Kaibel, Epigr. Gr. 461;

Dittenberger, C. Inscr. Gr. Sept. i. 53. It was lost sight of since Fourmont's time, but rediscovered by Wilhelm in 1898. We give it from his copy in Oesterr. Jahresh. ii. pp. 238 foll. The public tomb in honour of the Megarian heroes of the Persian war is mentioned by Pausanias, i. 43. 3: Εἰσὶ δὲ τάφοι Μεγαρεῦσιν ἐν τῇ πόλει· καὶ τὸν μὲν τοῖς ἀποθανοῦσιν ἐποίησαν κατὰ τὴν ἐπιστρατείαν τοῦ Μήδου, τὸ δὲ κ.τ.λ. Our inscription however is not the original, but a restoration (as the heading declares) by Helladios the high-priest, probably as late as the fourth century A.D. Accordingly we find ι for ει, ει for ι, ε for αι, αι for ε, οι for υ.

Heading drawn up by Helladios.

Νεισέων ἔπορον λαοδόκων ἀγορῆ.

Note by Helladios.

Μέχρις ἐφ' ἡμῶν δὲ ἡ πόλις ταῦρον ἐνάγιζεν.

ll. 3, 4. This is the only authority for the ascription of this epigram to Simonides. Pausanias, as Wilhelm notes, does not actually mention the epitaph which, with a list of names, doubtless stood on the monument. Possibly it was even then obliterated by time. The epigram no doubt goes back, in origin, to the time of the erection of the monument, but in all probability all but the first couplet is an addition, as is the case with many 'Simonidean' epigrams. l. 7. Pelion on the north and Euboia on the south define the scene of the battle of Artemision. l. 10. The restoration is purely conjectural. Dr. Wilhelm (Oesterr. Jahreshefte, iii. p. 98, note 6) has argued against the restoration; but in a later communication he recognizes that a line calling special attention to the sea-fights is in place; also that, if the omission of the pentameter produces a symmetrical arrangement, l. 9 (which describes two battles) being preceded and followed by two couplets (each describing one battle), yet that symmetry is merely formal, since the first three elements are sea-fights, the fourth a land-fight. We must therefore suppose that Helladios skipped a line in making his copy. l. 12. Herodotos (ix. 69) says that Theban troopers routed the Megarians and killed 600 of them. l. 13. The restoration is Kaibel's. But this as well as all other emendations leave the couplet unsatisfactory, and the Ionicism ἀγορῇ is surprising. l. 15. On the neglect of the augment in ἐνάγιζεν see Jannaris, Hist. Gk. Grammar, 717 foll. Note that ἐναγίζειν is used of offerings to underworld deities and 'heroes,' θύειν of sacrifices to celestials.

Epitaph for Korinthians slain at Salamis, B. C. 478–468.

On a slab found originally at Ampelakion (Ambelaki) on the site of the old cemetery of the city of Salamis, then built into a house, and now in the National Museum, Athens. Dragoumis, Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. xxii (1897), pp. 52 foll. pl. ix; U. von Wilamowitz-Möllendorff, Götting. Nachrichten, 1897, 306; Wilhelm, Oesterr. Jahresh. ii. pp. 227 foll.

[Ὦ ξεῖνε, εὔνδρ]όν ποκ' ἐναίομες ἄστυ Κορίνθου [Νῦν δ' Ἀμὲ Αἴα]ντος [νᾶσος ἔχει Σαλαμίς].

Besides the inscription itself, there are other meaningless letters which have been scratched on the stone by some idle hand. The inscription is in the Korinthian alphabet. The Athenians allowed the Korinthians to bury their slain ἐν Σαλαμῖνι παρὰ τὴν πόλιν and place this epitaph on their tomb (Plutarch, de Herod. Malign. 39, p. 870 E). By Pseudo-Dio Chrysostom [Or. 37 (=20 v. Arn.) 18] and in the Anthology (App. ii. 4) the lines are attributed to Simonides. All the literary authorities, including Plutarch (loc. cit.), add a second couplet:—

ἐνθάδε Φοινίσσας νῆας καὶ Πέρσας ἐλόντες
καὶ Μήδους, ἱερὰν Ἑλλάδα ῥυσάμεθα,

or the like. Of this there is no trace remaining on the stone, although there is no lack of space for it below the extant lines. The couplet for various reasons (e.g. the scansion Πέρσᾰς, and the distinction between Medes and Persians) is undoubtedly of a much later date. All doubts, however, as to the age of the first couplet of the epigram have been set at rest by the discovery of the inscription, although it does not of course follow that Simonides was the author of it. At Corinth itself there was a cenotaph of the Korinthians who were buried at Salamis.

Inscription on the bronze stand of three intertwined serpents, which supported the gold tripod dedicated at Delphoi by the Greeks after Plataiai: about B. C. 475.

The golden portion was destroyed by the Phokians in the Sacred War (Paus. x. 13. 5); but the bronze serpent-pillar remained in situ, until Constantine removed it to his new capital, where it still remains. The base is supposed to have been found at Delphoi (Frazer, note on Pausanias, x. 13. 9). One of the serpent-heads still exists in the armoury of St. Irene. A full account of the monument in Dethier and Mordtmann's Epigraphik von Byzantion (Wien, 1864), pp. 3 foll. Cp. Gibbon, Rom. Emp. ch. xvii. The text is given from Fabricius, Jahrb. d. kais. deutsch. arch. Inst. i. pp. 176 foll. See also Kirchhoff, Studien[4], p. 153; Röhl, *Inscr. Gr. Σίφνιοι
Ἀμπρακιῶται	3rd coil.
Λεπρεᾶται.

The surface of the 13th coil has been flattened back from its due curve to receive the present inscription: here therefore it is supposed by some that Pausanias had inscribed his arrogant epigram:

Ἑλλάνων ἀρχαγὸς ἐπεὶ στρατὸν ὤλεσα Μήδων
Παυσανίας Φοίβῳ μνᾶμ' ἀνέθηκα τόδε.

(So in Anthol. i. 133. xliii; though Thukydides, i. 132, Plutarch, de Herod. Malig. fin., Suidas, s.v. Παυσανίας, and [Demosthenes], In Neaer. 97, give it in κοινή, and in the 3rd person, which is less characteristic.) More probably, however, this epigram was inscribed on the stone pedestal of the column. On some part of the dedication probably stood the couplet quoted by Diodoros, xi. 33. 2:

Ἑλλάδος εὐρυχόρου σωτῆρες τόνδ' ἀνέθηκαν
δουλοσύνης στυγερᾶς ῥυσάμενοι πόλιας.

This couplet may have taken the place of the erased one. At the ends of the 10th, 9th, 7th coils are what seem like remains of letters; but no names can be deciphered, and the marks are perhaps accidental. Omitting these, we get 31 names, including all the 27 names given by Pausanias, v. 23, as inscribed upon the corresponding monument at Olympia, with the addition of 4 omitted by him, viz. Θεσπιῆς, Ἐρετριῆς, Λευκάδιοι, Σίφνιοι (for these see Herod. vii. 202, 222, 226; ix. 28; viii. 46, 48). Observe that there is a uniform arrangement of the names, 3 on each coil; except on the 4th and 7th. Τήνιοι is inscribed more deeply than the rest and in Ionic, having probably been added afterwards by the Tenians themselves (by permission of Sparta) on account of their one ship's adventure (Herod. viii. 82); on the 4th Σίφνιοι was similarly inserted. The writing of both these names is somewhat irregular. Bauer holds that the right to have names inscribed on this monument was earned not by fighting in any battle, but by contributing to the cost of the monument. That is why the list on the Olympian monument was different; and that also would explain the omission of Pale, Seriphos, and Kroton, and the inclusion of Elis. Pausanias, it would seem, wrongly refers this, as well as the Olympian monument, to the battle of Plataiai. The suggestion is attractive. But we must remember that, in Thukydides' phrase ὅσαι ξυγκαθελοῦσαι τὸν βάρβαρον ἔστησαν τὸ ἀνάθημα, the emphasis, according to Greek usage, lies on the participle rather than on the finite verb; and moreover the heading of the inscription is adverse to the theory. Domaszewski's explanation of the list as the official list of the Greek allies, arranged in three groups (1. Tegea to Tiryns, Peloponnesian allies; 2. Plataiai to Elis, Athenian allies; 3. Potidaia to Ambrakia, Korinthian colonies), is also untenable. Both Bauer's and Domaszewski's theories have been carefully discussed by Swoboda (pp. 132 foll.). We may agree with him that the order was probably on the whole decided by the political importance and services of the states; the generals who drew up the list would thus have had considerable freedom of choice. The attempt to arrange the names roughly in geographical groups has produced the appearance of a political grouping.

Gadates seems to have been satrap of Western Asia Minor in the reign of Dareios (B. C. 521–486), and possibly had his head-quarters at Magnesia on the Maiandros, near which, on the road to Tralleis, the stone was found. He is commended for his experiments in the acclimatization of crops or fruit-trees; similarly the Persian king transplanted to Damascus the vines which produced the wine for the royal table (Athen. i. 28 d). In the course of these experiments, however, he has been guilty of extortion from the gardeners attached to the shrine of Apollo, and of imposing profane duties on them. πέραν Εὐφράτου means from the Persian province of Syria. The Apollo whose property Gadates has thereby violated is probably the god of Magnesia itself. Certain traces of the original Ionic dialect of this document are preserved in the copy: e. g. πειθαρχεῖν with genitive, and the last phrase. For the phraseology, cp. especially Thuk. i. 129.

Rise of Athens: Themistoklean walls, B.C. 478.

A base of a funeral monument of white marble, which once had above it a figure in relief (comp. the Aristion gravestone, Conze, Att. Grabreliefs, Taf. ii) or perhaps a recumbent lion: found in June 1873, in the NE. of the city, near the royal stables, among the massive remains of the ancient walls. Lüders in Hermes, vol. vii. p. 258; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 483; Löschcke, Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. iv (1879), p. 301; Löwy, Inschr. Gr. Bildhauer, 14. Traces of the original red colouring of the letters remain.

This may serve to verify the words of Thukydides (i. 93): τούτῳ τῷ τρόπῳ οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι τὴν πόλιν ἐτείχισαν ἐν ὀλίγῳ

From the Etruscan spoils (τὰ Τύρρανα) dedicated by Hieron (Ἱάρων, Dorice) to Zeus at Olympia, after his victory over the Etruscans in the great sea-fight before Kyme, recorded by Diod. xi. 51, and celebrated by Pindar, Pyth. 1. The Tyrrhenum Mare owed its name to this early θαλαττοκρατία of the Etruscans. The inscription of Hieron, the professed 'tyrant,' is more modest than that of Pausanias upon the Plataian tripod (see above, p. 23). The whole inscription is certainly metrical, but the precise nature of the scansion is not clear.

The Ionians after Mykale: Teos, about B. C. 470.

One of several στῆλαι containing imprecations upon traitors and enemies of the state. Böckh, C. I. G. 3044. Lines 1–12 were re-read by Le Bas at Teos, the rest is now lost; Voyage Arch. pt. v. no. 59; Röhl, Inscr. Gr. Ant. 497; Imagines (1898), p. 50; Hoffmann, Gr. Dial. iii. p. 49, no. 105; Roberts, 142; Cauer², 480; Bechtel, Inschr. d. Ion. Dial. 156; Michel, Recueil, 1318 (with restorations of B. ll. 8–18 by Haussoullier). Kirchhoff (*Studien*⁴, p. 13) places the date soon after Mykale.

We know that the greater part of the population of Teos had sought a new home at Abdera, rather than submit to the Persian yoke after the fall of Lydia (Herod. i. 168; Strabo, 644). After Mykale, no doubt, a good many returned home (Strabo, ibid.) to Teos; and their arrival would not tend to allay the disturbances which may well have arisen within the city upon the sudden overthrow of the Persian dominion. That there were disorders is shown by the appointment of an αἰσυμνήτης, an extraordinary magistrate resembling the Roman dictator (Dionys. Hal. v. 73), whose office is defined by Aristotle as αἱρετὴ τυραννίς (Pol. iii. 9. 5), during which the ordinary annual magistrates (τιμοῦχοι) were suspended. At the same time, the phrase ὅστις τοῦ λοιποῦ αἰσυμνῶν seems to point to the continuance of this office for some time, although it is hardly necessary to suppose that the αἰσυμνήτης was an ordinary magistrate at Teos. By the εὔθυνος also we should understand an extraordinary magistrate, perhaps appointed to inquire into the management of public moneys and superior to the ordinary εὔθυνοι of the place (cf. C. I. G. 3059). The mention of piracy shows that the Athenian ascendancy had not yet been fully established in the Aegean: by the βάρβαροι we understand the Persians, whose yoke had just been thrown off. Whatever was the nature of the disturbances at Teos, at all events, upon the restoration of order, the government enjoins these public curses, part only of which remains. On the employment of public imprecations by the Greeks see Schömann's Griechische Alterthümer, ii. p. 254; Ziebarth in Hermes, xxx (1895), pp. 57 foll., and compare the cursings uttered at Athens by the archon every year, and by the herald at the opening of every ἐκκλησία (Plut. Solon, 24; Isokr. Paneg. § 157).

In B. ll. 17, 18 Böckh has περιγ[ενομένους] λοι[μ]οῦ προδο[ίη], thinking that the crime is the desertion of plague-stricken persons who have been landed somewhere away from the city, and so survived. κιξάλλης appears to be a 'brigand.' For the form θαλά[τ]ης (B. l. 23)=θαλάσσης (Röhl's conjecture), see no. 27, p. 39; but it is curious that it should be used in such a purely Greek word. κατάξει (B. l. 37), &c. are Ionic conjunctives.

[Δέξ]ο Fάν[αξ] Κρονίδα [Z]εῦ Ὀλύνπιε καλὸν ἄ[γ]αλμα ἸλήϜω[ι θυ]μῶι τοῖ Λακεδαιμονίο[ις].

Pausanias (loc. cit.) enables us to restore the inscription: τοῦ ναοῦ δέ ἐστιν ἐν δεξιᾷ τοῦ μεγάλου Ζεὺς πρὸς ἀνατολὰς ἡλίου, μέγεθος μὲν δυώδεκα ποδῶν, ἀνάθημα δὲ λέγουσιν εἶναι Λακεδαιμονίων, ἡνίκα ἀποστᾶσι Μεσσηνίοις δεύτερα τότε ἐς πόλεμον κατέστησαν. ἔπεστι δὲ καὶ ἐλεγεῖον ἐπ' αὐτῷ·

Δέξο ἄναξ Κρονίδα Ζεῦ Ὀλύμπιε καλὸν ἄγαλμα ἱλάῳ θυμῷ τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις.

In the actual inscription the ς of the article is assimilated to the Λ of the following word, and, in accordance with the tendency to represent doubled letters by single ones, is not separately expressed.

Pausanias' words may refer to the 'second revolt' mentioned by Thuk. i. 101–103, or to the second Messenian War, of the seventh century. But, although the latter is perhaps more in accordance with the Greek (δεύτερα being taken with the following words), our inscription cannot be so early. It has indeed been ascribed to the sixth century by some authorities, but that does not help us out of the difficulty with regard to Pausanias. That writer's sense of style is of course not acute, and we may therefore take him to refer to the second revolt; indeed the lettering of the inscription seems more appropriate to this time than to an earlier date. The statue was probably dedicated at the beginning of the revolt (Curtius compares the Trojan peplos, Il. vi. 92) to secure the favour of Zeus to the Spartan side.

This is a copy of a law passed by the Opuntian Lokrians to regulate the precise relations which should exist between their colonists, who were leaving to settle at Naupaktos, and the old country at home. The settlers were joined by a certain number of citizens of Chaleion, a town of West Lokris. At the time of this enactment the Lokroi Opuntioi and Hypoknemidioi (or Epiknemidioi) formed one aggregate, composed of a number of separate cities, which regarded Opus as their head. The writing and style are rude (note the constant repetitions), and it is now generally agreed that the inscription dates from before B.C. 455, at which date Naupaktos was given over to the Messenians by Athens. The alphabet used is that of the Western Lokrians. The tablet must have been set up either in Naupaktos or in Chaleion, since, in the only other likely place, Opus, the clause about the colonists at Naupaktos from Chaleion would have been pointless. Hence the use of the Western alphabet. As to the cause of the settlement, Curtius argues with great plausibility that it was brought about by Korinth as a counter-stroke to Athenian designs on that part of Greece. The counter-stroke was of course foiled by the capture of Naupaktos by Athens about B. C. 458 (Thuk. i. 103). But although the Korinthians may have welcomed the foundation of a strong anti-Athenian city in these parts, it is probable that fear of the Aitolians had much to do with the movement. See Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii^{2} (1), p. 300, note 3.

The law begins without any sort of preamble, in a way that gives a shock to those used to the elaborate praescripts of Attic inscriptions; but compare, e.g., the law of Gortyna (no. 35). After the first paragraph, or rather the 'principium,' the paragraphs are numbered in the original (A, B, Γ, &c.). We will adopt these divisions in the following notes.

'Terms of colonization to (ἐν=ἐς) Naupaktos. After a Lokrian has become a citizen of Naupaktos, then, being a Naupaktian, he shall retain rights as a ξένος in E. Lokris to enjoy all privileges due to him as such, both social (ὅσια) and religious (θύειν), and to take part in all sacrifices whatsoever if he visit his country, if he wishes (=βούληται), himself and his family for ever;—sacrifices, whether of the people or of brotherhoods [in φοινάνων the reference is to the sacra of the gens or of the tribe, &c. κἠ=καὶ ἐ for ἐκ]. The colonists not to pay taxes to E. Lokris, unless they return and become E. Lokrians again. If a colonist wish to return he may, if he leave an adult son or brother as head of his household, be enrolled on the E. Lokrian registers without entrance-sacrifice, at whatsoever town (ὅπω=ὁπόθεν) in E. Lokris he came from. [This seems to imply that the colonists were not merely volunteers; probably each family had to contribute its member.] Similarly if the colonists are ever ejected by enemies (or by the old citizens of Naupaktos). They are to pay taxes only as members of the W. Lokrian state (i. e. not to pay any μετοίκιον at Naupaktos, but to be full citizens).'

§ A. 'The colonists are sworn to remain for ever allied with E. Lokris: and thirty years from this swearing, the Opuntians may call upon one hundred Naupaktians to swear the oath for the colonists again, and the Naupaktians may likewise call upon the Opuntians.'

§ B. 'A colonist who leaves Naupaktos in debt to the colony, to lose his rights as a Lokrian, until the debts be paid.'

§ Γ. 'If a colonist dies, and leaves no issue to succeed him nor any heir among the colonists at Naupaktos (ἐχεπάμων = ἐπιπάμων = ἐπίκληρος), then his next of kin, of whatever stock (E. or W. Lokrian) he be, may claim the estate, if he appear in person within three months of the death of the owner: otherwise the property must fall under the usual Naupaktian laws for such cases.'

§ Δ. 'A colonist returning from Naupaktos must notify the fact by the herald in the agora of Naupaktos, and in the town to which he belongs in E. Lokris' (ὦ = ὅθεν).

§ E. This refers to two gentes (?) of E. Lokris, or possibly to two classes of colonists of a different social standing from the rest. It is evident that these two gentes or classes stood in some respects on a different footing from the other E. Lokrians, but whether the difference lay in special privileges or in certain disqualifications, does not appear. Whatever their peculiar position was, it was not to follow them to Naupaktos: it had to do with the possession and inheritance of property. Αὐτός = 'possessor,' as opposed to τὰ χρήματα, 'his possessions'; ὑπὸ τῶν νομ. τῶν ἐπ. = in accordance with the law of the colonists (viz. the law here laid down in §§ B and Δ).

§ F. 'If a colonist at Naupaktos leave brothers in E. Lokris, and one of his brothers dies, the colonist-brother is to take possession of the property—i. e. his share of it.'

§ Z. 'Colonists are to have precedence in the court [πο' τοὺς δικαστ. ᾽αρέσται is explanatory of the preceding words]; a Hypoknemidian Lokrian is to answer to an action against himself (κατὰ Fέος) without a day's delay. The magistrates are to appoint προστάται, an E. Lokrian προστάτης for the colonists, and a Naupaktian προστάτης for the E. Lokrians; these prostatai are to be ἔντιμοι, in full enjoyment of civic rights.' [προστάτης is used in a sense similar to the Attic—the representative of a metoikos.]

§ H. 'A colonist who leaves a father behind him, from whom he has expectations, shall be entitled to his share (ἀπολαχεῖν) upon the father's death.'

§ Θ. 'These statutes (Fεϝαδηϙότα, pf. from ἀνδάνω, cf. τὸ ἄδος, no. 27, l. 19) under no pretext to be broken, under the heaviest penalties (παματοφαγεῖσται clearly = δημοσιεύεσθαι), unless a majority both of the Thousand in Opus and of the Colonists in Naupaktos are agreed. The magistrate is to grant a hearing to any one accusing another of a breach of them within thirty days (if so many remain of his year of office), or lose his civil rights, his goods, share of land (μέρος) and slaves. The dikasts to give their vote by ballot. The above regulations with regard to colonists from E. Lokris are to hold good mutatis mutandis for colonists from Chaleion under Antiphates.'

This free translation will explain most of the difficulties. It seems as if both at Naupaktos and in E. Lokris the chief legislative power lay with a kind of limited ἐκκλησία of one thousand citizens (χιλίων πλήθα), as in Epizephyrian Lokris (Polyb. xii. 16), reminding one of the 'five thousand' at Athens under the oligarchy (Thuk. viii. 72, &c.). This tablet doubtless gives a copy of the original preserved at Opus, and the fact that it was found not far from Chaleion throws some light on the last sentence (cf. no. 44). But this last sentence, as we have seen, did not occur on the original at Opus. The fact that the Chaleian colonists are called Fοικηταί proves that it was written at Naupaktos: 'colonists are called ἄποικοι in relation to their old home, ἔποικοι in relation to that which they seek, and οἰκήτορες, οἰκηταί κ.τ.λ. in relation to the city in which they then reside' (Meister, p. 327).

This is evidently one of ten similar stelai for each of the tribes; for the Athenians in battle were drawn up κατὰ φυλάς (Plut. Aristid. 5, Cim. 17; Lysias, pro Mantith. 15; Theo-phrastos, Char. δειλός ad fin.), and those who fell were buried κατὰ φυλάς (Thuk. ii. 34). Each tribe furnished one of the strategoi (Arist. Ἀθ. Πολ. 61. 1; Plut. Cim. 8). Our inscription gives us the names of two, Phrynichos (l. 6) and Hippodamas (l. 63) The latter was presumably Phrynichos' successor; for Droysen's suggestion (Hermes, 1875, p. 8), that though a member of the Erechtheid tribe he acted as strategos of some other, cannot be accepted.

Lygdamis, the grandson of Artemisia, was one of the dynasts of Asia Minor whose rule survived, for a time, the Persian overthrow. Suidas (s. v. Ἡρόδοτος) tells us that Lygdamis put to death Panyasis the Epic poet, and drove Herodotos the poet's nephew into exile. Subsequently a revolution took place at Halikarnassos, which ended in the expulsion of Lygdamis and the return of Herodotos. Afterwards the historian left his city for the second time, and ultimately joined the Athenian colony to Thurioi in B. C. 443. As Halikarnassos appears in the earliest 'Quota-list,' B. C. 454 (no. 33), Lygdamis cannot have been expelled later than B. C. 455, nor can the change have taken place much earlier. We may conjecturally connect this document with the life of Herodotos by dating it somewhere about B. C. 460–455, in the very year in which the revolution took place, but before Lygdamis quitted the city. The exiles had returned, the struggle was over, and the republicans and the Lygdamis party had sworn an agreement with each other which was recorded in the temple of Apollo (§ 6, ὅρκια ἔταμον, κ.τ.λ.). But the republicans wished to recover their lands and houses, which had been confiscated and held 'in chancery' in the hands of the yearly board called οἱ μνήμονες, 'Registrars' (Arist. Pol. vii. 8, 1321 b 34 foll.; see also Swoboda, pp. 122 foll.). Their claim is met by the present law. The fact that no definite mention is made of any recent political revolution is to be explained by the pacific nature of this measure.

§ 1. A meeting (whether an extraordinary one or not is uncertain) is called in the 'Sacred Agora' (its locality is unknown), where the citizens of Halikarnassos and Salmakis on the one hand, and Lygdamis on the other, take counsel. If the meeting is a regular one, and σύλλογος is simply equivalent to βουλή, we find two communities with only one council, but separate magistrates, like the various communities which made up the state of Rhodes. Ἁλικαρνασσέων τῶς συμπάντων (l. 41) then means the combined communities. Kaibel holds that the Ionic element was furnished by Salmakis, and that this element so far prevailed that the Ionic dialect was the official language of the whole city, which was officially called Ἁλικαρνησσός (l. 41), while the Dorian inhabitants continued to call themselves Ἁλικαρνασσεῖς. Unfortunately, Lord Charlemont's copy gives Ἁλικαρνασσέων τῶς συμπάντων, where the whole community is intended, so that this explanation of the Ionic dialect, which is for other reasons improbable, must be discarded. Nevertheless it remains very curious how completely Ionicized the Dorian colony of Halikarnassos had thus early become—hence the Ionic of Herodotos. The position of the tyrant Lygdamis in relation to the legislative assembly is paralleled, as Swoboda has shown, by later examples, especially from the Hellenistic age.

§ 2. It is decided that the board of μνήμονες just expiring shall not hand over any lands or houses to the incoming board. In other words, the returned exiles are to have them back. Lygdamis the father of Apollonides may be a kinsman of the tyrant; Panyassis is possibly the uncle of Herodotos (but the name is common). § 3. If several claimants apply for the same property, their claim must be entered within eighteen months of the passing of this law, and the dikasts are to administer the oath (to the μνήμονες?); no point which the μνήμονες declare to be within their own knowledge is to be called in dispute. For ἄδος cp. E. M. s. v. ἄδον; Hesych. s.v. ἄδημα, ἄδος· ψήφισμα, δόγμα; and cp. no. 25, § Θ. The iota adscriptum in ὁρκῶ ι σ[αι], is probably a mere blunder of the stone-cutter. § 4. If a claim is made after the prescribed time, the owner in possession is to take oath, in the presence of the claimant (τοῦ ἐνεστηκότος), that he is the rightful owner: such oath to be administered by a court of dikasts, who are to have $\frac{1}{12}$ of a stater for their trouble. In all cases, whoever is proved to have been in possession under the μνήμονες Apollonides and Panamyes, he is to be regarded as the lawful owner —unless (of course) he has alienated (ἀπεπέρασαν) the property since. § 5. This law to be for ever binding and unalterable. § 6. Any citizen, who himself keeps it, may bring an action against him who attempts to bring about the abrogation of the law. τ[ούτ]ῳ, sc. τῷ νόμῳ. The genitive Ἀλικαρνασσέων is partitive after ὃς ἄν: ἐλεύθερον is masculine.

Neither the characters nor the names are Attic, and Böckh, before the discovery of (a), ingeniously identified this with the tomb of the Kleonaians who marched with the Argives and assisted the Athenians at the battle of Tanagra. Pausanias saw their tomb in Kerameikos (i. 29. 5 and 7), ἐνταῦθα καὶ Κλεωναῖοι κεῖνται, μετὰ Ἀργείων ἐς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἐλθόντες . . . . μελλούσης Ἀθηναίων ἐν Τανάγρᾳ γίνεσθαι πρὸς Βοιωτοὺς καὶ Λακεδαιμονίους μάχης ἀφίκοντο Ἀθηναίοις Ἀργεῖοι βοηθοῦντες· καὶ παραυτίκα μὲν ἔχοντας πλέον τοὺς Ἀργείους νὺξ ἐπελθοῦσα ἀφείλετο τὸ σαφὲς τῆς νίκης, ἐς δὲ τὴν ὑστεραίαν ὑπῆρξε κρατῆσαι Λακεδαιμονίοις, Θεσσαλῶν προδόντων Ἀθηναίους: cp. Thuk. i. 107. Two of the fragments (b and e) have been found on the Akropolis. The provenance of the others is not known; but they probably belong to the same stone, and so many stones have been transported in Athens, that we must not conclude that a copy of the memorial must have existed on the Akropolis. On the right of b is a fragment of a metrical epitaph.

Battle of Tanagra, B. C. 457.

On a marble fragment once built into the wall of a house in the ὁδὸς Μουσαίου in Athens, now lost. Στοιχηδόν. Published without identification by U. Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 1677, from a copy by A. Postolakkas; restored by A. Wilhelm, Oesterr. Jahresh. ii. pp. 221 foll.

[Χαίρετε ἀριστῆες πολέμου μέγα κ]ῦδο[ς ἔχοντες, Κοῦροι Ἀθηναίων ἔχσοχοι ʰιππ]οσύνα[ι, ʰοἵ ποτε καλλιχόρου περὶ πατ]ρίδος ὠ[λέσαθ' ʰήβην πλείστοις ʰΕλλάνων ἀντία μ]αρνάμε[νοι.

The restoration is effected by the help of an epigram (Anth. Pal. vii. 254) attributed to Simonides. Wilhelm gives good reasons for attributing the inscription to a date about the middle of the fifth century, and no event of that time tallies with the circumstances described in the epigram so well as the battle of Tanagra. If he is right, the attribution to Simonides, who died in B. C. 468, falls to the ground. The use of the Doric α in ἱπποσύνα (proved by the inscription) and in Ἑλλάνων (preserved by the MS.) is analogous to the Doric vocalization common in lyric poetry.

30.

Battle of Tanagra, B. C. 457.

A marble slab in three fragments from Olympia. Purgold, Arch. Ztg. xl (1882), pp. 179 foll., no. 435; Röhl, Inscr. Gr. Ant. Add. no. 26 a; Dittenberger-Purgold, Olympia-Inschr. 253; Blass, Gr. Dialekt-Inschr. 3157; E. Hoffmann, Syll. Epigr. 312.

. . . . . Κορ[ινθ]ι - - - -
. . . . . ρ - - - - - - -

The epigram is quoted by Pausanias (v. 10. 4, where see Frazer's note) from the dedication made by the Lakedaimonians and their allies from the spoils of the battle of Tanagra. The writing is however Korinthian. It has been suggested that the 'shield,' as Pausanias calls it, may have been made by a Korinthian metal-worker (see l. 5). The object was really a φιάλη (see Benndorf, Oesterr. Jahresh. ii. p. 9). The lines following the epigram may have contained a list of the allies, or some statement regarding the setting up of the inscription. Pausanias' statement that the epigram was on the 'shield' itself is characteristically loose: it was on the stone base. His version, so far as it can be compared with the part actually preserved, differs in v. 4 in having τῶ for τοῦ.

31 [10].

Argive victory over the Korinthians: about B. C. 456?

On a bronze 'Korinthian' helmet from Olympia, discovered in the Alpheios in 1795: now in the British Museum (Newton, Gr. Inscr. in B. M. ii. 2, no. 137; Walters, Catal. of Bronzes, no. 251). See Rose, Inscr. Graecae, 4, pl. viii; Böckh, C. I. G. 29, and addend. p. 885; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 98; Röhl, Inscr. Gr. Ant. 32; Imagines (1898), p. 66; Dittenberger-Purgold, Inschriften von Olympia, no. 250; Prellwitz, Gr. Dialekt-Inschr. 3263; E. Hoffmann, Sylloge Epigr. 308; Michel, Recueil, 1087; Roberts, 75. The line is quasi-metrical, like many early inscriptions, and forms an irregular senarius.

Τὰργ[εῖ]οι ἀνέθεν τῶι ΔιϜὶ τῶν Ϙορινθόθεν.

It is impossible definitely to connect this inscription with any known event; but on epigraphical grounds it may be placed about the middle of the fifth century, and accordingly we may connect it with the fighting which took place in Argolis after the battle of Oinophyta. Among the events of this period the mysterious battle of Oinoe and the capture of Troizen by the Athenians must probably be reckoned (see Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii². p. 323); and the helmet in question as probably represents some minor conflict between the Argives and a Korinthian army fighting on the Lakedaimonian side.

32 [23]. A.

Athens and her subject-allies: Constitution of Erythrai in Ionia, B.C. 455–450.

A large marble found near the Erechtheion, published by Böckh, C. I. G. 73[b] (Addend. pp. 890 foll.), but now apparently lost; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 9. Unfortunately the only copies existing are very inaccurate, so that much doubt hangs over the restoration of many particular words, although the general tenor is certain enough. Erythrai is named in the quota-list for B.C. 450 (Köhler, Urkund. p. 15), but the date of its subjection is not known. Thasos was reduced B.C. 463, and all the allies, except Chios and Lesbos, had been reduced by the time of the Samian War B.C. 440. The reduction of Erythrai falls between 463 and 450, but the characters of our inscription are hardly earlier than 455. The text is in the main that of Kirchhoff; cp. Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 8; Roberts-Gardner, ii. 5; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii² (1), pp. 225 foll.; P. Fischer, Quaest. de Athen. Sociis historicae, Bonn, 1887 (pp. 17 foll.). The restoration of ll. 33, 34 is suggested by Dr. Wilhelm.

In the concluding passage there appears to be mention of a τόχσαρχος and φρούριον, but all attempts at restoration are hopeless.

(a) Regulates the contributions to the Panathenaic festival (cp. no. 41). (b) Regulates the number and mode of election of the Councillors, and prescribes the oath to be sworn by them. In constituting a government upon the Athenian model, the βουλή was the most important feature. For the ἐκκλησία included, without restriction, all who had the franchise; but the senate met daily, had the power of initiating (προβούλευμα), and through the πρυτάνεις controlled the ἐκκλησία, and yet being elected by lot (κυαμεῦσαι) was a thoroughly democratic institution. On the employment of oaths and imprecations in Greek politics see no. 23. A permanent garrison (consisting partly at least of τοξόται) is established in the city, and its commandant superintends the constitution not merely of the first Council, but also of each successive one. In the former task, if ἐπισκόπους is rightly restored (ll. 12, 13), he is aided by civil magistrates sent out by Athens and answering, as Theophrastos (Harpokr. s. v. ἐπίσκοπος) tells us, to the Spartan ἁρμοσταί. (c) Gives the sanction. With the whole inscription comp. no. 40.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B.C. 454.

The inscriptions commonly spoken of as 'Tribute-lists' fall into two classes. (1) Decrees of new assessment: see no. 64; (2) The accounts of the quota of Tribute yearly dedicated to the goddess as an ἀπαρχή or first-fruits, her share being $\frac{1}{60}$th or μνᾶ ἀπὸ τοῦ ταλάντου (see C. I. A. i. 260). The lists of this latter sort were inscribed upon blocks and slabs of marble, many fragments of which have been found on the Akropolis, and have been pieced together by the successive labours of Rangabé (Antiq. Hellén. i. pp. 236 foll.), Böckh (Staatsh.[3] ii. pp. 332 foll.), Köhler (Urkunden und Untersuchungen zur Gesch. d. Delisch-Attisch. Bundes, Berl. 1870), and Kirchhoff (C. I. A. i. 226–272). Six of these marbles have been thus restored, which give the yearly accounts with scarcely any break from B.C. 454 (the year in which the common funds were probably transferred from Delos to Athens) down to B.C. 421. The lists are a good deal broken in places, but as the same names recur, and often in a similar order, many of the lacunae have been filled up with certainty. A peculiar interest attaches to the first list drawn up by the Hellenotamiai after the transfer of the Fund to Athens, which is here subjoined, from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 226; Köhler, Urk. p. 6; cp. Michel, Recueil, 556, and Add. p. 948. Στοιχηδόν.

The series of documents of which this is a specimen is of great importance to the student of Greek history. Their results have been admirably drawn out by Böckh in the 2nd volume of his Staatshaushaltung (ed. 3, pp. 332 foll.), and more completely by Köhler in his special work on the subject. See also the analyses by U. Pedroli, I tributi degli alleati d'Atene in Beloch's Studi di Storia antica, Fasc. i (1891), pp. 101–207, and by Larfeld in his Handbuch der griech. Epigraphik, ii. pp. 26 foll. Among other things, we recover (1) the list of Tributary States; (2) the precise years during which they each belonged to the Confederacy; (3) the amount of the yearly φόρος, which is arrived at in each case by multiplying the quota given by 60; (4) the various changes made in the tribute; and (5) the mode of its administration. As to the names in this list and nos. 43, 48, 64, 65, the reader is referred to the works above quoted, or to the map of the Athenian Confederacy in Kirchhoff's C.I.A. vol. i. Two or three interesting facts may however be mentioned here.

The earliest quota-list in B.C. 454 most likely marks the date of the transference of the Fund from Delos to Athens. Until then probably a similar ἀπαρχή had been paid in to the Delian Apollo, which was now simply transferred to Athena.

In the first eleven lists the tributary states are enumerated with little regard to geographical order. From the 12th year (B.C. 443–442) onwards, they are distributed into five Regions, Ἰωνικὸς φόρος, Ἑλλησπόντιος φ., Ἐπὶ (once ἀπὸ) Θράκης φ., Καρικὸς φ., Νησιωτικὸς φ. (see no. 43). After the new assessment made B.C. 439, the Ionian and Karian Regions are grouped under one head, first as 'Ionian' and afterwards as 'Karian'; the order being Ionian (or Karian), Islands, Hellespont, Thrace. Traces of the earlier distribution are found in the historians (see Thuk. ii. 9, Καρία . . Ἰωνία, Ἑλλήσποντος, τὰ ἐπὶ Θράκης, νῆσοι: cp. Plut. Per. 17).

Respecting the assessment of the tribute something will be said on no. 64, which is the only known example of the kind.

The number of the Tributaries named in the lists amounts to under 290. The only known estimate of their number is in Aristophanes (Wasps, 707, acted B.C. 422, εἰσίν γε πόλεις χίλιαι, αἳ νῦν τὸν φόρον ἡμῖν ἀπάγουσιν), where 1000 is manifestly an exaggeration, but yet not intended to be beyond the limits of credibility. Many of the towns named in the lists had paid for themselves and for smaller places connected with them (συντελεῖς). At the assessment of 425–424 a number of the smaller places were assessed separately from the others, thus very considerably increasing the number of πόλεις, possibly to double the number preserved to us in the quota-lists. Böckh (Staatsh.[3] ii. pp. 414 foll.) supposes that the sapient Bdelykleon reckoned that for every city down in the published lists there were three that really paid; and thus in round numbers 300 × 3 are set down as χίλιαι.

The total amount yearly received as assessed by Aristeides (ὁ ἐπ' Ἀριστείδου φόρος, Thuk. i. 96; v. 18. § 5) was 460 talents. At the opening of the Peloponnesian War Perikles is made to estimate it (Thuk. ii. 13) at '600 talents upon the average.' The latter figure does not agree with the inscriptions: the discrepancy is explained in the notes on no. 48.

The heading of the list before us should be compared with the shorter heading of no. 43. The board of 10 Hellenotamiai, having received the tribute, drew up these lists, which were then audited by the Logistai (οἱ τριάκοντα, a board who had the control of all official accounts). See Christ, de publ. pop. Athen. rationibus (Greifswald, 1879), p. 28.

The Sicilian Cities: Selinus, about B.C. 452.

The people of Selinus dedicate gold statues of certain deities, as a thank-offering for a victory, upon the conclusion of peace (line 7). Who were the defeated people? The common opinion is, or was, that they were the people of Egesta, the two states having a standing feud respecting a strip of territory (Thuk. vi. 6). Diodoros (xi. 86) records a war in B.C. 454–453 between Egesta and 'Lilybaion' περὶ χώρας τῆς πρὸς τῷ Μαζάρῳ ποταμῷ. As Lilybaion was not founded until a century later, Grote (pt. 2, ch. 57) suggests that the war was really between Egesta and Selinus. (Comp. Benndorf, loc. cit.) As our inscription, to judge from the writing, cannot be later than about B.C. 450 (Kirchhoff, *Studien*⁴, p. 113), it may refer to this war. The Halikyaioi have also been suggested by Köhler in place of the Lilybaians; the name (Ἁλι)κυαίοις appears in an Attic decree relating to an embassy which came from Egesta to Athens (C. I. A. iv (1), p. 58, no. 22 k; Köhler, Mitth. d. Inst., Ath. Abth. 1879, p. 30).

Dr. Wilhelm holds that in this decree the Halikyaioi figure as allies of Egesta. It seems therefore justifiable, on the basis of Grote's and Köhler's suggestions, to read in Diodoros Ἁλικυαίοις for Λιλυβαίταις, and suppose the words πρὸς Σελινουντίους to have dropped out (see Busolt's note, Gr. Gesch. iii². p. 521, and cp. Wilhelm, Oesterr. Jahresh. ii. p. 227, note 17). A less attractive proposal is to substitute Σελινουντίοις for Ἐγεσταίοις in Diodoros, Λιλυβαίταις being then a loose expression for the people of Motye (see Holm, Gesch. Sic. i. pp. 257, 431). About B.C. 450 Selinus was at the height of her prosperity (Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 515; cf. Holm, Gesch. Sic. i. p. 288; Freeman, Hist. of Sicily, ii. p. 553). Μαλοφόρος and Πασικράτεια are Demeter and Persephone (Pausan. i. 44. 4) Μαλοφόριος was one of the months in the calendar of Byzantion, which, like Selinus, was a Megarian colony. Φόβος represents Ἄρης (cp. Plut. Cleom. 8; Thes. 27). For Zeus Agoraios at Selinus see Herod. v. 46. The syntax of lines 8–10, assuming the restoration of line 8 to be correct, is irregular but not unexampled. With ἐλάσαντας we must understand the images of the gods, which were to be in relief on a plate of gold (χρύσεον being used substantivally), while the list of names was to be incised (κολάψαντας).

This, the first chapter of the code, deals with actions of three kinds: (1) a person admittedly a slave is claimed by two masters (vindicatio servi); (2) a person actually free is claimed as a slave (vindicatio in servitutem); (3) a person actually a slave is claimed as free (proclamatio in libertatem).

The following terms require more explanation than is supplied by the context:—ἀνπιμωλῆν = ἀμφισβητεῖν, λαγάσαι = ἀφεῖναι, ἀποπωνίοι κ.τ.λ. = depose, κήρανς = χεῖρας.

§ 1. Neither party may lay hands on the person in dispute pendente lite; the fine, in the case of a free man, is ten staters, and, for a slave, half that sum. If the offender declines to yield up the person within three days, a further fine, proportioned to the time of detention, is imposed; the judge, on oath, decides how the time is to be calculated. If the offence is denied, the judge decides the matter on oath, unless a witness gives evidence.

This provision offers a curious difference from the ancient laws of Athens and Rome, where such laying hands on the object of dispute, before the matter was decided in court, was proper and legal.

§ 2. In the case where a person is claimed by one party as free, by the other as a slave, the cause of liberty is to be favoured. Where two masters each claim a slave, judgement shall go by the deposition of the witness, unless there be witnesses for either side or for neither, in which case the decision shall rest with the judge.

The prejudice in favour of liberty is paralleled in Roman law; but, in the case of a person admitted to be a slave, possession is not 'nine points of the law,' and the onus probandi is equally divided.

The 'witnesses' are not 'witnesses to any fact; they are formal witnesses to the proper performance of processual acts. Before a man can bring a case into court he has to go through certain formalities; these must be performed before witnesses, the presence of the witnesses is necessary to the validity of the acts; and their statement is the proof required by the law that the acts have been performed' (Headlam).

§ 3. The decision of the court is to be complied with within five days; otherwise an immediate fine is imposed, with an additional fine proportioned to the time of detention. But if this time exceed a year, not more than a third of the resultant fine can be exacted.

The fine being a comparatively heavy one, the result of the accumulation would soon be to exceed the value of the person in question. Consequently after a year the rate is lowered. Nevertheless the result might eventually bring about the ruin of the offender. The court apparently takes no measures to ensure respect for its decision, beyond giving the victorious party the right to distrain on the offender's property.

§ 4. If the slave take refuge in a sanctuary, the losing party himself, or another for him, shall show the rightful owner the place of sanctuary before two witnesses, freemen of full age. The fine for non-compliance as before; after a year, he is to pay in addition the value of the slave.

The losing party can free himself of his obligation by showing where his slave has taken asylum. After a year, if the slave has not been given up to the rightful owner, the loser pays his value over.

§ 5. If the slave in dispute dies during the trial, the loser pays his value to the winner.

§ 6. If a kosmos while in office commits the offence prohibited in § 1, or if another commits that offence against a kosmos while in office, the case cannot be tried until the kosmos lays down his office. The fine to be calculated from the day on which the offence was committed (such seems to be the sense of the last sentence).

The kosmos (an official corresponding to the Athenian archon) could not sue or be sued while in office—another parallel with Roman law. There is a compensation in the fact that the fine is calculated from the day of the commission of the offence; thus a guilty kosmos or a person guilty of the offence against a kosmos would necessarily pay a higher fine, ceteris paribus, than an ordinary offender.

§ 7. It is permitted with impunity to lay hands on a debtor who has been condemned as insolvent, or on one who has given his person as security for a debt.

These two cases are apparent exceptions to § 1, but apparent only, since debtors of this kind are legally the property of their creditors. The insolvent debtor at Gortyna, as in early Attic and Roman law, was the chattel of his creditor.

The date of this inscription is soon after the battle of the Eurymedon. Just before that battle Kimon had brought the city of Phaselis into the Athenian alliance, thanks to the intervention of the Chians, who were always on friendly terms with the Phaselites (Plut. Cim. 12).

Phaselis had offered a strenuous resistance to Kimon, being a Dorian colony and in close commercial connexion with Persian lands. It was the farthest member of the league to the East, and, lying on the highroad to Egypt and Phoenicia, enjoyed a prosperous trade, as its assessment at ten talents shows (Plut. l. c.; cp. Thuk. ii. 69. Demosth., contr. Lacr. 1 ff., describes the sharp practices of the inhabitants). It was likely that suits would arise between merchants of Phaselis and of Athens: treaties providing for such cases between the citizens of two towns were common enough (ξυμβολαί), and suits conducted in accordance with such provisions were δίκαι ἀπὸ ξυμβολῶν. See von Wilamowitz-Möllendorff in Hermes, xx. p. 240.

Cases arising out of business transacted at Athens are to be tried at Athens before the archon polemarch. § 3. In other δίκαι ἀπὸ ξυμβολῶν, Phaselites were not to be compelled to come to Athens. Hesych. ἔκκλητοι δίκαι· αἱ ἐπὶ ξένης λεγόμεναι, καὶ οὐκ ἐν τῇ πόλει. The phrase does not connote 'appeal.'

§ 4. This treaty in no way concerns disputes between Phaselites and non-Athenians: τ[ῶν ἀλλαχο]ῦ (scil. γενομένων ξυμβολαίων).

§ 5. Fine threatened if the archon disobeys. The limitation was an important one for the allied city, as it limited the supremacy of Athens.

The use of the Ionic alphabet is explained by the last words of the inscription, which show that the Phaselites defrayed the expense of its being engraved.

The date of the inscribing of the first side of this block is fixed by the lettering to about the middle of the fifth century. The inscription on the back of the block is later, perhaps by some twenty or thirty years (it has the four-line sigma); the alphabet used down to the word Νί]κης (lines 5–6) is Attic, and then the Ionic is suddenly introduced. The cause for this change is certainly obscure; we may perhaps explain it by supposing that the lapidary, at a time when he was used to the Ionic alphabet, was set to transfer to this stone a decree passed at an earlier date, and that his patience was exhausted after a few lines. Slight traces of the Ionic alphabet occur in Attic inscriptions as early as the middle of the fifth century (Meisterhans, Grammatik der att. Inschr.[3] p. 4). The cause of the passing of the decree inscribed on the back probably was that the priestess had had difficulty in obtaining her salary, owing to its not having been decided who should pay her. The payment of the priestess' salary, it is now decided, is to be made each year (ἀποδιδόναι, not ἀποδοῦναι) by the kolakretai. It is strange that some should have understood line 9 to prove that the kolakretai were officials changing with the month or prytany; of course the mention of the month is necessary merely to fix the date of the payment.

At the time when the first decree was passed, there existed only a primitive shrine, or probably even a mere altar of ashes, dedicated to the worship of Athena Nike, on the spot where the beautiful temple of the Wingless Victory was to be built and has been reconstructed in modern times. This decree provides a priestess for the cult, and arranges for the placing of a door to the hieron, and the building of a temple with a stone altar according to the specification (ξυγγραφή) of Kallikrates, one of the architects of the Parthenon. The salary of the priestess is eked out by the perquisites of the legs and skins of victims sacrificed in state ceremonies (we must not read τὸν δημόσιον with von Wilamowitz and Haussoullier). For the perquisites of priestesses see the decree of Halikarnassos (Gr. Inscr. in B.M. 895; Michel, Recueil, 453; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 601): θύσει τὰ ἱερὰ τὰ δημό[σ]ια καὶ τὰ ἰδιωτικά, καὶ λήψεται τῶν θυομένων δημοσίαι ἀφ' ἑκάστου ἱερείου κωλῆν καὶ τὰ ἐπὶ κω(λ)ῆι νεμόμενα καὶ τεταρτημορίδα σπλάγχνων καὶ τὰ δέρματα, τῶν δὲ ἰδιωτικῶν κ.τ.ἑ. As to the temple which is to be built, it is undoubtedly the well-known temple of the Wingless Victory. The arrangement of that temple in regard to the original form of the bastion on which it stands shows that it was begun before the Propylaia. If, as some hold, the style of the frieze is post-Periklean, the completion of the temple must have been delayed, for some cause that is obscure. Yet in this case it is difficult to understand why the whole was not then altered so as to suit the new connexion of the bastion with the plan of the Propylaia.

The revolt of Megara (Thuk. i. 115; Diod. xii. 5; and Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii². p. 426) took the Athenian garrison by surprise; but they succeeded in holding Nisaia and Pagai. Andokides, the grandfather of the orator, was dispatched from Athens in command of the three phylai mentioned in the text (the remaining seven were occupied with Perikles in Euboia). While Andokides laid waste Megaris, the Peloponnesian army cut across his direct line of communications, and forced him to return from Pagai by the difficult coast-road through Aigosthena and Kreusis, and so through Boiotia homewards. It was on this march that Pythion did the service for which he is lauded in this quaintly illiterate epitaph.

The date of the document is fixed by the characters. We may take these men of Thespiai to be persons who stood faithful to Athens after the defeat of Koroneia, and were exiled from Boiotia for their pains. The name of the fourth betrays the Athenian sympathies of his family. The friendship of Thespiai for Athens was strengthened by a jealousy of Thebes (cp. Herod. vii. 222; Thuk. iv. 133; vi. 95). In the last line ἀποδόντων (instead of the usual δόντων) must be restored (cp. no. 37, l. 8 of reverse).

Athenian conquest of Euboia: Settlement of Chalkis. B.C. 446.

An entire slab, discovered on the Akropolis in 1876: the appearance of the stone reveals that a companion stelè originally was attached to it on the left, both being surmounted by one pediment, on which probably was the name of the γραμματεύς, whose omission is otherwise peculiar. Στοιχηδόν. Published by Kumanudes, Ἀθήναιον, v. pp. 76 foll.; Foucart in Revue archéologique (1877), i. p. 242; Kirchhoff, C. I. Geschworenengerichte, pp. 45, 51; Schöll, Münchener Sitzungsber. 1888, p. 4, note 2; Von Wilamowitz-Möllendorff, Aus Kydathen (Philol. Untersuch. i), pp. 87–96; Busolt, *Gr. The lost stelè possibly contained the ψήφισμα relating to the ὅρκος of the Eretrians (line 42), on which model the ὅρκος of the Chalkidians was based. The inscription dates from immediately after the reduction of Euboia (autumn 446), of which Chalkis was the key; this is not part of the ὁμολογία mentioned by Thuk. i. 114, but gives rather certain modifications of that ὁμολογία, conceded by the Athenians upon the petition of the Chalkidians.

The Chalkidians to be independent in matters of jurisdiction, with certain exceptions. The Euboian cities to be allowed all freedom compatible with the military safety of Euboia.

Line 4: the Athenians are not to deal with Chalkis as they had just dealt with Hestiaia (Thuk. i. 114), and as they had with Chalkis itself in B.C. 509–4 (Herod. v. 77). Here the βουλή, or perhaps both βουλή and δικασταί, swear as representing the whole people. Line 6: this applies rather to the Athenian dikasts, when trying a case brought to them from Chalkis; ἀκρίτου οὐδενός is to be understood with all these verbs. Line 8: unfair sentence of death and confiscation is meant. The ultimate sovereign power is here reserved for the omnipotent δῆμος. Line 10: this applies to members of the βουλή, who are to act like Sokrates when they are πρυτάνεις, and not put to the vote an unfair ψήφισμα. Line 11: compare the sweeping decree against the Mytilenaians (Thuk. iii. 36). Line 12: envoys with petitions from subject states or others could only be introduced to the δῆμος by the πρυτάνεις, who were not always above suspicion of abusing their power by taking bribes, or by repelling unpopular applicants (Arist. Peace, 905; Thesm. 936; [Xenophon], Resp. Ath. iii. 3); the words κατὰ τὸ δυνατόν show that sometimes an embassy could not be introduced, owing to urgent business, or to the occurrence of a national holiday (ἐκεχειρία, Arist. Peace, ibid.). Line 20: this was the usual form of the 3rd pers. pl. pres. imp. pass. at this date (see Meisterhans, Gram. d. att. Inschr.[3] p. 168). Line 27: this shows that the subject cities could and did appeal against unfair assessment of φόρος (cp. no. 64). Line 30: a contingent from Chalkis served with the Athenians in Sicily (Thuk. vii. 57). Line 40: this is probably the same Antikles who commanded in the Samian war (Thuk. i. 117). Line 41: Kirchhoff concludes, from the use of the present tense, that Antikles' object was to repeat the oath at stated intervals, and that this had been ordered in the lost psephisma concerning Eretria. Dr. Wilhelm prefers to see in the present tense merely an indication of the long continued process of swearing in all the individual Chalkidians. The limits of time and other such conditions are to be the same as at Eretria. Lines 43, 44: from this expression, and αὐτίκα μάλα below, we gather that the ὁμολογία had only just been concluded with Euboia (Thuk. i. 114). Line 46: as all the adult population of Chalkis had to swear, the five extra commissioners would be needed. Lines 47 foll.: the Chalkidians had asked for some concession as to the hostages, which was for the present refused. Lines 53 foll.: the sentence is loosely constructed, but there is no need to emend the text. The sense is: Aliens living in Chalkis, unless they already, while inhabiting there, pay taxes to Athens or enjoy ἀτέλεια granted by the Athenian people, shall all pay taxes to Chalkis. καὶ εἴ τωι is equivalent to καὶ ὅσοις μή, the negative being carried over from the previous alternative; τοὺς δὲ ἄλλους resumes the subject τοὺς χσένους. The reference is to Athenian metoikoi. Each subject state paid its φόρος in a lump sum to Athens; the local authorities raised it by an individual assessment. Lines 64 foll.: for Hierokles and his χρησμοί see Arist. Peace, 1043 foll.; perhaps he had received a grant of land at Oreos as a reward, upon the fulfilment of his predictions of success in the Euboian expedition: cp. the prophesyings about the Sicilian expedition (Thuk. viii. 1). That such μάντεις accompanied the Athenian armies we know from no. 26. Thukydides speaks slightingly (ii. 21) of these floating χρησμοί, but they were believed in by the people, and this psephisma shows that they were recognized by the state. Line 71: by τὰς εὐθύνας we must here understand punishment, not the account given by a magistrate of his office. Line 75: von Wilamowitz, who denies that ἔφεσις means more than referring to law, explains 'the heliaia of the thesmothetai' as simply the office where allies intending an action first applied, in order that their cases might be put in the hands of the proper authorities. But Lipsius (loc. cit.) has made it clear that ἔφεσις can have the sense of 'appeal' usually given to it. Line 80: here the formula of the oath was rehearsed in the MS. draft, but the stonecutter does not repeat it, as it has already occurred as part of Diognetos' motion.

Athenian Colonies in Thrace: Brea, B.C. 446–444.

Two fragments of Pentelic marble, found 1833, 1847, in the Erechtheion. Στοιχηδόν. Published 1853 by Böckh, Monatsber. d. Berl. Akad. p. 147, and by Sauppe, Ber. d. Sächs. Akad. p. 33. This decree, concerning an almost forgotten event (see Hesych. and Steph. Byz. s.v. Βρέα; E. Curtius, Hist. of Greece, vol. ii. p. 486, Eng. trans.; G. Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii[2]. p. 417, note 1), is the only known inscription relating to the details of the founding of a Greek colony. The ἀποικία, a colony planted amongst barbarians on foreign soil, is to be distinguished from κληρουχία, a settlement of Athenian citizens in the city and lands of an expelled Greek population, as at Hestiaia and Chalkis (see preceding), Samos, Myrina, &c. Observe that the connexion with the mother city is to be maintained by θεωρίαι and contributions to the great Athenian festivals (cp. no. 32, and the statement of the Scholiast on the Clouds, 386: at the Panathenaia all the Athenian colonies used to send oxen to be sacrificed); and in the division of the land at Brea certain lands are to be reserved (ἐξῃρημένα) for the endowment of temples (τεμένη). Further, it appears from B that by this colonization Perikles had in view not only the strengthening of Athens in the neighbourhood of Thrace, but also the relief of the poorer citizens (Plut. Per. 11). A. Line 2: certain imports had just been prohibited. Lines 4, 5: this word, if rightly restored, means the leaders of the ἀποικισμός. Line 6: so too ten men were sent to superintend the foundation of Thurioi—the Θουριομάντεις of Aristophanes (Clouds, 332 and Schol.). Line 11: the restoration *παν*ˈοπλίαν* is due to Dr. H. von Prott, who restores it with certainty from a Prienian inscription shortly to be published by him; cp. no. 64 (j) and C. I. A. ii. 164. Line 15: the cities of the Athenian confederacy are to defend Brea: the ξυγγραφαί are laws drawn up by persons commissioned for this purpose (ξυγγραφεῖς), and then sanctioned by the council and assembly. Line 27: Athenians on military service may give in their names as colonists, but are not to make this a mere pretext for leaving service, without going to Brea. The military service in question was probably that on which the Athenians were engaged in Euboia in 446 B. C. Line 30: this is the ἐφόδιον, or grant of money from the home government for the establishment of the colony: see Introd. to Demosth. Cherson.; though that concerns a κληρουχία. B. The prytaneis of Erechtheïs, which was probably the next to follow, were to introduce Phantokles to the βουλή: see note on preceding, line 12 (p. 66).

Athenian Colony at Eretria? B.C. 445–444.

On a marble basis at the Propylaia. Στοιχηδόν. Kirchhoff, Berlin Akad. Abhandl. 1873, p. 20; C. I. A. i. 339; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 18; Lolling, Κατάλογος τοῦ Ἐπιγρ. Μουσείου, i. p. 67, no. 97.

The establishment of a colony in Eretria may be connected with the expedition of Tolmides in B.C. 447 (Diod. xi. 88; Paus. i. 27. 5), or may more probably be a little later. See Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii. p. 416. P. Fischer's objections to the restoration Ἐρ[ετρίαν (he reads Ἔρ[εσον], Quaest. de Athen. Sociis Hist., Bonn Diss. 1887, pp. 28 foll.) do not seem to be valid. The law that there should be the same number of letters in each line does not hold in short inscriptions of this kind. The colony in Eresos would, if he is right, be that established in B.C. 427, described by Thuk. iii. 50 (cp. C. I. A. i. 96, iv (1), p. 22, here no. 61). The object supported by the basis must have been dedicated at the time of the foundation of the colony.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B.C. 443.

Inscribed on the 1st of the blocks mentioned on no. 33. Στοιχηδόν. The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 237, after Köhler, Urkunden, &c., p. 33; cp. Böckh, Staatsh.[3] i. p. 472; ii. p. 387.

Of the series of documents to which this belongs, something has been said on no. 33. The present list has a special interest for the reason that we recognize the poet Sophokles in the last line as the chairman of the Hellenotamiai, so that his command in the Samian expedition, B. C. 440, was not his first public appointment (Strabo, p. 638); while it was not his last, if we may believe Plutarch's story (Nic. 15).

The present quota-list belongs to the beginning of Perikles' supremacy at Athens. From this time onwards the disbursements for public works must have been enormous; and it used to be supposed that the expenses were met by an increase in the tribute. But the total tribute, so far as it is possible to judge from the quota-lists in their present state, remained at the Aristeidean level (see the analysis given on no. 48).

Covenant between Oiantheia and Chaleion, and Law of Oiantheia : about B. C. 440.

A.

The greater part of the obverse, down to χρήστω, is an agreement between the two states. The main object of these provisions is to prevent either state from injuring foreign merchants who visited the other's port; so that we have here an instance of that kind of treaty called by the Greeks συμβολαί, and suits tried as here provided were δίκαι ἀπὸ συμβολῶν (see above, p. 58). Αἴ τι' συλῶι is for αἴ τις συλῴη, line 2. To understand lines 3–6, bear in mind the meaning of σῦλα διδόναι in Greek international law, as spoken of by Demosthenes, xxxv, in Lacritum, 13 and 26 (cp. arg. of the speech in Timocr. p. 695), and explained by Böckh, Staatsh.[3] i. 174. When one state declared war with another, it gave its own citizens the right of seizing the cargo of any vessel belonging to the citizens of the other ('letters of marque'); so Thuk. v. 115: καὶ Λακεδαιμόνιοι δι' αὐτὸ τὰς μὲν σπονδὰς οὐδ' ὡς ἀφέντες ἐπολέμουν αὐτοῖς, ἐκήρυξαν δὲ εἴ τις βούλεται παρὰ σφῶν Ἀθηναίους λῃΐζεσθαι. But even in time of peace, a merchant who has a dispute with another merchant of a different state (ξένος) may (unless the settlement of such disputes is provided for by συμβολαί) seek to enforce his claim by laying hands either on his adversary or some of his property (ἄγειν καὶ φέρειν), and it is this seizure in distraint (as well as mere freebooting), which is here expressed by the word συλᾶν. A court was provided, both at Chaleion and Oiantheia, before which a foreigner who had unjustly suffered seizure might get redress: certain rules for this court are given in lines 4 foll. As regards the dialect note the use of στ where Attic has σθ; the form μειόνοις; and the frequent dropping of the aspirate, which is however inserted in ἄγειν and ἔχθος=ἕκτος. Kirchhoff warns us not to date this treaty too early: the style of speech is rude, but is characteristic of the manners of the people. The inhabitants of these regions were born freebooters: Thuk. i. 5; Polyb. xvii. 4–5.

Translation. 'No Oiantheian, if he make a seizure, shall carry off a foreign merchant from Chaleian soil, nor a Chaleian a merchant from Oiantheian soil; nor shall either Oiantheian or Chaleian seize a merchant's cargo within the territory of the other city. If any one breaks this rule, it shall be lawful to seize him with impunity (ἀνάτως). The property of a foreigner may be seized on the sea without incurring the penalty, except in the actual harbour of the city. If any one make unlawful seizure, four dr. be the penalty; and if he retain the goods so seized beyond ten days, let him be fined half as much again as the amount of the seizure. If a Chaleian have sojourned over a month in Oiantheia, or an Oiantheian in Chaleion, he must (as if a μέτοικος) sue and be sued in the courts of the city of his sojourn.'

B.

The remainder of the obverse and the whole of the reverse are inscribed in a slightly different, perhaps more recent hand. It contains provisions made by one of the two cities (presumably Oiantheia, as the tablet was found there) regulating the treatment of aliens, apparently with no special reference to Chaleion. But as these provisions are connected in significance with those of the συμβολαί, they are inscribed on the same tablet.

Translation. 'The proxenos who is not true to his official position shall be fined double (the amount claimed by his client) [the sense is clear, however we attempt to explain the form θωιήστω; cf. θῳή.] If the judges in the aliens' court are divided in opinion, the foreigner who is plaintiff (ὁ ἐπάγων) shall choose additional jurors (excluding his proxenos or private host) of the worthiest men, fifteen for claims of a mina or more, nine for less. If a citizen proceed against a fellow-citizen in accordance with the terms of the συμβολαί [e. g., if an Oiantheian proceeds against an Oiantheian who has unjustly seized the property of a ξένος; συμβολαί = the above agreement with Chaleion, and probably other agreements of a similar kind], then the magistrates, having first sworn by the five gods, shall choose the jurors, worthy citizens, who shall swear the same oath, and the majority shall decide.'

On the founding of Thurioi see Grote, pt. 2, ch. 47; Curtius, Hist. Gr. ii. 487 foll.; and Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii[2]. pp. 530 foll. It was in the spring of B. C. 443. The first few years were occupied in a struggle with Tarentum, the Thurians claiming possession of all the land northward as far as, and inclusive of, the river and town of Siris, cp. Herod. viii. 62. The struggle lasted about ten years, and ended in a compromise, which showed that Tarentum had rather the advantage in the war: Strabo, vi. p. 264, φησὶ δ' Ἀντίοχος τοὺς Ταραντίνους Θουρίοις καὶ Κλεανδρίδᾳ τῷ στρατηγῷ φυγάδι ἐκ Λακεδαίμονος πολεμοῦντας περὶ τῆς Σιρίτιδος συμβῆναι, καὶ συνοικῆσαι μὲν κοινῇ, τὴν δ' ἀποικίαν κριθῆναι Ταραντίνων. Comp. In Col. I, the names in ll. 15, 18, 19, 35, 36, and similarly in Col. II, l. 28, the name of Ἀρχέπολις have been subsequently inserted by another hand. For Χαιρῆς=Χαιρέας see Dr. Wilhelm's forthcoming report on the excavations at Lusoi.

This epitaph was referred by Kirchhoff to the year 408, but as others have shown, it is of an earlier date. The character of the letters suffices to prove this. The names Καρυστόνικος (i. 27) and Ναξιάδης (ii. 31—not given here) were probably given to their owners when the Athenian expeditions against Karystos and Naxos (B. C. 472–469) were fresh in men's minds; this would bring the date of the inscription down to soon after the middle of the century. We may reasonably, therefore, refer it to about B. C. 440 when, at the time of the Samian revolt, Byzantion cast off her allegiance to Athens (Thuk. i. 115, 117) and the whole of the Thrakian region was disturbed (Hill, Sources for Gk. Hist. pp. 141, 142).

sculptured by Pheidias B. C. 438, called in another inscription given by Köhler (C. I. A. iv (1), no. 299 a) ἄγαλμα χρυσοῦν. The funds were supplied from the ταμίαι τῆς θεοῦ, of whom however only seven are named. Out of the 100 talents (line 6) received by the commissioners from the ταμίαι, 87 tal. 4652 dr. were spent on gold (weighing over 6 tal. 1500 dr.) and 2 tal. 743 dr. (or a little more) on an uncertain amount of ivory. The relation of gold to silver as expressed in this inscription was as nearly as possible 14 : 1. (Th. Reinach, Rev. Numismatique, 1893, pp. 13, 14.)

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B. C. 436–435.

Στοιχηδόν. The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. vol. i. 244; Abhandl. d. Berl. Akad. 1870, p. 108; Dittenberger, Sylloge[1], 17 (om. in ed. 2); Michel, Recueil, 559.

A comparison of the various quota-lists seems to prove that the increase in the tribute formerly imputed to Perikles did not really take place. We give here the results obtained by U. Pedroli (I tributi degli alleati d'Atene, p. 199, in Beloch's Studi di Storia antica, fasc. I, 1891, pp. 101 foll.).

Period	454–3 to 451–0	Total tribute per ann.	495 tal.	2270 dr.
„	450–49 „ 447–6	„ „	455 „	2430 „
„	446–5 „ 440–39	„ „	414 „	5170 „
„	439–8 „ 437–6	„ „	436 „	3310 „
„	428–7 „ 426–5	„ „	410 „	2980 „

To account for the statement of Thukydides that the tribute at the beginning of the Peloponnesian War was 600 talents (ii. 13), we must suppose him to be using the word φόρος in its wider sense, in which it would include both τὰ ἐκ Σάμου and the δεκάτη imposed on traffic through the Hellespont. See Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii[2]. p. 556. In the present list the order of regions is altered, and Ionia and Karia are grouped together (see note on no. 33, p. 51). The last two headings in the list are explained by reference to the mode of making the reassessments, as described in no. 64 (see notes). Πόλεις αὐταὶ ταξά-μεναι are cities which for some exceptional reason received the privilege of assessing themselves (see the discussion of this rubric in Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii². p. 207, note 4). Πόλεις, ἃς οἱ ἰδιῶται ἐνέγραψαν φόρον φέρειν are those whose assessment was fixed at the suggestion, not of the τάκται nor of members of the βουλή, but of private Athenian citizens who volunteered advice to the βουλή (cp. Andok. de Myst. 84 and note on no. 64).

Financial Administration of Perikles: B. C. 435 or 434.

A slab inscribed on both sides; found at Kharvati (Attika), now in the Louvre. Στοιχηδόν. Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. no. 32 and iv (1), p. 63; Fröhner, Inscr. gr. du Louvre, p. 98; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 21 and Add. vol. ii. p. 808; Michel, Recueil, 75; Roberts-Gardner, ii. 10; comp. Böckh, Staatsh.[3] ii.

pp. 41–48; Beloch, Rhein. Mus. 43 (1888), pp. 113 foll.; Busolt, Gr. Gesch. iii². p. 214, note 2; E. Meyer, Forschungen zur alt. Gesch. ii (1899), pp. 88 foll.; E. Cavaignac, Rev. de Philol. 1900, pp. 135 foll.

The two sides of this stone have generally been supposed to represent two different decrees; but Meyer has given reasons for supposing that they are one and the same instrument. Böckh held, on epigraphic grounds, that the inscription belongs to a period not earlier than 420 B.C., and his view, assigning the measures themselves to the same period, has more recently been accepted by Beloch, Michel, and Cavaignac. But, as the Treasure-lists (see no. 66) began in B.C. 434, Kirchhoff argues with much force that this decree must have been passed the year before, viz. in B.C. 435 (see his Bemerkungen zu d. Urkunden d. Schatzmeister d. anderen Götter, Abhandl. d. Berl. Akad., 1864). At the same time the preponderance of datives in -αις and the constant use of σύν instead of ξύν show that the inscription was not actually engraved before B.C. 420. Possibly this was done some time after the troubles of B.C. 413–411, when, as we see from no. 78, it became necessary to revise the laws and otherwise record the provisions of the constitution. Although the present document contains a good deal of only temporary importance, it also contains instructions of a more permanent character, for the tamiai of the state and of the temples, and it would accordingly be desirable to have it engraved.

The policy of Perikles was based upon careful finance. In B.C. 438 the Parthenon was practically finished, itself a magnificent ἀνάθημα to Athena, and intended to be both the centre of the national festival and the Treasury of the state. The treasures belonging to Athena had been for some time managed by ten ταμίαι elected yearly, one from each tribe, each great Panathenaic festival (the third year of each Olympiad) marking the end of a financial period (see on no. 66, and § 14). The money-treasure was stored in the Opisthodomos of the old Athena-temple, and on the completion of the Parthenon the treasures in kind were kept in the Pronaos, Parthenon proper, and Hekatompedos (see no. 66). The lists of the Treasurers of Athena begin in B.C. 434, and present an almost perfect series for thirty years.

In the document before us we perceive the mind of Perikles, bent on investigating and reorganizing all the property of the state, and making all her resources available for national purposes. It appears that, during the military efforts of the last few years, large sums had been borrowed from the treasuries of the 'Other Gods.' In B.C. 445, however, peace had been purchased by the 'Thirty years' truce'; and, in spite of the Samian expedition in B. C. 440, a period of comparative repose had increased the Athenian resources. This decree was moved by the same Kallias, perhaps, as was killed at Potidaia in B. C. 432 while in command of the Athenian forces; Thuk. i. 63. 3; see also nos. 37, 51, 52.

(Obverse, § 2) It is decided to repay at once the sums due to the 'Other Gods,' a reserve of 3000 talents having now accumulated in the treasury of Athena; ἐς πόλιν = the Akropolis (Thuk. ii. 15; Plut. Pelop. 18; no. 40, l. 60; no. 41, l. 18). § 3. The repayment is to be made out of φόρος now in hand, or just coming into hand, and from the tenth which was paid on public estates let out to private persons—a tax which was farmed out (Dittenberger). § 4. Of the λογισταί we have heard in no. 33, p. 51. For the βουλή comp. Andok. de Myst. 15; αὐτοκράτωρ = 'without consulting the ἐκκλησία.' § 5. Search is to be made for all receipts and accounts, and the priests and curators of each temple are to give all information. § 6. A board of Treasurers is to be appointed yearly, to take charge of the treasures belonging to the 'Other Gods,' like the Treasurers of Athena: see on no. 66. They are probably ten in number, since they are to be elected 'in the same way as the Treasurers of Athena,' i. e. one from each tribe; yet in the treasure-list of B.C. 429–428 (C.I.A. i. 194) their number appears to have been five. The treasures consisted chiefly of gold and silver, coined or bullion, and gold and silver vessels; they were henceforward to be kept in the Opisthodomos (§ 13), and carefully registered year by year (§ 7, § 8). Next, in § 9 it is provided that what is over of the sums specified in § 3, after payment of the debts, shall be spent on the docks and the fortifications.

The opening of the reverse is mutilated[1]. In § 10 certain sums seem to be voted for the beautifying of the Akropolis and the furnishing of the Panathenaia. § 11. Henceforward the Treasures of Athena are to accumulate, and no sum above 10,000 drachmas may be voted even for this purpose, without a bill of indemnity. This resembles the later enactment of B.C. 431 (Thuk. ii. 24; cp. viii. 15) respecting the reserve fund of 1000 talents. § 12. We now pass from the Treasures of Athena to the public funds. If Kirchhoff's restoration of τὰ ἑκά[στοτε γενόμενα παρὰ τ]οῖς ταμίασι or Christ's reading adopted in the text is right, it is ordered that the surplus of the yearly φόρος shall be deposited with the Treasurers of Athena. Yet it does not become the property of the goddess; consequently it is administered by the Hellenotamiai and the 500, not by the Treasurers of Athena. § 13 has been already explained, and § 14 is plain enough. Whatever treasures of Athena are still unweighed, are to be weighed, not only by the present ταμίαι, but by all the former ταμίαι who are living and present in Athens: ἀεί is important for the sense, and more certainly right than some of the other restorations, which however we have reproduced, as giving the probable drift of the decree. The increase of the reserve which it was hoped to establish can never have come into existence, since war broke out in the summer of B.C. 433, and it is difficult to believe that any surplus can have been paid into the treasury.

[1] M. Héron de Villefosse has kindly provided an impression of this portion.

Obverse.

Athenian administration of the Delian Temple. B. C. 434–432.

See Böckh (Abhandl. d. Berl. Akad. 1834), Erklärung einer Attischen Urkunde über das Vermögen des Apollinischen Heiligthums auf Delos; C. I. A. i. 283; Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén. viii. p. 283; V. von Schoeffer, de Deli ins. rebus (Berliner Studien, ix. 1889), p. 29. The marble should be at Athens, but Dr. Wilhelm writes that neither Lolling nor himself has been able to find it.

The first six lines are sadly broken, but they seem to contain proper names, Διόφ[αντος] or Διοφ[άνης], [Ν]εάνθης or [Κλ]εάνθης, Βουλακλῆς, Δημοθάλης, Ἀναξίδημος. These are the Athenian board (elsewhere styled Ἀθηναίων Ἀμφικτύονες) who were a kind of Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the management of the property of the Delian temple. The temple was more or less under Attic influence from the foundation of the Athenian alliance (B.C. 477): but the direct control of it was undertaken by them in B.C. 426, when the Athenians 'purified' Delos and re-established the Delian festival (Thuk. iii. 104). In B.C. 422 they expelled the Delians and occupied the island with kleruchs; but the next year they restored their lands (Thuk. v. 1. 32), and retained only the temple, allowing the natives some part in the administration of the Sanctuary (see no. 76). After the defeat at Aigospotamoi of course the Delians claimed their own temple once more (see nos. 83 and 104). The date of the inscription is fixed by the Athenian archons Krates and Apseudes. The alphabet used is the Ionic, as in no. 76. Copies of these inscriptions existed at Delos, and some of them have been published by Homolle (Bull. Corr. Hellén. viii. pp. 282 foll.). The inscription goes on—

§ 1. Lines 7–9. - - παρ]ὰ Δηλίων ὀφειλόντ[ων - - | - -] ἐγένετο καὶ αἱ παρα[- - | - κεφάλαιον ἀργυρίου] σύμπαν 𐅄𐅄HHHHΔ - - (55410 dr. or more.)

§ 2. Lines 10–15. - - σιον τὸ βαλανεῖον ὥρισαν τ[ό? - - | - - ὠικοδ]όμησαν, τὴν Ῥήνειαν ὥρισαν αν - - | - - ἐδάνεισαν 𐅄TTTTΔΔ ἐπιδε[κάτοις τόκοις πέντε ἔτη, ὥστε ἀπο]διδόναι τοὺ]ς δανεισαμένους 𐆖TTTXXXΔ[ΔΔ, τό τε ἀρχαῖον καὶ τοὺς τόκους ὧν | ἐδα]νείσαντο. χρόνος ἄρχει Μεταγειτνιὼν μὴν Ἀθήν[ησιν ἄρχοντος Κράτητος (B.C. 434–433), | ἐν] Δήλωι δὲ Βουφονιὼν μὴν ἄρχοντος Εὐπτέρους.

§ 1 appears to refer to the recovery of loans due to the temple; cp. no. 104.

§ 2 refers partly to the measuring and marking of the boundary of certain sacred lands and properties; and the lending of moneys. A few figures will prove Böckh's restorations true. Capital lent 9 tal. 20 dr. = 54020 dr.; which at $\frac{1}{10}$th interest, ἐπιδεκ[άτοις τόκοις] (= 10 p. c.) yields 5402 dr. yearly. For five years this equals 27010 dr.: add capital, and you get 81030 dr. = 13 tal. 3030 dr.

§ 3. Lines 16–20. [Τὴν γῆν τὴν ἐν Δήλωι τὴν | ἱ]ερὰν ἐμίσθωσαν καὶ τοὺς κήπους καὶ τὰς οἰκίας καὶ [- - δέκα ἔτη. χρόνος ἄρ-| χ]ει Ποσιδηϊὼν μὴν Ἀθήνησι ἄρχοντος Κράτητος (B.C. 434–433), ἐ[ν Δήλωι δὲ Ποσιδηϊὼν μ|ὴ]ν ἄρχοντος Εὐπτέρους, ὥστε ἀποδιδόναι τὴμ μίσθωσ[ιν ἁπάντων τούτων τοὺς με|μ]ισθωμένους κατὰ τὰς ξυγγραφάς. μισθώσεως κεφ[άλαιον τοῦ μὲν πρώτου ἔτους] | 𐅄HHΔ⊓⊦, τῶν δὲ ἄλλων ἐτῶν 𐅄HHH - -

In § 3 the leases of temple lands in Delos are recorded, in § 4 the lease of temple lands in Rheneia. The 'Holy' Month is known to answer to the latter part of Gamelion and the earlier part of Anthesterion in the Attic calendar (see Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén. v. pp. 29, 30).

§ 5. Lines 24–25. Τὴν θάλατταν τὴν πο - - | - - τὴν ἐν Ῥηνείαι ἐμίσθωσαν δέκα [ἔτη . . .]

This is the lease of a fishery belonging to the Temple: so Strabo speaks (p. 642) of the fisheries of the Ephesian Artemis; cp. Pausanias (i. 38. 1) about the salt streams called Ῥειτοί sacred to the Eleusinian deities.

From the identity of the names of the mover &c. it follows that this and the following Treaty were concluded on the same day. Kallias would seem to be the same person who moved the decree no. 49. For the subject, see Thuk. iii. 86, who speaks of the first interference of Athens in Sicilian affairs B.C. 427: οἱ γὰρ Συρακόσιοι καὶ Λεοντῖνοι ἐς πόλεμον ἀλλήλοις καθέστασαν. ξύμμαχοι δὲ . . . . . τοῖς Λεοντίνοις . . . Ῥηγῖνοι κατὰ τὸ ξυγγενὲς Λεοντίνων. ἐς οὖν τὰς Ἀθήνας πέμψαντες

Our inscription probably gives the 'old standing treaty' referred to by Thukydides (see Grote, ch. 57). The Korkyraian expedition excited among the Sicilians the hopes of an Athenian alliance, and Korkyra itself was regarded by the Athenians as a convenient stepping-stone to Sicily (Thuk. i. 36, 44). Hence the embassies with which this and the following inscription are concerned. We see from Thuk. vi. 44–46 that the Rhegines did not receive the Athenians in a very friendly way on the occasion of the Sicilian expedition, although they were supposed to be ἐπιτήδειοι.

The restoration of the number of the prytany in line 22 is uncertain; πρώτης, τρίτης, ὀγδόης, and ἐνάτης are all possible so far as space goes, but Thukydides' account puts the last two out of court.

This expedition is described by Thuk. i. 45. 51. The arrival of the reinforcements in the nick of time just prevented a disaster. The story is misrepresented by Plutarch (Pericl. 29). Perikles would doubtless have sent a larger fleet at first, but he desired to avoid an appearance of aggression. Thukydides names Andokides son of Leogoras (who would be not the orator, but perhaps his grandfather) as if he were Glaukon's only colleague. The marble (for the restorations adopted, see Müller-Strübing, loc. cit.) names Glaukon, Metagenes, and Drakontides. Either Thukydides makes a slip, or Andokides was unofficially attached to the expedition, or, again, the name Ἀνδοκίδης is a manuscript corruption of Δρακοντίδης. If so, since the name Leogoras seems to belong to the family of Andokides, that name also must have been wrongly inserted in the text of Thukydides. The Drakontides who figures afterwards as one of the 'Thirty tyrants' (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. § 2) was Ἀφιδναῖος, and cannot be identified with the present general.

Athenian victory before Potidaia: B. C. 432.

The marble is in the British Museum. Στοιχηδόν. Gr. Inscr. in the Br. Museum, xxxvii; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. 442; Kaibel, Epigr. Gr. no. 21; E. Hoffmann, Sylloge Epigr. 34; Bury, Hist. of Gr. p. 393. The first three lines of the poem are past restoration: the λ in l. 7, which Kaibel supposes to have been misread, is quite certain, and the restoration ἔλ[υθεν] = ἐλύθησαν is due to the kindness of Dr. Otto Benndorf. Originally the marble was surmounted with a relief representing a battle scene. Since Fauvel first copied the inscription, several letters have been lost, which are here given in brackets in lines 2, 3.

The restorations are from the earlier editors, and are pretty certain. The poem is in three separate portions, and closely accords with the narrative of Thuk. i. 63: ἐπειδὴ δὲ διὰ τάχους ἡ νίκη τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐγίγνετο . . . . πάλιν ἐπανεχώρουν ἐς τὸ τεῖχος . . . . . μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην τροπαῖον ἔστησαν οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι, καὶ τοὺς νεκροὺς ὑποσπόνδους ἀπέδοσαν τοῖς Ποτειδαιάταις· ἀπέθανον δὲ Ποτειδαιατῶν μὲν καὶ τῶν ξυμμάχων ὀλίγῳ ἐλάσσους τριακοσίων, Ἀθηναίων δὲ αὐτῶν πεντήκοντα καὶ ἑκατὸν καὶ Καλλίας ὁ στρατηγός.

PART III

PELOPONNESIAN WAR

B.C. 431–404.

55 [36].

The Plague of B. C. 430–429.

On a statue-base found in situ during the excavation of the Propylaia: cp. Ross, Arch. Aufs. i. 188; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 335; Harrison and Verrall, Mythology and Monuments of Ancient Athens, pp. 389 foll.; Frazer, Pausanias, vol. ii. pp. 277 foll.; Löwy, Inschr. Griech. Bildhauer, 53; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 585; Lolling, Κατάλογος τοῦ ἐν Ἀθ. Ἐπιγρ. Μουσείου, i. p. 66, no. 96; Michel, Recueil, 1020.

Ἀθηναῖοι τῆι Ἀθηναίαι τῆι Ὑγιείαι.
Πύρρος ἐποίησεν Ἀθηναῖος.

Plutarch shall tell us the current story of this statue (Pericl. 13): τὰ δὲ Προπύλαια τῆς ἀκροπόλεως ἐξειργάσθη μὲν ἐν πενταετίᾳ (B. C. 437–433) Μνησικλέους ἀρχιτεκτονοῦντος· τύχη δὲ θαυμαστὴ συμβᾶσα περὶ τὴν οἰκοδομίαν ἐμήνυσε τὴν θεὸν οὐκ ἀποστατοῦσαν, ἀλλὰ συνεφαπτομένην τοῦ ἔργου καὶ συνεπιτελοῦσαν. ὁ γὰρ ἐνεργότατος καὶ προθυμότατος τῶν τεχνιτῶν ἀποσφαλεὶς ἐξ ὕψους ἔπεσε καὶ διέκειτο μοχθηρῶς, ὑπὸ τῶν ἰατρῶν ἀπεγνωσμένος. ἀθυμοῦντος δὲ τοῦ Περικλέους ἡ θεὸς ὄναρ φανεῖσα συνέταξε θεραπείαν, ἣ χρώμενος ὁ Περικλῆς ταχὺ καὶ ῥᾳδίως ἰάσατο τὸν ἄνθρωπον. ἐπὶ τούτῳ δὲ καὶ τὸ χαλκοῦν ἄγαλμα τῆς Ὑγιείας Ἀθηνᾶς ἀνέστησεν ἐν ἀκροπόλει παρὰ τὸν βωμόν, ὃς καὶ πρότερον ἦν, ὡς λέγουσιν. But there are grave reasons against accepting this picturesque story, one being that the basis is so placed that it cannot have been set up while the Propylaia were still building. It was perhaps set up after the beginning of the Peloponnesian War, in commemoration of the cessation of the plague of B. C. 430–429

(P. Wolters, Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. xvi (1891), pp. 153 foll.). Pliny, N. H. xxii. 44, gives a quite different account, connecting the accident with the building of a temple, evidently the Parthenon, and with another statue, that of the 'Splanchnoptes' by Styppax (cf. xxxiv. 81); but in xxxiv. 80 he mentions statues of Hygieia and Minerva by Pyrrhos (not Hygieia Minerva, see Journ. Hellen. Stud. xix. p. 167). Perikles, if Plutarch's account is to be trusted, fulfilled his vow in the name of the Athenian people.

Lykia after the Expedition of Melesandros: about B. C. 430–420.

Line 1. Taken verbatim from the 'Simonidean' epigram εἰς τοὺς μετὰ Κίμωνος στρατευσαμένους ἐν Κύπρῳ Ἀθηναίους, ὅτε τὰς ρ' ναῦς τῶν Φοινίκων ἔλαβεν, i. e. at the battle of the Eurymedon (Anthol. Pal. vii. 296, cp. Diod. xi. 62. 3).

Line 5. The name of the Harpagid is unfortunately mutilated, but there is little doubt that it corresponded to the Lykian name Kärąi, which may have been represented in Greek by some such name as Karmis or Karnis. This dynast is known from his coins (Brit. Mus. Catal., Lycia, &c., pp. xxxv and 22) to have been ruler of Xanthos and possibly also of Antiphellos. The most important of his coin-types is a head of Athena (cp. l. 7), and the tiara on the conventional satrap's head which serves as his portrait is sometimes decorated with a laurel-wreath. We know that the Harpagid of our inscription was a βασιλεύς.

Line 6. πάλην, the traditional reading, is perhaps to be preferred to παλήν for βαλήν or βαλλήν = βασιλεύς, cf. Aischylos, Pers. 660; it is true that χερσί is otiose, but the style of the whole poem cannot be called subtle.

Line 8. βασιλέας with synizesis for βασιλείας.

Line 10. For the feat compare no. 38. The Arkadians must have been mercenaries. Probably the poet originally wrote κτάν' rather than κτεῖνεν.

Line 12. Καρίκας is a name also known from coins (Brit. Mus. Catal., Lycia, &c., pp. xxxvi and 23) as having belonged to a dynast (Käriga) of Xanthos and Antiphellos; but as this dynast is later than Kärąi, he cannot be identified with the ancestor mentioned in the poem.

All the evidence points to the dating of this monument, or rather of the events which made its hero's fame, shortly after the revolt of Samos. The Lykians appear as tributaries of Athens in the quota-list of B. C. 446–445, but are absent in the practically complete list of B. C. 441–440. In B. C. 430–429 came the disastrous expedition of Melesandros into Lykia (Thuk. ii. 69; the name of this general can be deciphered in the Lykian text of the monument, together with other names such as Artaxerxes, Tissaphernes, Ionians, Spartans, Athenians). These events point to the successful reaction of the Lykian rulers against the Athenian influence which had set in with Kimon's victory at the Eurymedon. Benndorf notes acutely that the irony of this reaction is expressed by the borrowing of the initial verse from the very epigram which celebrated Kimon's victory.

This has been connected with the victory at Kekryphaleia (Thuk. i. 105); but as it has the four-line sigma Haussoullier, followed by Dittenberger, is more probably right in connecting it with the events described by Thukydides at the end of his second book. The stop after Πελοποννησίων is on the original.

The circumstances indicated in this inscription conform to what we know of the latter half of the year of the archonship of Epameinon, whose name is of the right length for the gap in line 3. Some of the restorations however, especially those of ll. 17 foll., must be regarded as very uncertain. Supposing them to be justified, we may note that the ships here mentioned are not part of a naval expedition, but transports for a land force. The decree therefore does not refer to the expedition of Kleïppides (Thuk. iii. 3) but to reinforcements which it was intended to send him. These reinforcements, owing to the threatening of Attika by the enemy, did not start until the end of September (Thuk. iii. 18). By this time, apparently, the treasury was getting empty, the money from the last payment of tribute having been exhausted, so that the expenses of the new expedition had to be met by a loan from the deme-treasuries. For the trieropoioi, a commission of ten elected by the Council, see Arist. ᾽Αθ. Πολ. 46. 1.

It was not usual at Athens to record on stone such measures as we find here, unless circumstances lent them some permanent interest (cp. no. 49). What were the circumstances in the present instance? The answer is given by Wilhelm's discovery, the publication of which in his work on Attic inscriptions he has kindly allowed us so far to anticipate. The lower part of the stone bore a decree (C. I. A. i. 82) in honour of some person, presumably for services in connexion with the events to which these measures relate. We reproduce the text of the lower fragment (partly restored), merely noting that the honour may be either citizenship or proxenia, and that there is but little lost between the stones.

A fourth Decree must have originally come at the end, passed while Φαίνιππος ἐγραμμάτευε (see heading), i. e. B. C. 424–423 (decree in Thuk. iv. 118), when all these four documents were ordered to be inscribed together.

Methone remained faithful to Athens throughout the Peloponnesian War (Thuk. iv. 129 ; vi. 7) : after Aigospotamoi the alliance was suspended for a time, but in B. C. 364 Timotheos once more brought Methone over to the side of Athens (Deinarch. in Dem. § 14), until in 353 it was forced to yield to the siege of Philip (Grote, ch. 87). Doubtless it was to the advantage of Methone to secure freedom of movement by land and sea by alliance with the maritime power of Athens ; to Athens also Methone was a position of the greatest importance, as commanding the Thermaic Gulf.

The first Decree refers to the new assessment made in the previous year, probably B. C. 429–428 (cp. Köhler, Urkunden, p. 138), and proposes for the Methonaians (in § 1) to pay no tribute, but only the $\frac{1}{60}$th due as ἀπαρχή (see no. 33). In § 2 their arrears of φόρος are excused, and a special arrangement (τάξις) is to be made about them. The stelai mentioned are the registers of debts owing to the treasury. In § 3 envoys are to be sent to Perdikkas, requesting him to give the Methonaians freedom to pursue their traffic in any direction they please by land or sea, and not to set them limits on the coast (ὁρίσασθαι), whether N. or S. of Methone, which they might not pass.

§ 4. If he declines this suggestion, Perdikkas and the Methonaians are to send envoys to Athens by next Dionysia (= March 427) with full powers to settle their differences. If the Athenian forces now at Poseidion report favourably of Perdikkas' behaviour in these respects, he will earn the goodwill of Athens.

§ 5. The proposed relief is voted to the Methonaians. Accordingly, in the quota-list for B. C. 427–426 or 426–425 (C. I. A. i. 257) the Methonaians are registered among the πόλεις αἳ αὐτὴν τὴν ἀπαρχὴν ἀπήγαγον.

Second Decree: B. C. 426. § 1. The Methonaians are permitted to import corn from Byzantion, and the Athenian ἐπίσκοποι or φύλακες there (see no. 32) are to help them; and the ship they charter is not to be regarded as contraband.

§ 2. ἐν τῷ τεταγμένῳ ὄντων, 'let them stand to their post,' 'be in readiness,' cp. Xen. Cyrop. vi. 2. 37, and no. 123, l. 48.

§ 3. Two sets of envoys had been sent to Perdikkas, and were expected back shortly: Leogoras may be the father of Andokides the orator.

§ 4. Envoys from other cities seem to have been present with demands. The Athenians promise immediate attention to the matter: but the βουλή just now was sitting down at the docks (Böckh, Seeurkunden, pp. 171 and 466) on business connected with the fleet; that ended, the prytanes will call the ἐκκλησία together, and this matter shall be the 'first order of the day.'

Athenian Kleruchy in Lesbos: B. C. 427.

Five fragments of marble (στοιχηδόν), brought together in C. I. A. iv (1), p. 22, no. 96; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 29; Roberts-Gardner, ii. 16. See J. Stahl, Rh. Mus. 38, p. 145; H. Swoboda, Serta Harteliana, pp. 28 foll.

The heading (frag. c) is badly mutilated. Fragments a and d proceed:

. . δί]καs διδόν[τα]s πρὸs Ἀθην[αίων τοὺs ἐπισκόπουs καὶ]τὰ τὰs χσυ[μβο]λὰs [τ]αὶ ἦσα[ν πρὸs Μυτιληναίουs. κ]αὶ τοῖs κλη[ρού]χοις, [τ]όσα ἐπω[λήθη ὄντα ἐπὶ τῶν ἀγ]ρῶν πρὶν ἀ[πο]δοθῆναι αὐτοῖs [τὴγ γῆν ὑπὸ τῶν στ]ρατηγῶν [καὶ] τῶν στρατιωτῶν, [ἀποδοῦναι Μυτιλην]αίων τοὺs ἔχονταs. καὶ ἀναγράφ[σαι ταῦτα τὸγ γρα]μματέα τῆs βουλῆs ἐ' στήληι λιθ[ίνηι καὶ καταθ]εῖναι ἐμ πόλει τέλεσι τοῖs⟨σ⟩ [Μυτιληναίων(?) . . ταῦ]τα μὲν ἀναγράφσαι καὶ κ[αλέσαι τὴν πρεσβείαν τ]ῶν Μυτιληναίων ἐπὶ χ[σένια ἐs τὸ πρυτανεῖον ἐs] αὔριον· τοῖs δὲ κλ[ηρούχουs . . . . . .] γῆs ἀνταποδο - - -

Fragments b and e are too seriously mutilated to repay repetition here.

After the reduction of Lesbos, the Athenians sent a kleruchy to the island. The Lesbians cultivated the land themselves, paying two minae a year as rent for each kleros to the owners. It has generally been supposed that the Athenian kleruchs were absentee landlords; but this inscription, regulating suits at law between the kleruchs and their Mytilenaian tenants, disproves the supposition. The Athenians were resident, but, as Swoboda suggests, were probably required to reside in the towns and act as a garrison for the island. The Mytilenaians, if the restoration in line 15 is correct, still retained the power to send an embassy in their own name, in spite of subjection to Athenian governors (line 7); and they asked for the regulation of legal procedure in disputes between themselves and the resident Athenians.

The procedure was accordingly decreed to follow on the lines of the ξυμβολαί into which, as a free and independent state, Mytilene had formerly entered with Athens.

Repayment of moneys borrowed from the Temple-treasures: B. C. 426–423.

On eight fragments found at different times on the Akropolis. Στοιχηδόν. Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 273; cp. Rangabé, Antiq. Hell. 116–117, 373; Böckh, Kleine Schriften, vi. pp. 72, 89, and 211; Dittenberger, Sylloge[1], 29; Michel, Recueil, 561.

This document shows that during the four years B.C. 426–423 the war expenses were so heavy that the ordinary income of the state (from φόρος and the other sources of revenue) was not sufficient to meet them. Recourse was therefore had to the accumulating χρήματα τῆς Ἀθηναίας and also τῶν ἄλλων θεῶν. But it had been enacted B.C. 435 (no. 49, § 11) that these treasures should not be voted away for state-purposes without an indemnity-bill (ἄδεια); and moreover they were at least in form dedicated to the gods. Accordingly they are here 'borrowed' at a nominal interest. It will be remembered that Perikles (Thuk. ii. 13) speaks of the ἱερὰ χρήματα as all being available when necessary. In B.C. 422 the peace of Nikias brought relief to the Athenian exchequer, and about B.C. 420 the debt to the gods was repaid with the interest thereon, as here set forth. The interest is shown by Böckh to be calculated at the rate of $\frac{1}{3\,6\,0}$ of a drachma for every mina per diem. The normal rate of interest in Greece was τόκος ἐπὶ δραχμῇ, i.e. a drachma per mina per month, or twelve per cent. per annum. The formal interest payable to Athena was a tithe of this, or $1\frac{1}{5}$ per cent., i.e. $\frac{1}{1\,0}$ of a drachma per month, or (reckoning thirty days to the month) $\frac{1}{3\,6\,0}$ of a drachma per diem. This is not the place to do more than refer the reader to the calculations of Rangabé, l. c. i. pp. 179 foll., and Böckh in his essay (l. c.). Comp. also Billeter, Geschichte des Zinsfusses, p. 42. We shall ask the reader to take for granted their accuracy, and will merely dwell upon the historical interest of the document.

The interest repaid together with the capital is for four years, which contained respectively 355, 354, 384, 355 = 1448 days: deduct from this all the days of this quadriennium which had passed before the loan, together with the day on which the loan was received, and you get the number of days for which interest was calculated. The summer of B.C. 426 was a busy one for Athens. Laches was continuing the operations in Sicily (Thuk. iii. 86. 90); Demosthenes and Prokles (ibid. 91. 94) sailed round Peloponnese and attacked Aitolia: Nikias, with a fleet of thirty sail (ibid. 91), made descents upon Melos and Boiotia and Lokris, Hipponikos and Eurymedon marching at the same time on Tanagra: also Pythodoros is named (ibid. 115) as succeeding Laches in Sicily during the following winter. None of these στρατηγοί is named in our inscription: nor is Hippokrates, whom it does specify, named by Thukydides this year. But Thukydides (iv. 66) tells us that twice every year the Athenians invaded Megaris, and that in B.C. 424 (ibid.) Hippokrates son of Ariphron was commanding there. Probably he did the same in 426, and, being near at hand, was the στρατηγός who (in the name of all the ten colleagues) signed the receipt for the Treasures of the goddess. As the Attic year began with Hekatombaion (= July), and the prytany contained thirty-five or thirty-six days, this payment was made towards the beginning of August, after the fleets for the Peloponnese and for Melos had sailed.

The payment was made in October, i. e. after the taking of Pylos: probably Demosthenes still kept cruising in the neighbourhood of the Peloponnese. Observe that he is not himself called στρατηγῷ: cp. Thuk. iv. 2, ὄντι ἰδιώτῃ. The words ἐκ τοῦ Ὀπισθ. are to be understood in every payment throughout this inscription.

There is little doubt about Nikias' name: see fourth payment in the first year of no. 70. The payment was made in the early summer of B. C. 424, apparently towards the cost of the expedition against Kythera (Thuk. iv. 53).

This year, the ninth of the war, was one of severe strain upon Athens, owing to the successes of Brasidas and the defection of the Thrakian towns.

Then follows (1) a statement of a loan from the Treasury of Athena Nike, made in the last year of the quadriennium, amount unknown, the stone being broken; (2) fragmentary accounts of loans made in the same year from the treasures of 'The Other Gods.' We gather that B.C. 423–422 was a year which seriously taxed the Athenian resources.

Μεσσάνιοι καὶ Ναυπάκτιοι ἀνέθεν Διὶ
Ὀλυμπίωι δεκάταν ἀπὸ τῶμ πολεμίων.
Παιώνιος ἐποίησε Μενδαῖος·
καὶ τἀκρωτήρια ποιῶν ἐπὶ τὸν ναὸν ἐνίκα.

Pausanias (v. 26. 1) tells the story of the statue thus:— Μεσσηνίων δὲ τῶν Δωριέων οἱ Ναύπακτόν ποτε (B.C. 455, Thuk. i. 103) παρὰ Ἀθηναίων λαβόντες ἄγαλμα ἐν Ὀλυμπίᾳ Νίκης ἐπὶ τῷ κίονι ἀνέθεσαν. τοῦτό ἐστιν ἔργον μὲν Μενδαίου Παιωνίου, πεποίηται δὲ "ἀπὸ ἀνδρῶν πολεμίων," ὅτε Ἀκαρνᾶσι καὶ Οἰνιάδαις, ἐμοὶ δοκεῖν, ἐπολέμησαν. [Cf. Paus. iv. 25]. Μεσσήνιοι δὲ αὐτοὶ λέγουσι τὸ ἀνάθημά σφισιν ἀπὸ τοῦ ἔργου τοῦ ἐν τῇ Σφακτηρίᾳ νήσῳ μετὰ Ἀθηναίων, καὶ οὐκ ἐπιγράψαι τὸ ὄνομα τῶν πολεμίων σφᾶς τῷ ἀπὸ Λακεδαιμονίων δείματι, ἐπεὶ Οἰνιαδῶν γε καὶ Ἀκαρνάνων οὐδένα ἔχειν φόβον. There was therefore a twofold tradition about its origin. There was also a similar monument dedicated by the Messenians and Naupaktians at Delphoi, which Pausanias does not mention, but of which remains have been found. Pausanias' own conjecture, putting the date back to before the middle of the century, must be unhesitatingly rejected, on account of the style of the statue, which, it may be added, must have been set up after the completion of the temple (about the 83rd Olympiad). The argument of the Messenians as to the phrasing of the epigram is refuted by the evidence of many other dedicatory inscriptions, and has every appearance of being a popular invention. Nevertheless it is exceedingly probable that the monument actually does refer to the affairs of Pylos. As Pomtow has shown, the reference must be either to Demosthenes' expedition with 200 Messenians and 60 Attic archers (Thuk. iii. 105 and 107) and the victories at Olpai and Idomene, where great spoil was acquired (winter 426–425), or to the help rendered by Messenians to Athens in the affair of Pylos (April to June 425), when they sent a garrison from Naupaktos to Pylos and plundered Lakonia (Thuk. iv. 41; Diod. xii. 63). The old inhabitants of Naupaktos were a sea-faring folk, and it was probably they who supplied the Messenian pirate-ships (Thuk. iv. 9). Just as two dedications were made by the Athenians, in the same year B.C. 425, of a bronze statue of Athena Nike (C. I. A. iv (2), 198 c) for the Ambrakiote war—see no. 147—and of a bronze Nike for the success at Sphakteria (Paus. iv. 36. 6), so the Messenians and Naupaktians may have made two dedications, one at Delphoi for the successes at Olpai and Idomene, another at Olympia for their share in the campaign of Pylos. These monuments were probably set up immediately; there was no reason for delaying the commemoration until the peace of Nikias.

The artist's inscription is in the Ionic dialect (if we except the word ναός), since he was a native of Mende (not in Pallene, but the less known city) in Thrace above Ainos, where the Ionic dialect was in use. In subscribing his name, he takes the opportunity of recording that he was the successful competitor in designing the ornamentation for the ridge of the temple-roof at Olympia (cp. also Paus. v. 10. 2). Line 4 is poetically phrased and in choriambic rhythm. On this same pedestal, nearly three centuries later, the Messenians recorded their peaceful victory over the Lakedaimonians in the arbitration of the Milesians: no. 200 (First Edition).

Next followed two decrees of the Senate and People, concerning the assessment of Tribute, both passed in the prytany of the tribe Aigeïs and in the archonship of Stratokles. At the end was a list of the Tributary States with the sums payable that year, beginning with the Islands (νησιωτικὸς φόρος) and ending with the Thrakian allies (Θράικιος φόρος), between which there came (but in what order is doubtful) the Ionian-Karian and Hellespontine tribute (Ἰωνικὸς φόρος, Ἑλλησπόντιος).

The lowest part of the stele has been found by Dr. Wilhelm (Jahresh. des Oesterr. Inst. i., Beiblatt, p. 43) in a large block consisting of three pieces, one of them being C. I. A. i. 544. This fragment reads . 𐅅𐅅𐅅𐅅𐅄 - - ; and the numeral in the vacant space on the left must have been 500 or 1000. The latter is improbable, and we may therefore take the sum to have been a little more than 960 talents.

This document is the only extant example of its kind, and it is unfortunate that it is not entire. But, quite apart from the fragment identified by Wilhelm, a comparison with the Quota-lists, nos. 33, 43, 48, will show that this assessment largely exceeded the previous payments. The tribute from the Hellespont is nearly tripled; that of the Islands is about doubled. It is well known that Grote refused to believe in the duplication of the tribute, which is asserted by Aischines (F. L. p. 337), Andokides (de Pace, 9), Pseudo-Andokides (contr. Alcib. 11), and less strongly by Plutarch (Aristides, 24). Whether or no it should be ascribed to Alkibiades' influence may be questioned; but the fact of a large increase no longer need be doubted, nor that it was the result of that ambitious policy which misled Athens after Perikles' death (B. C. 429). Pedroli (p. 204) calculates the total to have been about 1000 talents, and not 1200 as stated by Andokides, or 1300 as by Plutarch.

Observe the method of making the new assessments. The process closely resembled the method adopted by the Athenians in the revision of their laws, whether at the annual revision described by Demosthenes (adv. Timocr. 706 foll.), or at the extraordinary revision B. C. 403 (see Andok. de Myst. 83). In other words, the assessment of tribute was not managed by a ψήφισμα of the people, nor by a committee appointed by it, but was effected with the same solemnity as an alteration of the laws. First, the ἐκκλησία voted that a reassessment should be made. Next, the prytanes were bound, under penalties of fines (e, f) to prepare a προβούλευμα and bring the matter before the ἐκκλησία by a certain time. Thirdly, the ἐκκλησία had to appoint two commissioners (τάκται, c) for each tribute-district. The tributaries having prepared statements of their liability to tribute, the duty of the τάκται was probably to examine into and if necessary revise these statements. On the basis of the schedules thus prepared, the Council imposed the tribute. (In a few cases, states seem to have been exempted from the usual course; see p. 81.) During the deliberations of the Council on this matter, the several tributaries were entitled to represent their own interests (cp. no. 40, ll. 26, 27). Possibly the rubric πόλεις ἃς οἱ ἰδιῶται ἐνέγραφσαν φόρον φέρειν refers to something of this kind; but it is by no means certain (see Busolt, op. cit. p. 210, note 1). From the decision of the Council, there was an appeal to the people; such cases of appeal were brought before the δικαστήριον by the εἰσαγωγεῖς (h and k; cp. Ἀθ. πολ. 52: κληροῦσι δὲ καὶ εἰσαγωγέας πέντε ἄνδρας, οἳ τὰς ἐμμήνους εἰσάγουσι δίκας, δυοῖν φυλαῖν ἕκαστος). The decision of the people was final. Many points in the procedure just described are very uncertain; for the latest discussion see the article by Bannier cited above.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B. C. 425.

The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. 259: cp. Köhler, p. 76; Michel, Recueil, 562.

This list must be earlier than B. C. 424, when many of the cities here named under the Θρᾴκιος φόρος were seduced by Brasidas from alliance with Athens. The sums however show that they are calculated upon a larger scale than that shown in nos. 33, 43, and 48; accordingly they may be the first list drawn up after the assessment of B. C. 425. In the later lists it seems that all the ten Hellenotamiai were named; in no. 43 only their foreman is named.

Inventories of the Treasures in the Parthenon: B. C. 422–421 to 419–418.

Στοιχηδόν. Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 170–173; Michel, Recueil, 811. In four fragments, three of which are at Athens; the first and longest fragment was once said (see Böckh, C. I. G. 139) to exist among the Elgin marbles; but it is not so, and the fragment is now lost. Comp. Böckh, Staatshaush.[3] ii. pp. 142 foll.; Michaelis, Der Parthenon, p. 296.

In B.C. 438 the Parthenon was dedicated to serve as the central point of the national festival, and as the bank of the state. The building contained three treasure-houses. At the East you entered the Pronaos (πρόνεως), in which was stored a large collection of sacred objects, chiefly of silver. From the Pronaos a massive door opened into the Hekatompedos (or cella), so called from its length: here were kept a number of chaplets (στέφανοι) and other objects, chiefly golden. Back to back with the Hekatompedos and without any connecting door was the western chamber, entered from the West, the Parthenon proper; this name was in use for the chamber before the statue by Pheidias came to be known by the name of Parthenos. In addition the Opisthodomos or back cella of the Old Temple of Athena, ruined by the Persians, had been rebuilt before the Parthenon, and in this the money-treasure of the state was kept, with other more sacred funds (see no. 49). Herodotos (viii. 51) speaks of treasures being kept on the Akropolis by the ταμίαι τοῦ ἱροῦ. And for some time before the Parthenon was dedicated in B.C. 438 there had been a board of ten ταμίαι τῶν ἱερῶν χρημάτων τῆς Ἀθηναίας elected yearly by lot (one from each tribe) from among the pentakosiomedimnoi. The Panathenaia were celebrated yearly on a small scale; but it was every fourth year (the third of each Olympiad) that the grand festival took place. Accordingly, the accounts of these Treasurers, although audited yearly, were inscribed for a πεντετηρίς at a time, ἐκ Παναθηναίων ἐς Παναθήναια. The blocks containing these inventories have been found at various times on the Akropolis, and they present an almost complete series from B.C. 434 down to the fall of Athens in 404 B.C. These accounts refer only to the treasures in kind in the Pronaos, Hekatompedos, and Parthenon, giving separate inventories of each collection year by year (see Kirchhoff, C.I.A. i. 117 foll.). We have given specimens of each kind in nos. 66, 67, and 71, of which the last two are in the British Museum. It is comparatively easy to restore the lacunae in these inventories, since the same objects recur in each. Thukydides reveals his familiarity with the system by which the Athenian treasures were kept, in the words he puts into the mouth of Perikles (ii. 13). In that review of the resources of Athens, after the tribute and the coined money in the Opisthodomos, we hear of the ἀναθήματα in the Pronaos, Hekatompedos, and Parthenon: χωρὶς δὲ χρυσίου ἀσήμου καὶ ἀργυρίου ἔν τε ἀναθήμασιν ἰδίοις καὶ δημοσίοις καὶ ὅσα ἱερὰ σκεύη περί τε τὰς πομπὰς καὶ τοὺς ἀγῶνας καὶ σκῦλα Μηδικὰ καὶ εἴ τι τοιουτότροπον, οὐκ ἐλάσσονος ἢ πεντακοσίων ταλάντων. Next he alludes to the treasures of the 'other gods' (see no. 49): ἔτι δὲ καὶ τὰ ἐκ τῶν ἄλλων ἱερῶν προσετίθει χρήματα οὐκ ὀλίγα, οἷς χρήσεσθαι αὐτούς. Lastly, he mentions the gold plates which formed part of the chryselephantine statue itself: καὶ ἦν πάνυ ἐξείργωνται πάντων, καὶ αὐτῆς τῆς θεοῦ τοῖς περικειμένοις χρυσίοις κ.τ.λ. The statue is not included in the regular lists of the treasurers: Köhler (Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth., 1879, p. 89) proves that a separate inventory of the statue, at least from 385 B.C., was kept in the temple, and the treasurers contented themselves with certifying every year that the statue and its belongings were all safe κατὰ τὴν στήλην. The inventories, after the fall of Athens 404 B.C., reveal the losses which the treasuries had sustained; and it was reserved for the orator Lykurgos to endeavour to rearrange and make the best of the treasures still remaining.

The articles from Lesbos (40–44) are not found in the earlier treasure-lists of B.C. 434–432, and probably made their way into the treasury in consequence of the Lesbian affair of B.C. 428–427.

Alliance between Athens and the Bottiaians : about B. C. 421.

Six fragments of marble found at various times on the Akropolis. Στοιχηδόν. Lolling, Δελτίον ἀρχαιολ. 1890, p. 38; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. iv (1), p. 142; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 36; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. i. p. 65, no. 82 (xv).

The first six lines are so badly broken that they admit of no restoration.

Oath to be taken by both parties.

A rider proposed by Eukrates, of which only a few words remain, followed; and finally there was the list of the cities, of which Καλίνδοι[α], Τριποι[αί], and [Κ]εμακαί (?) are preserved.

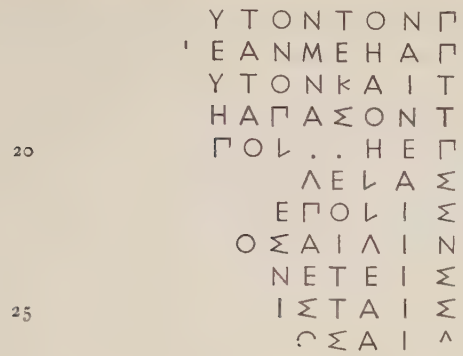

The Bottiaians had revolted from Athens in B.C. 432–431 (Thuk. i. 57, 58). Just ten years later (Thuk. v. 18) we find an agreement between Athens and Sparta to the effect that Spartolos (an important Bottiaian city) was to be allowed a free choice as to entering the Athenian confederacy. It was probably about the same time that the Athenians came to the agreement with other cities of the district which is recorded in this inscription. The treaty, it may be noted, is made separately with each Bottiaian city.

Alliance between Athens, Argos, Mantineia, and Elis: B.C. 420.

A fragment discovered near the Dionysiac theatre. Στοιχηδόν. C. I. A. iv (1), 46 b, p. 14; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. p. 76, no. 87 (xviii); Roberts-Gardner, ii. 20; cp. Kirchhoff in Hermes, xii. 368 (cp. 472); Reinach, Traité d'Épigr. p. 331; Herbst, Hermes, xxv. 374; Hude, ibid. xxvii. 152.

Part of the original monument copied by Thuk. v. 47. We have therefore given it in uncials only. In line 1 we recognize the end of the heading, probably [Ἀργείων, Μαντινέων, Ἠλ]ε[ί]ων. There are several slight discrepancies from Thukydides: in line 2 he omits πρὸς ἀλλήλους: in line 7 he inverts the order, giving Ἠλείους καὶ Μαντινέας Ἀθήναζε, and similarly lines 8, 13. In line 24 the stone perhaps read [ἡ μεταπεμφσαμέ]νη τῆι σ[τρατιᾶι χρήσθω, ἡγεμονεύουσα], but the restoration is very uncertain. This fragment does not afford sure ground for estimating the value of our present text of Thukydides. Dr. Wilhelm points out that the importance of the discrepancies, as bearing on this question, has been much exaggerated; that the ancients did not like ourselves lay great stress on verbal accuracy in the transcription of documents; and that even official duplicates do not always exactly tally.

Payments from the Treasures of Athena for public purposes: B. C. 418–415.

Στοιχηδόν. The text is mainly from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 180–183; cp. iv. (1), pp. 32, 70; Rangabé, Ant. Hell. 119–122; Böckh, Staatsh.[3] ii. 24 foll.; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 37; Michel, Recueil, 563; Greek Inscr. in the B. M. no. xxiii (one fragment); cp. B. Keil, Hermes, 29, pp. 50 foll.

First Year: B. C. 418–417.

Demosthenes was perhaps in charge of the Athenian forces which in the summer of B.C. 418 invested Epidauros (Thuk. v. 75. 5), from which, later in the year, he was commissioned to withdraw the garrison (ibid. 80). There seems to have been some delay in the expedition: the grant was recalled, and then paid out again to Euthydemos and the forces in Thrace. For Euthydemos cp. Thuk. v. 19, 24; vii. 16, 69. The general sense of this clause is clear: see next payment. The πάρεδροι are 'assistants,' 'assessors.'

10 Second payment. [Ἐπὶ τῆς - - - ίδος πρυτα]νείας δευτέρας [πρυτανευούσης ʰΕλληνοταμίαις, Ἐρ]γοκλεῖ Ἀριστείδου Βησαιεῖ, | [- - - Αἰχ]σωνεῖ καὶ συνάρχου[σι, καὶ παρέδροις, ʰΙεροκλεῖ Ἀρχε]στράτου Ἀθμονεῖ καὶ συν[ά]ρ[χουσι, τριακοστῆι ʰημέραι] τῆς πρυτανείας π[αρέδομεν - - - χρυσί]ου Κυζικηνοῦ στατῆρ[α]ς XXXX . . | - - - ἀργύριον τούτων - - - || . . τοῦτο τὸ χρυσίον παρέδομ[ε]ν τοῖς τριηράρχοις ἐς Ἄ]ργος τοῖς μετὰ Δημ[οσθένους, φσηφισαμένου τοῦ δήμου τὴν] ἄδειαν - - -

The sum granted was set down first in Kyzikene electrum staters, and then in Attic silver money. The value of the Κυζικηνός in Attic silver at this time is uncertain (see Th. Reinach, Rev. Numism. 1893, pp. 153 foll.). The ἄδεια required by no. 49 B was first voted, and then the Treasurers of Athena paid out the money, without promise of interest or of repayment.

The portion containing most of the fourth year is in the British Museum. The payment was made partly in Kyzikene staters and partly in Attic money (the seven sigmas are interlined as an omission): then the total value (τιμή) was expressed in Attic money. Telephonos' command is unknown.

Loans from the treasure of Athena: First loan. [ʻ]Ελληνοταμίαις καὶ παρέδροις ἐδανείσα[μεν - - -] Ἀριστοκράτει Εὐωνυμεῖ καὶ χσυνάρχουσι, ΓΤΤΤΤ· οὗτοι δ[ὲ ἔδοσαν ἀθλοθέταις ἐς Παναθήναια, Ἀμέμπτω[ι - - - καὶ χ]συνάρχουσι, ἐπὶ τῆς Ἐρεχθηίδος δευτέρας πρυτανευούσ[η]ς, εἰκοστῆι [ʻ]ημέραι τῆς πρυτανείας.

The year according to which the Council held office did not coincide with the ordinary civil year (commencing on Hekatombaion 1st); in this month (on the 28th) the Panathenaia were celebrated, and we see that they coincided more or less with a late date (20th day) in the second prytany. From this it follows that the Council-year began early (about the 3rd) in the month Skirophorion.

Second loan. Ἐπὶ τῆς Κεκροπίδος τετάρτης πρυτανευούσης [ʻ][έκτηι

These soldiers may be those 'sent afterwards' to Melos under Philokrates, see Thuk. v. 116.

Fourth loan. Ἐπὶ τῆς Ἀντιοχίδος ὀγδόης πρυτανευούσης τρίτ[ηι καὶ δεκάτηι τῆς πρυ]τανείας [ʻ]Ελληνοταμίαις καὶ παρέδροις, Ἀριστοκρ[άτ]ει Εὐωνυμεῖ καὶ χσυνάρχουσι, ΗΗΗ· [ʻ]οὗτοι δὲ ἔδοσαν [τῆι ἐν Σικελίαι σ]τρατιᾶι.

These restorations are sufficiently certain: see Thuk. vi. 93 fin., where the wording resembles our inscription, and 94 fin. (300 talents).

Sixth and seventh loans. Ἐπὶ τῆς Ἀντιοχίδος ὀγδόης πρυτανευούσης, δευτέ[ραι καὶ εἰκοστῆι [ʻ]ημέραι τῆς πρυτα]νεία[ς], [ʻ]Ελληνο-

The Hermokopids; their goods confiscated: B. C. 414–413.

Five fragments, relating to the same subject, but not all from one stone: C. I. A. i. 274–277 and iv (1), pp. 35 and 177: comp. Kirchhoff in Jahn's Jahrbücher, 1860, pp. 238 foll.; Monatsber. d. Berl. Ak. 1865, p. 545; Götz, Jahrb. f. Philol. Suppl. viii (1876), pp. 535 foll.; Köhler, Hermes, 23 (1888), p. 396; B. Keil, Hermes, 29 (1894), pp. 45 foll., 31 (1896), pp. 472 foll. For other fragments see Köhler, Hermes (1888), pp. 396 foll.; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 42, 43.

The panic about the mutilation of the Hermai and the rumoured profanation of the mysteries took place B. C. 415 (Thuk. vi. 27 foll.). Many were arrested and imprisoned on suspicion, until Andokides turned 'King's evidence,' and gave what was then considered the true account (Thuk. vi. 60), naming himself and certain others as the perpetrators. He was himself rewarded with free pardon, but the others whom he named were put to death or outlawed, and their goods confiscated. Axiochos, Adeimantos, Euphiletos, Oionias, Panaitios, Polystratos, Kephisodoros were among this number (see Andok. de Myst.): and here is part of the account given by the Poletai of the sale of their property (δημιόπρατα, Ar. Wasps, 659). In all sales of real property, by auction or otherwise, one per cent. was payable to the state by the buyer as an ἐπώνιον (ἑκατοστή; see Gilbert, Gk. Const. Antiquities, p. 351; cp. the Roman centesima rerum venalium). This percentage is also set down in the account.

We add here a fragment relating to the property of Alkibiades :

Fifth Fragment (Köhler, Hermes, xxiii. p. 396, n. 3 ; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. iv (1), p. 178, no. 277 d ; Michel, Recueil, 568 ; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 44 ; the beginning and the percentage column are lost) :

That this last list is part of the inventory of the bedroom-furniture of Alkibiades, we know from Pollux (Onom. x. 36), who says that in the sale of his property there figured a χαμεύνη παράκολλος and a Milesian κλίνη ἀμφικνέφαλλος (sic), such as are here described (lines 5 and 7).

The name of the secretary is written over Ἐπιγένης erased, the lapidary having written the name of the epistates by mistake in the place of the secretary.

The Klazomenians revolted from Athens in B.C. 412 as a consequence of the Sicilian disaster, but were soon reduced, the leaders of the revolt departing to the neighbouring Daphnus (Thuk. viii. 23). Subsequently Astyochos attempted to seize Klazomenai, but was unsuccessful (Thuk. viii. 31). We are told by Thukydides that Astyochos ordered those Klazomenians who were friendly to Athens to leave Klazomenai and settle in Daphnus (ἀνοικίζεσθαι ἐς τὸν Δαφνοῦντα).

From this it would follow that Daphnus was no longer hostile to Athens; in other words, that the leaders of the anti-Athenian party, who had fled to Daphnus, had either been expelled thence, or had come to terms with the Athenians. In any case, the ξυνθῆκαι mentioned in this decree were now entered into. On the return of Alkibiades to Athens (where he spent four months in 408 B.C.), this agreement, which had been entered into by the generals on their own responsibility, was confirmed by the people. Alkibiades, who had been sheltered by Klazomenai two years before when he escaped from Tissaphernes, was in a way repaying a debt by proposing the motion. This inscription must be compared with that relating to Selymbria (no. 77), in which Alkibiades plays a similar part. The present decree is inscribed in Ionic characters—a fresh instance of the use of this alphabet in Athens before the archonship of Eukleides. The actual agreement, which was inscribed on the lower part of the stone, is lost.

The murder of Phrynichos, in 411 B.C., hastened the downfall of the Four Hundred. Thukydides (viii. 92) does not name the assassin, but calls his confederate, who was caught and tortured, Ἀργεῖος ἄνθρωπος: they both belonged to the foreign soldiery in the pay of the oligarchs. Lysias (xiii. in Agorat. 71 ff.) says: Φρυνίχῳ γὰρ . . . κοινῇ Θρασύβουλός τε ὁ Καλυδώνιος καὶ Ἀπολλόδωρος ὁ Μεγαρεὺς ἐπεβούλευσαν· ἐπειδὴ δὲ ἐπετυχέτην αὐτῷ βαδίζοντι, ὁ μὲν Θρασύβουλος τύπτει τὸν Φρύνιχον καὶ καταβάλλει πατάξας, ὁ δὲ Ἀπολλόδωρος οὐχ ἥψατο, ἀλλ' ἐν τούτῳ κραυγὴ γίνεται καὶ ᾤχοντο φεύγοντες. He also cites the decree before us to prove that Agoratos had no share in the deed. Lykurgos (contra Leocr. § 112) speaks thus: Φρυνίχου γὰρ ἀποσφαγέντος νύκτωρ παρὰ τὴν κρήνην τὴν ἐν τοῖς οἰσύοις ὑπὸ Ἀπολλοδώρου καὶ Θρασυβούλου κ.τ.λ. Thukydides says it was done ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ πληθούσῃ, which is not to be understood as a note of time, but of place only, and so does not contradict νύκτωρ (Curtius, Hist. Gr., Eng. trans., iii. p. 453). And Apollodoros may have been a citizen both of Megara and of Argos. This decree was passed in the spring of B.C. 409, i.e. within the first few months of the restored democracy, in the eighth prytany of Hippothontis: see Böckh, Staatshaush.[3] ii. 17.

In § 1, which is the probouleuma, it is proposed to honour Thrasybulos with a crown and public proclamation. The mover, Erasinides, was one of the commanders at Arginusai, and was afterwards put to death (Xen. Hell. i. 5. 16; 6. 29; 7. 2).

§ 2 is proposed in the ἐκκλησία by Diokles, who is not likely to be the Diokles afterwards one of the Thirty (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. 2). Thrasybulos is to have the citizenship and other honours; and a sort of judicial commission is to be appointed to determine the further reward due to him, in the shape of a portion of the confiscated property of Phrynichos. Other honours are decreed to the rest of the conspirators, of whom Agoratos is one.

§ 3. Eudikos proposes that the Council shall investigate the charges of bribery in regard to the reward which was voted to Apollodoros. Those who served on the case and are now at Athens will have to give evidence. We know that Apollodoros, besides being made a citizen (Lysias, xiii. in Agorat. 72), received a grant of land (Id. vii. pro sacr. olea 4). Lysias has been charged with blundering because he says that the gift of the citizenship to both Apollodoros and Thrasybulos was recorded ἐν τῇ αὐτῇ στήλῃ. Probably the fact is that he was thinking not of the present psephisma, but of an earlier one, in which both Apollodoros and Thrasybulos were honoured. Apollodoros attained this honour by bribery and by representing himself as the assassin. Discovery followed, and hence the present decree and the rider of Eudikos. Lysias (xiii. in Agorat. 72) further accuses Agoratos and others of bribing the rhetor so that they might be mentioned in the stelè as euergetai. This rhetor must be Diokles (see Gilbert, loc. cit.). Lysias quotes a further psephisma to prove that he is right in his charge against Agoratos; evidently then the corruption was discovered, and another decree passed to cancel the honours conferred in accordance with § 2 on Diokles' friends.

§ 1. First Decree, passed in the winter of B.C. 410, in honour of Νεοπολιτῶν τῶμ παρὰ Θάσον, a city to be identified with what the Quota-lists (nos. 33, 48) call N. ἐν Θρᾴκῃ or παρ' Ἀντισάραν. It was on the coast just opposite Thasos, of which it was probably a colony. The important town of Cavalla stands on the ancient site.

The Thasians revolted B.C. 412–411 (Thuk. viii. 64), and were reduced afterwards by Thrasybulos in the winter of 408 (Xen. Hell. i. 4. 9; cp. i. 1. 32). Neopolis, their colony upon the opposite shore, remained faithful throughout that interval, and suffered in consequence. This decree in their honour dates from B.C. 410 (winter). Line 7 has been chiselled out, and inscribed again by the same hand as the second decree (§ 4): the Neopolitans were not satisfied with the terms employed concerning them, and in § 4 we shall see that some time (perhaps a year or two) later they procured a change in the wording.

§ 2. The next few lines are too fragmentary to be reproduced; they decreed honorary privileges to the Neopolitans.

§ 3. This decree to be set up at Athens and Neopolis.

The mover is Axiochos, the uncle of Alkibiades. He had been outlawed B.C. 414 (see p. 142), but he probably returned to Athens along with Alkibiades (p. 156). If we may trust Athenaios, pp. 534, 574, the two men had been together during their exile. I should imagine that this decree was passed soon after the reduction of Thasos, early in B.C. 407, in return for the assistance the Neopolitans had rendered Thrasybulos. They had sent envoys to ask (1) that certain expressions might be improved in the earlier decree. What their grievance in this respect was is not certain. If we read with Dittenberger τῆς ἀποικί[ας τῆς Ἀθηναί]ων, we must suppose that the mover of the original decree confounded Νεάπολις ἀπ' Ἀθηνῶν with the city here concerned. Such ignorance of geography is not incredible in a statesman; but it seems more probable that the words τῆς ἀποικί[ας τῆς Θασί]ων had been used in order to emphasize by contrast their fidelity to Athens; and this restoration suits the space better than Dittenberger's. The Neopolitans now prayed that they might not be styled 'a colony of Thasos,' presumably, as Dr. Wilhelm suggests, out of hatred of that city, rather than from any notion that the title of colony implied political dependence on the mother-city. (2) They want to be allowed to pay the ἀπαρχή of the φόρος ($\frac{1}{60}$th, see no. 33) not to Athena, but to their own Virgin Goddess. Perhaps, like the Methonaians in no. 60, they had already been excused the payment of tribute, and only asked to pay the 60th: their request that the 60th may be paid to their own goddess seems another way of asking to be let off altogether. They are told to apply on this point to the ἐκκλησία (ἐν τῷ δήμῳ . . .).

§ 5. Rider to second Decree, giving the reply of the Athenian δῆμος to the request about the ἀπαρχή.

The Athenians granted the request of the Neopolitans, which appears to have been grounded upon a vow made to their Παρθένος.

The rest is mutilated.

This inscription establishes the title Ἀθηναίων Ἀμφικτύονες, showing that the Athenians governed all the affairs of the Amphiktyony, although other states were represented. It also fixes the number of Amphiktyons at four. They appear to have held office for a year. The Delian Neokoroi represent the native interest in the management of the temple, which was allowed to survive the purification of 426 B. C. (Thuk. iii. 104) and the deportation of 422 (Thuk. v. 1 and p. 88). The funds were kept in the temples of Apollo (called τὸ ἱερὸν—κατ' ἐξοχήν) and of Artemis.

Selymbria recovered by Alkibiades: B.C. 409.

Not accurately στοιχηδόν. C. I. A. iv (1), 61 a, p. 18, cp. p. 126. The fragment C. I. A. i. 113 belongs to the same inscription. Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 53; Hermes, xvi. p. 188; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. i. p. 87, n. 93 (xxii); A. Wilhelm, Jahreshefte des Oesterr. Inst. i. p. 158, n. 31 and Beiblatt, p. 44, and his addition quoted by Kavvadias, Ἐφημ. ἀρχ. 1898, p. 135; Roberts-Gardner, ii. 26.

The capture of Selymbria was a brilliant exploit according to Plutarch, Alcib. 30. Diod. xiii. 66 says: διὰ προδοσίας εἶλεν. Xenophon (Hell. i. 3. 10) simply has: Ἀλκιβιάδης δὲ τοῖς ὅρκοις (the convention with Pharnabazos) οὐκ ἐτύγχανε παρών, ἀλλὰ περὶ Σηλυμβρίαν ἦν· ἐκείνην δ' ἑλὼν πρὸς τὸ Βυζάντιον ἦκεν, κ.τ.λ. The present decree prescribes the conditions upon which Selymbria is restored to the Athenian alliance. The earlier lines are much broken; and the heading is lost.

The reading of the first two words (due to Wilhelm) is obviously more suitable to the circumstances than εἶναι δὲ καταστῆσαι, as usually read.

Compare no. 40. Alkibiades arrived at Athens B.C. 408, on the day of the Plynteria, twenty-fifth of Thargelion (June), and stayed until the Eleusinia were over (Sept.); within this time this decree was passed. We follow the chronology of Curtius, Hist. Gr., Eng. trans., iii. pp. 479 foll. Beloch (Philologus, 43, pp. 261 foll.) dates these events a year later. The person whose name is partially preserved in line 37 was probably instrumental in handing over Selymbria to Alkibiades.

Conditions of prosecution and reconciliation. Of the next lines, though much mutilated, we give the restoration made by Köhler by help of Demosth. in Macartatum, p. 1069, 57, together with the restorations given in Dareste, Inscr. Jur. gr. of ll. 15, 16, and the later sections as follows:—[αἰδέσασθαι δ', ἐὰμ μὲν πατὴρ] ἢ|ι ἢ ἀδελφὸ[ς] ἢ ἕνης, ἅπα[ντας], ἢ τὸ[ν κ]ω[λύοντα

The rest is hopeless, but contains the word μετ]απ[ο]ή[σηι, which we know from Demosth. in Aristocr. 62 to have come from the last paragraph of the law.

One of the measures which followed the restoration of the democracy, in the summer of B.C. 411, was a revision of the laws. This appears from Lysias (in Nicom. init.), who accuses Nikomachos, one of the ἀναγραφῆς of this decree (§ 1), of having been six years about the business (cp. Grote, ch. 66; and p. 121 supra). These ἀναγραφῆς were appointed, along with the συγγραφῆς (commissioners for revising the laws and submitting the proposals for their promulgation to council and people), to copy and publish the new laws. This revision was interrupted by the calamities which soon followed: but the work was revived upon the restoration under Thrasybulos, B.C. 403; see Andok. De Myst. 83,—Ἔδοξε τῷ δήμῳ· Τεισαμενὸς εἶπε· πολιτεύεσθαι Ἀθηναίους κατὰ τὰ πάτρια, νόμοις δὲ χρῆσθαι τοῖς Σόλωνος, καὶ μέτροις καὶ σταθμοῖς, χρῆσθαι δὲ καὶ τοῖς Δράκοντος θεσμοῖς, οἵσπερ ἐχρώμεθα ἐν τῷ πρόσθεν χρόνῳ, κ.τ.λ. The mover of our decree, Xenophanes, was probably one of the συγγραφῆς of B.C. 411 (Thuk. viii. 67); it authorizes the γραμματεύς of the βουλή to give them a true copy of Drakon's law, that it might be inscribed and set up in the usual place: cp. Harpokration, s. v. κύρβεις· ἀναγράψαντες δὲ τοὺς νόμους εἰς τὰς κύρβεις, ἔστησαν ἐν τῇ στοᾷ τῇ βασιλείᾳ. The portion of Drakon's law before us begins in a way (καὶ . . .) that proves the actual beginning to be missing, probably because it had been superseded by later legislation. The missing paragraph must have dealt with premeditated murder. The law as given here is taken from the first 'axon,' not of Solon, but of Drakon (for Solon's first 'axon' contained among others the law prohibiting the exportation of all products of the soil except oil, and therefore probably its other laws also had a reference to commercial matters). The Drakonian law of homicide, however, was retained by Solon, and had come down through him (Plutarch, Solon 17). The βασιλεῖς who try cases of involuntary murder are either (1) the βασιλεῖς ἄρχοντες from time to time in office, or (2) the φυλοβασιλεῖς, or (3) both combined. The first theory is excluded for reasons of Greek; we may take our choice between the two others. These βασιλεῖς preside over the inquiry into the cause of the murder, and the decision (διαγνῶναι) is thereupon given by the fifty-one ephetai, a college perhaps instituted by Drakon (but see Busolt, Griech. Gesch. ii². p. 234, note 2). For the procedure in cases of bloodshed generally see Gilbert, Greek Constitutional Antiquities (Eng. transl.), pp. 379 foll.

Pausanias (x. 9. 7–11) describes the group of bronze statues of ὅσοι συγκατειργάσαντο τῷ Λυσάνδρῳ τὰ ἐν Αἰγὸς ποταμοῖς ἢ αὐτῶν Σπαρτιατῶν ἢ ἀπὸ τῶν συμμαχησάντων. The names which have survived are those of seven admirals of the allies, all of whom are named by Pausanias; but as he mentions two Korinthians (Aristophantos and Pythodotos), and does not give their father's names, it is impossible to identify the seventh. The two sculptors are also named by him. The statues were popularly known as the ναύαρχοι, and in later times were famous for their bluish-green patina—οἷον ἀτεχνῶς θαλαττίους τῇ χρόᾳ καὶ βυθίους ἑστῶτας (Plutarch, de Pyth. orac. 2; compare Lysand. 12). The best, if not all of them, were probably carried off to Constantinople.

The Return of the Democrats from Phyle: B.C. 404–403.

A stelè of Pentelic marble, inscribed on both sides; found on the Akropolis in 1884, and now in the National Museum. Στοιχηδόν. E. Ziebarth, Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth., xxiii (1898), pp. 27 foll.; H. von Prott, ibid. xxv (1900), pp. 34 foll. The stone is broken on all sides save the top; the first two lines on the front, and the names of the tribes (of which one, Αἰγηίδος, is preserved) on the back, were in larger letters than the rest.

In (a), ll. 5, 6, Ziebarth restores ἐψηφίσθαι Ἀθηναίοις εἶναι αὐτοῖς καὶ ἐκγόν[οις αὐτῶν | καὶ φυλῆς καὶ δήμου καὶ φρατρίας ἧς ἂν βούλωνται], von Prott ἐψηφίσθαι Ἀθηναίοις· εἶναι αὐτοῖς καὶ ἐκγόν[οις πολιτεία|ν καὶ φυλῆς καὶ δήμου καὶ φρατρίας ἧς ἂν βούλωνται]. The latter restoration is doubtful Greek; and, in both cases, the formula as to choosing their tribes, &c., is inapplicable to the ἔκγονοι; so far as it concerns the new citizens themselves, it seems to be covered by the formula in the next line.

Aischines (iii. in Ctes. 187 foll.) describes the honours which the Athenians paid τοῖς ἀπὸ Φυλῆς φεύγοντα τὸν δῆμον καταγαγοῦσιν. On the motion of Archinos, one τῶν καταγαγόντων τὸν δῆμον, they received between them a thousand drachmai to be spent in sacrifices and dedications, and each a laurel crown; the Council were to make strict inquiry as to who were the actual persons besieged in Phyle by the Lakedaimonians and the Thirty. Finally, he quotes the epigram in honour of the restorers of the democracy:

τούσδ' ἀρετῆς ἕνεκα στεφάνοις ἐγέραιρε παλαίχθων
δῆμος Ἀθηναίων, οἵ ποτε τοὺς ἀδίκοις
θεσμοῖς ἄρξαντας πρῶτοι πόλεως καταπαύειν ἦρξαν, κίνδυνον σώμασιν ἀράμενοι.

None of these matters is mentioned in the unfortunately scanty remains of this psephisma. Yet, as it relates to the return of the democrats ἀπὸ Φυλῆς, we must suppose that Aischines only quoted that part of the decree which concerned his argument. There must have been room on the lower part of the stelè for these further provisions on the one side and the names of the citizens honoured on the other; and the epigram, doubtless, also had its place. The part preserved deals with the conferring of an honour on certain persons who συνκατῆλθον (with the Athenian democrats) from Phyle, or otherwise assisted their return. These persons' names, with their professions appended, are arranged tributim on the reverse of the stone. It is clear that the honour received is that of citizenship. In l. 5 we should expect ἐψηφίσθαι τῆι βουλῆι; the use of Ἀθηναίοις instead of the Council (if indeed von Prott's interpretation of the passage is correct) points to the period immediately following the return of the democracy. It was in the year of Pythodoros that the διαλλαγαί (l. 8), or arrangements for truce preceding the definite agreement between the two parties, were effected, and the democracy was reckoned as having been restored ('Aθ. Πολ. 41), although the final settlement was delayed until the year of Xenainetos (B.C. 401–400). There seems no reason to suppose with Ziebarth that the rewards in question were similarly delayed, and to restore the archon's name as [Ξεναίνετ]ος. In ll. 7, 8 were recounted the services of the people who are honoured with the citizenship.

The quondam aliens (the strangeness of some of whose names is noticeable) are arranged under the tribes in which they have newly been enrolled. Some of the abbreviated professional names are hard to complete. Col. 2: ὀνοκόμος (on the analogy of ὀρεωκόμος and the like) is due to Dr. Wilhelm; Ziebarth's ὀνοκόπος is less probable. In the next line the suggestion ἐλαιοπ(ώλης) is said to be precluded, the Γ being certain. L. 10 probably καρυο(πώλης). Col. 3: l. 1, the restoration σκαφη(φόρος) is doubtful, because the σκαφηφορία was a leiturgia to which metoikoi as a class were liable (see Gilbert, Constitutional Antiquities, Eng. trans., p. 181); the name could therefore hardly serve as a professional title for a single metoikos. L. 8, μισθω(τός) must mean a hired labourer.

The mover of the decree, Archinos, is favourably mentioned in the 'Aθ. Πολ. (40) for his statesmanlike conduct during the early years of the new democracy; and his opposition to Thrasybulos, his old comrade, in regard to the latter's illegal proposal to enfranchise all aliens who had come in with him from Peiraieus, is characteristic and famous ('Aθ. Πολ. 40; Aisch. iii. in Ctes. 195). To him was due also the official abandonment of the Attic alphabet.

After the battle of Aigospotamoi the Samian demos, which alone at this crisis stood by Athens (Xen. Hell. ii. 2. 6), expelled the oligarchs from their city and sent two embassies (see lines 7, 8 of the first decree) offering to join hands with Athens to continue the war. To this offer the first decree refers. In B.C. 404 Lysandros took Samos by siege, expelled the demos and established an oligarchy (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. 6). After the restoration of the democracy at Athens, further honours were voted to the faithful (and now exiled) Samian democracy, as recorded in the second and third decrees. But Samos remained in the power of Sparta until B.C. 394.

Above is a relief with the tutelary deities of the two states joining hands (Athena and Hera); see Brunn-Bruckmann, Denkmäler, no. 475 a; Collignon, Sculpt. gr. ii. p. 117; E. Petersen, Mitth. d. arch. Inst., Röm. Abth. 1889, p. 69.

40 [δοῦναι τὸ ἀργύριον. ἀναγράψαι δ' ἐν Σά]μωι κατὰ ταὐτὰ τέ[λεσι τοῖς ἐκεί]νων. |

Kephisophon's name appears at the head of this inscription because he was secretary two years afterwards, when the third decree was passed, and when all three were inscribed. He also moved the second decree.

The definition ὅσοι Σαμίων κ.τ.λ. is intended to exclude Lakonizers from the benefits conferred by the decree; cp. § 3, τοῖς νῦν οἰκοῦσιν Σάμον.

§ 1. The formula γνώμη Κλεισόφου καὶ συνπρυτάνεων is unusual, but there are analogies from other magistracies (as γνώμη στρατηγῶν). Kleisophos seems to have belonged not to the Kekropid but to the Erechtheïd tribe. It may be therefore that this motion was brought before the βουλή during the Erechtheïd prytany, but that a new prytany (Kekropid) came in before the matter could be laid before the ekklesia. The motion however continued to stand in the name of the prytaneis under whom it was drawn up.

Τὰ πεπραγμένα αὐτοῖς seems to be a euphemistic allusion to the murder of the aristocrats by which the Samian demos marked its loyalty to Athens immediately after the battle of Aigospotamoi (Xen. Hell. ii. 2. 6).

§ 2. The συμβολαί now in existence (line 18) were made when Samos was an independent state; now, when the Samians have the Athenian citizenship, these συμβολαί are still to hold good. (Dittenberger.)

§ 3. The Athenians agree that the Samians shall receive the same terms as themselves in case of peace. This they endeavoured to effect, but in vain (Plutarch, Apophth. Lacon. Varia, 22). Line 24, ἐξάμου for ἐκ Σάμου.

§ 4. Philokles and Konon, when they went to the Hellespont, left twenty ships at Samos (Diod. xiii. 104). The trierarch who received a ship was regarded as owing it to the state. When these twenty ships were handed over to the Samians, the trierarchs could no longer be held responsible for them. The Samians were to fit out the ships as they pleased, hence the old tackle, &c., were to be returned to the dockyards.

§ 5. As Eumachos is, by virtue of the decree, an Athenian citizen, he is invited ἐπὶ δεῖπνον and not, like foreigners, ἐπὶ ξένια. This decree was probably engraved at the time, destroyed by order of the Thirty, and then, as we have seen, re-engraved under Kephisophon.

Second decree, B.C. 403–402. § 1. [Ἔδοξεν τῆι βουλῆι καὶ τῶι δήμωι· Πανδ]ιονὶς ἐπρυτάνευε, Ἀγύρριος K[*ολλυτ]εὺς | [ἐγραμμάτευε, Εὐκλείδης ἦρχε, Κα]λλίας Ὠαθεν ἐπεστάτει· Κηφισοφῶν [εἶπεν· | ἐπαινέσαι τοὺς Σαμίους ὅτι εἰσὶν] (ἄ)νδρες ἀγαθοὶ περὶ Ἀθηναίους, καὶ ἄπ[αντα | κύρια εἶναι ἃ πρότερον ὁ δῆμος] ἐψηφίσατο ὁ Ἀθηναίων τῶι δήμωι τῶι Σ[αμίων] ||

Diod. 14 xiii. Hell.

For Agyrrhios cp. Dem. in Timocr. 134.

§ 2. The Athenians to assist the Samians in their embassy to Sparta. [πέμψαι δὲ τοὺς Σαμίους, ὥσπερ αὐ]τοὶ κελεύουσιν, ἐς Λακεδαίμονα ὄντινα [ἂν αὐ]τοὶ βούλωνται· ἐπειδὴ δὲ προ]σδέονται Ἀθηναίων συνπράττειν, προσελέσ[*θαι | πρέσβεις· οὗτοι δὲ συνπρατ]τόντων τοῖς Σαμίοις ὅ τι ἂν δύνωνται ἀγαθὸ[ν καὶ | κοινῆι βουλευέσθων μετὰ] ἐκείνων. § 3. Praise of Ephesos and Notion for harbouring the Samian exiles: ἐπαινοῦσι δὲ Ἀθηναῖοι Ἐφεσίους καὶ Νοτ[ιᾶς | ὅτι προθύμως ἐδέξαντο] Σαμίων τοὺς ἔξω ὄντας. § 4. Further compliments: προσαγαγεῖν δὲ τὴν πρεσβεί[αν || τῶν Σαμίων ἐς τὸν δῆμ]ον χρηματίσ(α)σθαι ἐ(ά)ν του δέωνται· καλέσαι δὲ καὶ ἐπὶ | [δεῖπνον τὴν πρεσβ]είαν τῶν

Σαμίων ἐς τὸ πρυτανεῖον ἐς αὔριον. § 5. Kephisophon (Xen. Hell. ii. 4. 36) moves the adoption of the proposals contained in §§ 1 and 4 (second clause): Κηφισοφῶν | εἶπε· τὰ μὲν ἄλλα κθάπερ τῆι βουλῆι· ἐψηφίσθαι δὲ Ἀθηναίων τῶι δήμωι κύρια | [εἶναι τὰ ἐψηφισμ]έν(α) πρότερον περὶ Σαμίων καθάπερ ἡ βουλὴ προβουλεύσασα | [ἐς τὸν δῆμον ἐσ]ήνεγκεν· κ(α)λέσαι δὲ τὴν πρεσβείαν τῶν Σαμίων ἐπὶ δεῖπνον || [ἐς τὸ πρυτανεῖο]ν ἐς αὔριον. |

All the original proposals moved by Kephisophon were withdrawn (owing apparently to opposition in the course of the discussion, inspired by fear of offending Sparta).

Third decree, in honour of Poses. A small fragment, giving the ends of the last four lines, has recently been found by Dr. Wilhelm. § 1. 'Αμύντωρ 'Απημάντου occurs in a fragmentary decree (C. I. A. ii. 4) containing a list of names of Thasians who had been exiled for their Athenian sympathies, and were received in Athens, being granted ἀτέλεια καθάπερ Μαντινεῦσιν. It is the decree alluded to by Demosth. xx. Lept. 59 (see Wilhelm in Eranos Vindob. pp. 241 foll.). The sons of Apemantos had probably been exiled from Thasos in the revolution of B.C. 411 (Thuk. viii. 64 ; supra no. 75 ; cp. also Lysandros' treatment of Thasos, Nepos, Lysand. 2; Grote, ch. 65). Eurypylos, happening to be at Athens, discovers that this decree has been destroyed by the Thirty, and obtains permission to restore it.

The first six lines are in the Lakonian dialect and alphabet, the rest is in Ionic and was presumably added by the Delians. But the lapidary in line 14 has spelled Φεδίλας, whereas Ε is not used for ει in his alphabet. The date is fixed within near limits. Agis appears to have died B.C. 402–401, or 398 at the latest (Niese in Pauly-Wissowa's Real-Encycl. i. 819); and Delos was in Athenian hands until Aigospotamoi. The names of the ephors down to 404–403 B.C. are known (Xen.

Hell. ii. 3. 9, 10; 4. 36); and none of them recur here. Of the years from 403 to 398 the first seems most probable. This document can hardly be anything else than a decree of the Lakedaimonians instating the Delians in the full possession of their own temples and temple treasures. After the two kings, the five ephors are named. On the relations between Athens and Delos see nos. 50, 76, 104; von Schöffer's work quoted above; and Mr. Jebb's paper on Delos in the Journal of Hellenic Studies, vol. i. p. 7, and esp. pp. 23, 58.

10 [ους - - - κ.τ.λ.]

The lacunae are easily restored, as the formulae are well known. For the history see Xen. Hell. iii. 5. 3–16; Lysias, pro Mantith. § 13: πρῶτον μὲν γάρ, ὅτε τὴν συμμαχίαν ἐποιήσασθε πρὸς τοὺς Βοιωτοὺς καὶ εἰς Ἀλίαρτον ἔδει βοηθεῖν, κ.τ.λ. (cp. Andok. iii. de Pace 25). The decree was proposed by Thrasybulos (see Grote, ch. 74; Holm, iii. ch. 3). Observe that the 'Boiotians' are spoken of throughout, for at this time Thebes was supreme in Boiotia: after the peace of Antalkidas the Boiotian towns were declared independent (Xen. Hell. v. 1. 32 foll., cp. vi. 3. 11 foll.).

The Opuntian Lokrians are meant, who are termed Λοκροί without further qualification by Herodot. (vii. 132) and Thuk. (ii. 9). The Korinthian war arose out of a quarrel between Lokris and Phokis concerning χώρας ἀμφισβητησίμου (Xen. Hell. iii. 5. 3), the Lokrians being supported by Thebes, the Phokians by Sparta; the underlying cause being the Theban reaction against Lakedaimonian supremacy. See Xen. Hell. iv. 3. 15 and 2. 17. It is probable that the treaty before us was concluded before the battle of Haliartos, at the same time with the preceding. See Grote, ch. 74; Holm, iii. ch. 3.

Xenophon, in his catalogue of the forces on the side of Athens in the Korinthian war, says: καὶ μὴν ἐξ Εὐβοίας ἁπάσης οὐκ ἐλάττους τρισχιλίων (Hell. iv. 2. 17). So Diod. xiv. 82: ϵὐθὺς γὰρ αὐτοῖς ἥ τϵ Εὔβοια ἅπασα προσέθϵτο, κ.τ.λ. The present document appears from the heading (which has merely ἔδοξϵν τῇ βουλῇ, without the addition καὶ τῷ δήμῳ) to be a probouleuma of the council adopted by the ekklesia, without any alteration in the heading.

Pausanias says (i. 29. 11): κεῖνται δὲ (on the road from the Dipylon to the Akademy) καὶ οἱ περὶ Κόρινθον πεσόντες· ἐδήλωσε δὲ οὐχ ἥκιστα (so he moralizes) ὁ θεὸς ἐνταῦθα καὶ αὖθις ἐν Λεύκτροις τοὺς ὑπὸ Ἑλλήνων καλουμένους ἀνδρείους τὸ μηδὲν ἄνευ τύχης εἶναι κ.τ.λ. He is however probably not alluding to this monument, which was erected only to the troopers. Xenophon (Hell. iv. 2. 17) says that the Athenian cavalry at Korinth numbered six hundred; he does not give the number at Koroneia (ibid. 3. 15). In both battles, especially in the latter, the hard fighting was between the foot-soldiers; the cavalry were scarcely engaged. See the next inscription.

Among the thousands of Attic tombs we know of, this one alone bears a date. Dexileos, named also in the preceding monument, was born in B.C. 414–413, when Teisandros was archon (wrongly called Πείσανδρος by Diod. xiii. 7). As eleven horsemen fell at Korinth, the expression τῶν πέντε ἱππέων must be referred to some unrecorded episode of the expedition, probably to some feat performed by five troopers. The six others mentioned in the previous inscription may have fallen in the same battle, and that monument need not therefore, as Köpp supposes, refer to at least three engagements. Brückner's attempt to explain τῶν πέντε ἱππέων as a military rank is not convincing. According to Lysias (xvi. pro Mantitheo 15), the tribe of Mantitheos suffered most in the battle of Korinth. Sandys conjectures with probability that Mantitheos was of the same family as the Mantitheos mentioned by Demosth. (xxxii. contr. Boeot. 7 foll.), whose deme, like that of Dexileos, was Thorikos. Dexileos and Lysias' client therefore fought side by side as members of the tribe Akamantis.

This exactly accords with Xen. Hell. iv. 8. 1–2: Pharnabazos and Konon, after the victory of Knidos, went on a cruise round the islands and the maritime cities, expelling the Lakonian harmosts, and assuring the cities that their citadels should not be garrisoned nor their liberty interfered with οἱ δ' ἀκούσαντες ταῦτα ἥδοντό τε καὶ ἐπῄνουν κ.τ.λ. So Diod. xiv. 84.

The fortification of Peiraieus (though doubtless not the rebuilding of the Long Walls) was begun, as the first inscription shows, in June or July B.C. 394, before Konon brought assistance and money to Athens. He did not return thither until the spring of 393, having defeated the Lakedaimonian fleet off Knidos in August of the preceding year.

B: 2. σημεῖον, the mark indicating the starting-point of the work. 3. μέτωπον, apparently the pillar between the two wings of the gates. 5. This sanctuary of Aphrodite (possibly the one dedicated by Themistokles) must be distinguished from Konon's subsequent foundation (see Frazer on Pausanias, i. 1. 3). The fact that the contract is undertaken by a Boiotian is in accordance with the evidence of Xenophon (Hellen. iv. 8. 10) and Diodoros (xiv. 85), who say that Boiotians took part in the work. For other inscriptions, some of which show that the work went on until the year of Philokles (B.C. 392–391), see C. I. A. ii. 830, and iv (2), 830 d, e.

The proposer is Kinesias the dithyrambic poet, whose lean figure and profligate life made him the favourite butt of Aristophanes and the comedians: the 6th prytany would be about the time of the Lenaia (Gamelion), and the place where the stelè was set up was the Dionysiac theatre. Dionysios I. was all along an ally, not very active, of Sparta (Grote, ch. 83; Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 26, 28; vi. 2. 4, 33; vii. 1. 20, 28). But after the victory of Knidos (midsummer 394), when Konon sailed with Pharnabazos to the Saronic Gulf early in 393 (see Xen. Hellen. iv. 8. 7 foll.), so fast were Athenian hopes expanding, that Konon caused an Athenian embassy to be dispatched to Dionysios at Syrakuse, with the view of detaching him from Sparta, and allying him with Athens (Grote, ch. 75 init.). Lysias the orator, and two others, were sent (Lysias, xix. de bonis Ar. 19 foll.). Perhaps they carried with them the ψήφισμα before us: it is moved by a poet, who would probably be known to Dionysios. The tyrant had recently defeated the Karthaginians, and could thus be called the 'ruler of Sicily.' The most that the Athenians effected by this embassy was the neutrality of the Syrakusan power (Beloch, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 202). For the later relations between Athens and Dionysios see nos. 108, 112.

The formulae are easily restored. Euagoras, who had received honours from Athens some twelve or fourteen years before (*C. I. A second decree follows, which is too much mutilated to pay repetition here, but contains the name [Ἀγ]ησάρχου. The same name is generally supplied in l. 5 (εἶπε[ν Ἀγήσαρχον] Καρπάθιον) and l. 21; the safer readings here adopted are suggested by Wilhelm. The restoration of ll. 18 foll. is very uncertain.

The 'old temple' of Athena on the Akropolis was burnt down in B. C. 406–405 (Xen. Hellen. i. 6. 1). As late as B. C. 395–394 the Athenians were still engaged in restoring it. The next year saw the liberation of the south-eastern Aegean from Spartan domination by the victory of Knidos, and it was probably soon after this time that the people of Karpathos contributed a cypress-tree towards the rebuilding. In return the Athenians grant autonomy and various other privileges to Karpathos, and the newly found Athenian allies in these quarters are bound to show good offices to the same city. Of those mentioned, Kos joined Athens immediately after, Rhodes even before, the battle of Knidos; the Knidians in 391 and 390 were on the Lakedaimonian side, but just before that time had revolted. [Κνι]δίους is a more probable restoration than [Λιν]δίους, in spite of line 38, since although the city of Lindos at this time had a separate existence, it was not of any political significance. For the title of Athena in ll. 10, 11, compare the inscription on a boundary stone in Samos (Michel, Recueil 779): ὅρος τε|μένεος | Ἀθηνᾶς | Ἀθηνῶν | μεδεούσης.

During the greater part of the fifth century, and down to about B. C. 350, one of the most important currencies of the west coast of Asia Minor consisted of electrum staters and sixths of staters issued by the cities of Phokaia in Ionia and Mytilene in Lesbos. In this inscription is recorded the agreement come to between the two cities with regard to the issue of the coins. None of the staters of Phokaia of this period has come down to us, and only one of Lesbos; nevertheless, we know from literary sources (Thuk. iv. 52; Demosth. xl. in Boeot. 36) that the Phokaian staters at least were an important currency; while an enormous variety of sixths of both mints has come down to us, and, as the coins are small and easily lost, must represent a very much larger original issue. As the style of the coins permits us to date the earliest sixths to about 480 or at latest B. C. 450, the agreement recorded on the stone may be a renewal of an earlier convention. If, as is less likely, it is the first convention made between the two cities, we must suppose that it was entered into as conducive to more profit than the policy of competition hitherto adopted. The coins are very similar, those of Phokaia being distinguished by a small seal (φώκη) placed as a symbol subordinate to the main type.

The present agreement regulates the responsibility of the official who makes the alloy (κέρναν) of gold and silver generally known as electrum, but here called χρύσιον, of which the coinage consisted. He is responsible to his own government, being punishable with death in case of wilful adulteration. The coinage was to be issued alternately by each city. We may assume that the missing part of the agreement provided for the equality of exchange between the coinages of the two states. Outside Phokaian and Lesbian territory the coinage would be subject to discount. Thus we find the poet Persinos telling Eubulos, tyrant of Atarneus, whose court he had left for Mytilene, that he got better exchange for his Φωκαΐδες in Mytilene than in Atarneus (Pollux, Onom. ix. 93). We have, in fact, in this convention an analogy to the Latin Union of our own days. For the coins in question see British Museum Catalogue of Greek Coins, Ionia, Pl. iv, v, and Troas, &c., Pl. xxxi–xxxiv.

The restorations are chiefly from Sauppe. The dialect is on the whole Ionic (cp. no. 125). εἶν in A l. 3, B ll. 5 and 7, is for εἶναι (cp. no. 142, l. 5). The authorities for Amyntas' reign are

Diod. xiv. 89. 92; xv. 19. 60; Xen. Hellen. v. 2–3; Isokrates, iv. (Paneg.) 126; vi. (Archid.) 46. Grote gives a spirited account of the rise and fall of the Olynthian confederation (ch. 76), but for the chronology see Droysen, Hellen. i. 1. 78; Schäfer, Demosthenes, ii^{2}. pp. 7 foll.; Swoboda, loc. cit., and Beloch, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 223. The reign of Amyntas III (who is to be distinguished from the Amyntas, son of Archelaos, mentioned by Aristotle, Pol. viii. 10. 1311 b 14, who reigned from B.C. 392–390), was chequered with vicissitudes which show how far Makedon then was from being a secure or important power. His accession was in B.C. 389. It was probably early in his reign that he entered into alliance with the Olynthians, perhaps at the time when the Illyrian invasion, which in B.C. 383 drove him from his throne, was threatening. His object would be to obtain the help of Olynthos, and it was then presumably that he ceded to it the territory mentioned by Diodoros (xiv. 92. 3; xv. 19. 2). When he recovered his throne shortly afterwards he revenged himself on Olynthos, which had not only given him no help but probably actually annexed some of his territory (Xen. Hell. v. 2. 12 foll.). He was helped by Sparta (Diod. xv. 19. 3; Xen. Hell. v. 2. 38; 3. 9). His alliance with Athens belongs to a later period (no. 107). The article of the treaty about timber, &c. reminds us that Southern Makedon, the Chalkidic peninsula, and Amphipolis were the chief sources whence Athens (e.g.) derived the timber for her dockyards. Cp. the following passages: Xen. Hellen. v. 2. 16, ξύλα ναυπηγήσιμα ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ χώρᾳ ἐστί, i.e. within the territory of the league; Thuk. iv. 108; when Makedon became mistress of these regions the Athenians were at a loss for timber, see Diod. xx. 46; Plut. Demetr. 10; Böckh, Staatsh. i.^{3} pp. 317, 488. This treaty appears to be chiefly to the commercial advantage of the league. Probably however Amyntas would want to import more timber, &c. from Chalkidike, than the league would from Makedon. Amyntas gains the right to import as much timber (except pine) as he wants, unless the league have present need of it. The league are permitted similarly to import from Makedon, and even pine-timber upon giving prior notice to Amyntas. And also, since the Olynthian league as long as it lasted was a powerful check upon Makedon, by the possession of the chief ports and avenues of trade between Makedon and the rest of Greece, it was a gain to Amyntas to secure a safe export, import, and transport of all goods through the Chalkidic ports (ἐξαγωγὴν καὶ διαγωγήν). Neither party is to enter alone on friendly relations with those neighbouring states which have not at the time joined the Olynthian league (B, line 18).

Shortly before the 'peace of Antalkidas,' in the year in which Thrasybulos was admiral (B. C. 390–389), the Athenians began to restore their empire by making alliances with various states such as Thasos (C.I.A. iv. 11 b, pp. 5, 6) and Klazomenai. The attempts were cut short by the peace, whereby the Asiatic Greek cities were summarily handed over to the Great King: Ἀρταξέρξης βασιλεὺς νομίζει δίκαιον τὰς μὲν ἐν τῇ Ἀσίᾳ πόλεις ἑαυτοῦ εἶναι καὶ τῶν νήσων Κλαζομενὰς καὶ Κύπρον (Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 31). Clinton, ad ann. 387, places the promulgation early in Theodotos' year, 'about autumn.' It was probably later in 387, if not in the beginning of 386 B.C. For the present inscription shows the state of war existing at least early in Theodotos' year, and the negotiations with Klazomenai are presumably anterior to Antalkidas' successes in the Hellespont (see no. 97).

A. § 1. The εἰκοστή, or tax of five per cent. on imports by sea, had been imposed by Athens instead of tribute in B.C. 413–412 (see Thuk. vii. 28. 4). Now when they attempt to revive their empire the Athenians resume this milder method of raising money.

The mention of οἱ ἀπὸ Χυτοῦ, ἐπὶ Χυτῷ, illustrates a passage from Ephoros cited by Steph. Byz. s. v. Χυτόν. χωρίον ἠπείρου· Ἔφορος ἐννεακαιδεκάτῳ· Οἱ δ' ἐκ Κλαζομενῶν κατῴκισαν τῆς ἠπείρου τὸ Χυτὸν καλούμενον. Cp. Arist. Pol. viii. (v.) ii. 12 (1303 b 9), Στασιάζουσι δὲ ἐνίοτε αἱ πόλεις καὶ διὰ τοὺς τόπους, ὅταν μὴ εὐφυῶς ἔχῃ ἡ χώρα πρὸς τὸ μίαν εἶναι πόλιν, οἷον ἐν Κλαζομεναῖς οἱ ἐπὶ Χύτρῳ (lege Χυτῷ) πρὸς τοὺς ἐν νήσῳ.

§ 2. The present assembly is to decide whether Klazomenai shall be arbitrarily placed under an Athenian garrison, or whether the choice in this matter is to be left to Klazomenai. See B. For the διαχειροτονία see Wilhelm, in Comptes Rendus de l'Acad. des Inscr., 1900, pp. 526 foll.

§ 3. The treaty with Athens is not in any way (either by the εἰκοστή or otherwise) to interfere with the corn-supplies of Klazomenai. Ll. 20, 21: so Wilhelm. Dittenberger has τοὺς [ἀεὶ στρατηγοῦντας φ]ροντίσαι ὅπω]ς κ.τ.λ.

B. The Assembly decides that Klazomenai is to pay no tribute other than the εἰκοστή, and is not to have an Athenian governor.

The restorations from line 18 onwards (due to Dittenberger) are highly conjectural, but seem to represent the general sense.

Böckh was inclined to refer this inscription to the time of the battle of Naxos, B. C. 376; but Kirchhoff observes that the writing is not later than B. C. 390–380. Phanokritos had given certain information to the Athenian generals which, if acted on, might have led to the capture of the enemy's ships. There is some probability in Foucart's view that the information related to Antalkidas' cunning evasion of Iphikrates, who was blockading Nikolochos in Abydos. Antalkidas went by land to Abydos and slipped out by night, spreading a false report that he was proceeding to Kalchedon. This would fix the event, and probably also the decree, to B. C. 387–386. Whatever the circumstances are, the council frame a probouleuma proposing the payment of a reward and the conferring of honours on Phanokritos as εὐεργέτης. In the ἐκκλησία an amendment is moved by Kephalos (the famous orator?), censuring the admirals for not acting upon the intelligence received. The apodektai, or 'Receivers general,' are to pay the sum as soon as funds become available, the regular disbursements provided for by the law having been first made.

For the sense of τὰ καταβαλλόμενα χρήματα, see Panske, de Magistratibus Att. qui saec. a. Chr. IV. pecun. publ. curabant (Leipziger Studien, 1890), p. 51. An inscription from the Akropolis (C. I. A. ii. 1165) reads: ὁ δῆμος | Φανόκριτον Φανοκλέους | Π[αριανὸν? ἀρε]τῆ[ς] ἕνεκεν, and may refer to our Phanokritos. Lines 3, 7, 10: the stone has λιθίνει, βουλεῖ. ΗΙ is frequently represented by ΕΙ in inscriptions from about 380 onwards to about 30 B. C., owing to the resemblance in pronunciation between the two diphthongs. See Meisterhans, Grammatik d. attischen Inschr.[3] pp. 38, 39. The present instance is one of the earliest extant.

The insistence on the Peace with the Great King shown in this inscription proves that it was quite recent, and that the Athenians were anxious not to rouse the suspicions of Persia or Sparta by their new alliance. Nevertheless we have here the first step towards the new Athenian confederation. The Chians were among the first to join it. See nos. 100, 102: and cp. Isokr. xiv. Plataic. 28; viii. de pace 16: φημὶ δ' οὖν χρῆναι ποιεῖσθαι τὴν εἰρήνην μὴ μόνον πρὸς Χίους καὶ Ῥοδίους καὶ Βυζαντίους ἀλλὰ πρὸς ἅπαντας ἀνθρώπους, καὶ χρῆσθαι ταῖς συνθήκαις μὴ ταύταις αἷς νῦν τινὲς γεγράφασιν, ἀλλὰ ταῖς γενομέναις μὲν πρὸς βασιλέα καὶ Λακεδαιμονίους, προστατούσαις δὲ τοὺς Ἕλληνας αὐτονόμους εἶναι κ.τ.λ. (written B.C. 356). If the date here assigned to this much mutilated inscription is correct (for the grounds see Class. Rev. loc. cit.), we have in it a record of the treaty between Athens and Olynthos, for which we know that negotiations were being carried on in the spring of 383. At that time Olynthos was extending the bounds of her confederacy and endeavouring to force all her neighbours to throw in their lot with hers. The more reluctant of them, Akanthos and Apollonia, sent envoys to Sparta, insisting on the necessity of immediate action to put a stop to these encroachments. The crisis concerned Sparta intimately, for, as the Akanthian envoy Kleigenes said, κατελίπομεν δὲ καὶ Ἀθηναίων καὶ Βοιωτῶν πρέσβεις ἤδη αὐτόθι. ἠκούομεν δὲ ὡς καὶ αὐτοῖς Ὀλυνθίοις ἐψηφισμένον εἴη συμπέμπειν πρέσβεις εἰς ταύτας τὰς πόλεις περὶ συμμαχίας (Xen. Hellen. v. 2. 15). We have here then the list of ten commissioners (five of the names only are preserved) despatched from Athens to receive the oaths of the new allies. But the alliance with Athens did not save Olynthos from the disaster which followed, when Sparta, after despatching four generals in succession against the confederation, extinguished it in B. C. 379.

The date is a little earlier than no. 101; the still more fragmentary inscription C. I. A. ii. 18 is perhaps a treaty of the same date with Mytilene (Diod. xv. 28. 29). Cp. Grote, ch. 77; Isokr. xiv. Plat. 27. 28. The Byzantines were, though not the first (see l. 6), yet among the first to join the new confederacy. The restorations given of lines 7–10 are those conjectured by Dittenberger, who notes that the Chians are mentioned first on the list of allies in no. 101, and compares l. 24 of that inscription. Some of the envoys are well known. Orthobulos was hipparch of Akamantis at the battle of Haliartos (Lysias, xvi. pro Mant. 13). Exekestides may be the mover of the decree no. 123. Pyrrhandros is named in no. 101, § 7, as one of the envoys sent to Thebes: this is referred to by Aischines (in Ctes. 139), who says ἔτι καὶ νῦν ζῇ, in B.C. 330, so that he lived to a great age; cp. no. 102, l. 7. Kydon the Byzantine is also known to us as one of those who contrived the surrender of Byzantion to Alkibiades and the Athenians in B.C. 409–408 (Xen. Hellen. i. 3. 18). When Lysandros regained the town after Aigospotamoi, Kydon fled to Athens and received the citizenship (ib. ii. 2. 1). He must have returned to his native place after the restoration of the democracy there by Thrasybulos in 390–389 (ib. iv. 8. 27), and now undertakes this mission in the Athenian interest.

§ 9 contains the beginning of another decree proposed by the same Aristoteles. § 10. On the left side of the slab the names of the confederate cities are continued as follows:—

[Κερκυ]ραίων | [ὁ δῆ]μος, | [Ἀβδη]ρῖται, | [Θάσ]ιοι, | [Χαλκι]δης | ἀπὸ [Θράικης], | Αἴνιοι, | Σαμόθραικ[ες], | Δικαιοπολῖται, || Ἀκαρνᾶνες, | Κεφαλλήνων | Πρῶννοι, | Ἀλκέτας, | Νεοπτόλεμος, | [Ἰάσω]ν, | Ἀνδριοι, | [Τ]ήνιοι, | [Ἐσ]τιαιῆς, | Μυ[κ]όνιοι, || Ἀντισσαῖοι, | Ἐρέσιοι, | Ἀστραιούσιοι, | Κείων | Ἰουλιῆται, | Καρθαιεῖς, | Κορήσιοι, | Ἐλαιούσιοι, | Ἀμόργιοι, | Σηλυμβριανο[ί], || Σίφνιοι, | Σικινῆται, | Διεῖς | ἀπὸ Θράικης, | Νεοπολῖται, | Ζακυν[θ]ίων | ὁ δῆμος | ὁ ἐν τῶι Νήλλ]ωι.

For a fuller treatment see Busolt, Der zweite Athenische Bund (Jahrb. f. class. Phil., Suppl. vii. 1873–5, pp. 641–866); A. Schäfer, De sociis Atheniensium Chabriae et Timothei aetate, &c. Lips. 1856; Gilbert, Gr. Const. Antiq. pp. 435 foll. But for the most part Diod. xv. 28–30, and Holm, Hist. Gr. iii. ch. vii. will suffice. We will note a few minor points. § 1. The chief object of the confederacy is the delivery of the Greeks from the Spartan supremacy. The qualification of ὅσοι μὴ βασιλέως εἰσίν is intended to avoid a suspicion of infringement of the peace of Antalkidas. For the Chians see nos. 98, 100. The Thebans became allies of Athens in B.C. 378: for the date at which they joined the κοινὸν συνέδριον (which existed before the organization of the new confederacy by this decree) see below under § 8. The provisions in § 2, directed against any approach to the system of κληρουχίαι, are well discussed by Grote (ch. 77). But it should be noted that while Diodoros uses the term κληρουχίαι, the decree has the less special word ἐγκτήματα. There were no Athenian kleruchies

(in the old sense) at this time. § 3. The alliance is defensive only. § 4. From the phrase ἐν Ἀθηναίοις καὶ τοῖς συμμάχοις it does not follow that there was a joint court; the competence of the allies was probably restricted to offenders in their own territory. (See Lipsius, loc. cit. p. 155.) § 5. The statue of Zeus Eleutherios was in the Kerameikos; see Pausan. i. 3. 1, who mentions statues of Konon, Timotheos, and Euagoras the Kyprian, at the same spot. Thirty drachmai was the usual cost of inscribing a decree: but this is a long one, and names were to be added from time to time. On this reserve fund of ten talents see p. 222. § 6. The list is given below. § 7. For Pyrrhandros see no. 100; Thrasybulos, namesake and comrade of the liberator, is mentioned by Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 26, as commanding the fleet, and by Dem. de Cor. p. 301, as an orator of mark; cp. Aristot. Rhet. ii. 23; Dem. xxiv. in Timocr. 134; Aischin. iii. (in Ctes.) 138. § 8. The list of confederates. Köhler held that the names of the Chians, Mytilenaians, Methymnaians, Rhodians, and Byzantines were inscribed in the same hand with the preceding decree, while the Thebans were entered by a second hand, which also inscribed the Tenedians, Chalkidians, Eretrians, Poiessians, Arethusians, Karystians. Fabricius, on the other hand, ascribes the Thebans to the first group; and Lipsius (supported by Wilhelm) agrees with him. There is a further difference as to the Ikians, Köhler placing them in a third, Fabricius in the second group. In the third group all agree in placing the Perinthians, Peparethians, Skiathians, Maronitai, Dieis; Köhler adds the Παλλ . . . Diod. xv. 28 says: πρῶτοι δὲ πρὸς τὴν ἀπόστασιν ὑπήκουσαν Χῖοι καὶ Βυζάντιοι, μετὰ τούτους Ῥόδιοι καὶ Μυτιληναῖοι, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων τινὲς νησιωτῶν. Since Köhler seems to have been mistaken as to the Thebans, we must add them to the list of original members; in ll. 23 foll. their position is mentioned as typical, and Diodoros mentions them in a very early stage of the proceedings. Thebes, which had been in alliance with Athens itself since spring 378, therefore joined the κοινὸν συνέδριον before the organization of the Confederacy by this decree. The embassy in § 7 must refer to some other matter; perhaps the Thebans were already showing themselves unwilling to abide by the terms of the confederacy. The rest of the confederates' names were added afterwards, as the alliance extended. Thus Abdera joined after the battle of Naxos (Diod. xv. 36). Similarly Hestiaia comes low down in the list: see Diod. xv. 30. Also the three towns of Keos, Iulis, Karthaia, Koressos are separated from the fourth, viz. Ποιήσσιοι. The δῆμος of Zakynthos, apparently established outside of the city in a Zakynthian mountain called Nellos, and the δῆμος of Korkyra, in a similar position, are enrolled as allies of Athens, like the 'Samian δῆμος' of the old confederacy. The Korkyraian democrats probably approached Athens before the expedition of Timotheos, which settled the quarrel between democrats and aristocrats in favour of the former. After that expedition Athens received Korkyraians, Akarnanians and Kephallenians in a combined treaty, preserved in no. 105. In the interval, thanks to the expedition of Chabrias, Abdera, Thasos and other Thrakian cities had come in. These were inscribed on the stone just after Κερκυραίων ὁ δῆμος. When subsequently Korkyra as a whole with Akarnania and Kephallenia joined the alliance, it was not deemed necessary to repeat the name of Korkyra. Xen. Hellen. vi. 2. 2, and Diod. xv. 45, tell us of Timotheos' dealings with the Zakynthian factions: see Grote, ch. 77. Alketas and Neoptolemos (§ 10, lines 13, 14) were the king of the Molossoi and his son. Neoptolemos succeeded his father, dividing the kingdom with his brother Arybbas (see no. 144); and his daughter Olympias was the mother of Alexander the Great. Iason of Pherai, whose name probably followed in line 14, was overlord of Alketas (Xen. Hellen. vi. 1. 7), and the two are called allies in B. C. 373 (Dem. xlix. contr. Timoth. 10, 22). The erasure of the name points to his early defection. Observe that no cities of Asia Minor are here enrolled: the 'peace of Antalkidas' had left them in the hands of the Great King (§ 1), until Alexander freed them. A number of names are broken away in ll. 85 foll., e. g. probably Naxos. It is clear from this document that Diodoros' estimate is true enough (xv. 30): τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις εἰς συμμαχίαν συνέβησαν ἑβδομήκοντα πόλεις.

Compare the earlier inscription no. 100. See Diod. xv. 30, πρῶται δὲ καὶ προθυμότατα συνεμάχησαν αἱ κατὰ τὴν Εὔβοιαν οἰκοῦσαι, χωρὶς Ἑστιαίας; this was after the passing of the decree about the formation of the confederacy (no. 101). On the stone recording that decree the names of the Euboian cities (lines 80 foll.) were added at a date subsequent to the inscribing of the decree itself and in a different hand. For the mover of this decree, see no. 100. It is interesting to refer to the earlier settlement of Chalkis in B. C. 446: no. 40. Ll. 22–23: [αὐτοσπόνδου]ς (?) Wilhelm; [ἀφορολογήτου]ς Dittenberger. At the time of the foundation of the new confederacy, the Methymnaians were already in alliance with Athens; they now send ambassadors asking to be put on the list of the confederacy (no. 101). This must have been very early in the history of the confederacy (see no. 101, note on § 8). We see from lines 20, 21 that the representatives of the confederacy were sailing about the Aegaean swearing in the allies. The formality of swearing had to be gone through three times, by the envoys of the State seeking admission (lines 12 foll.), by the synedrion, with which were combined the representatives of Athens (line 17), and finally by the magistrates of the new ally (line 21).

Accounts of the Athenian Commissioners of the Delian Temple funds, from B. C. 377 to B. C. 373.

The 'Sandwich' marble (in the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge, where it has been re-read), combined with a fragment at Athens (lines 41–109). Στοιχηδόν. See C. I. G. 158; C. I. A. ii. 814 and 814 b; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 86, and Add. p. 641; Michel, Recueil, 577. Comp. Böckh, Staatshaush.[3] ii. pp. 68 foll.; Lebègue, Recherches sur Délos, p. 295; Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén. viii (1884), p. 290; V. de Schoeffer, de Deli ins. rebus, pp. 54 foll.

Some account has been given on nos. 50 and 76 of the relations between Athens and Delos. The formation of the Delian confederacy under Athens, and the placing of the common funds in the temple, had tended to subordinate the religious interests of Delos to the political. The transference of the treasury to Athens in B. C. 454 (no. 33) would still further diminish its prestige: so that amid the troubles of the Peloponnesian war, though the Athenians and the islanders still continued to send their θεωρίαι, in B. C. 426 the splendour of the festival had dwindled almost to nothing (see Thuk. iii. 104). In 426 the Athenians re-established the Delian festival, and the magnificent θεωρία of Nikias (Plut. Nic. 3) belonged to the second or third celebration. Henceforward the Athenians undertook the direct management of the temple and its treasures. If we are right in concluding from no. 83 that after Aigospotamoi the Athenians were for a time dispossessed, we may hazard the conjecture that their influence in Delos was restored (not without some opposition, as this inscription testifies) at the formation of the New Athenian Confederacy in B. C. 378–7. The Delian Commissioners were called Ἀμφικτύονες, because in theory they were the deputies τῶν Ἰώνων τε καὶ περικτιόνων νησιωτῶν (Thuk. loc. cit.) to whom the festival pertained from olden times. The great festival took place on the sixth and seventh of Thargelion (May) in the third year of each Olympiad: a lesser festival took place yearly. (See however A. Mommsen, in Bursian's Jahresbericht, 1886, pp. 329 foll.) The financial term dated from one great festival to another, and this inscription accordingly gave the accounts of the four years in which Kalleas, Charisandros, Hippodamas, and Sokratides were archons, i. e. B. C. 377–376 to 374–373 (see § 8). The following paraphrase will explain the heading § 1: 'In the name of the gods. Sums called in by the Athenian Amphiktyons (i.e. Delos-Commissioners) from Kalleas' archonship down to Thargelion in Hippodamas' year (—according to Attic reckoning, but in Delian reckoning, from Epigenes' archonship down to Thargelion in Hippias' year—) during the term for which the Amphiktyons held office; their secretary being Diodoros, son of Olympiodoros of Skambonidai; (the Amphiktyons being) Idiotes, son of Theogenes of Acharnai, during Charisandros archonship, down to the commencement in Hekatombaion of Hippodamas' archonship; Sosigenes, son of Sosiades of Xypetè, during the year of Kalleas' archonship; Epigenes, son of Metagenes of Koilè, Antimachos, son of Euthynomos of Marathon, Epikrates, son of Menestratos of Pallene.'

Thus during this period of three years there were always four Amphiktyons in office with their secretary Diodoros. In the first year (377–376) they were Sosigenes, Epigenes, Antimachos, Epikrates; in the next year, Sosigenes was replaced by Idiotes, who held office until the beginning of the year of Hippodamas (July B.C. 375); in B.C. 374–373 the number was raised to five, Nikomenes and another (l. 60) coming on. Five Amphikytons and a secretary are mentioned in another inscription (Bull. Corr. Hellén. viii (1884), p. 294, no. 7), and that seems to have been the normal number after the first few years. The board of Amphiktyons appointed in 377–376, since they do not refer to any earlier board, were presumably the first after the re-acquisition by Athens of the government of the Delian temple (which, as we have said, probably took place in B.C. 378–377 when the new confederacy was organized). After this board had served for three years the administration was reorganized. The accounts for these three years, or rather two years and a part of the third, are therefore given together.

Most of § 5 will be clear to any one who will refer to Thuk. iii. 104 and Plut. Nicias, 3; the ἀρχιθέωροι are perhaps the chiefs not only of the Athenian theoria, but also of those sent by the allies. κομιδή is 'cost of carriage': πεντηκοστή is export duty of two per cent.: the ξύλα were possibly to make a bridge (like Nikias') between Rheneia and Delos; the πέταλα were for gilding the horns of the oxen sacrificed.

§ 6. Now follows a much mutilated passage relating to expenditure on the festival, ending (l. 47):—

In the second year of the quadriennium, eight (?) Delians had been fined 10,000 dr. each (τίμημα), as is appended to their names (τὸ ἐπιγεγραμμένον, i.e. Μ), and sentenced to perpetual banishment, for dragging the Amphiktyons out of the temple and assaulting them. One of the names is erased, leaving seven. Of these, two bear the names of the Delian archons of the first and fourth years—Epigenes and Pyrrhaithos. Doubtless they are the selfsame men. But how could Pyrrhaithos be elected archon at Delos after the sentence of ἀειφυγία? Quite well: for Delos was not a part of Attic territory or of the confederation, to which alone the ἀειφυγία would refer; and what more likely than that the patriotic party at Delos should select as their archon a man who had even violently challenged the Athenian occupation of the temple? For the Delians resented it bitterly, and repeatedly claimed the restoration of their rights, as the Δηλιακοὶ λόγοι of several of the orators (written in defence of the Athenian occupation) prove (see Hypereides, Frag. xiii). How long after the time of Demosthenes the Delians remained deprived of their temple we do not know. Von Schöffer (pp. 87 foll.) is inclined to date the restoration as late as B.C. 308–307. In B.C. 166 the Romans made over Delos again to Athens (Polyb. xxx. 18; xxxii. 17; see however Lebègue, p. 305). Its devastation under Mithradates is recorded by Pausan. iii. 23. 3.

§ 16. List of houses dedicated to Apollo :—

Οἰκ[ίαι] ἐν Δή[λωι ἱ]εραὶ τοῦ Ἀπόλλωνος τ|[οῦ] Δηλίου. These are no doubt confiscated properties. Some of the names are the same as in § 15. Οἰκία is a dwelling-house, οἴκημα a building. Χαλκεῖον is a bronze foundry. The Delian bronze was famous (Pliny, N. H. xxiv. 2).

Wilhelm makes the very probable suggestion that another secretary's name (Φύλακος - - - Οἰναῖος, see C. I. A. iv (2) 49c) may be restored in l. 3, and that Philokles' name stands at the head because he was secretary at the time when several decrees were inscribed, like Kephisophon in no. 81 (above p. 165).

This decree dates from the autumn of B. C. 375, immediately after Timotheos' visit to Korkyra (Xen. Hellen. v. 4. 64). The result of this decree was that the names of Kephallenia and Akarnania were inscribed upon the list (no. 101); that of the Korkyraian demos had already been inscribed (see above, p. 196). An alliance was made with them, of which the treaty with Korkyra is extant (no. 106).

The Akarnanians, after the alliance they concluded with Athens at the opening of the Peloponnesian war (Thuk. ii, 68), were among the staunchest of the Athenian allies, with the exception of one town (Thuk. ii. 102, Οἰνιάδας ἀεί ποτε πολεμίους ὄντας μόνους Ἀκαρνάνων, cp. i. 111). Their personal affection for the Athenian general Phormion is testified to by Thuk. ii. 81 foll., 102 foll.; iii. 7 (cp. no. 149). Not less cordial were their relations with Demosthenes (Thuk. iii. 94 foll., 107 foll.). So on the Athenian side in the Syrakusan expedition (Thuk. vii. 57), καὶ Ἀκαρνάνων τινὲς ἅμα μὲν κέρδει, τὸ δὲ πλέον Δημοσθένους φιλίᾳ καὶ Ἀθηναίων εὐνοίᾳ ξύμμαχοι ὄντες ἐπεκούρησαν. Again they fought for Athens in the Korinthian war (Xen. Hellen. iv. 2. 17; cp. iv. 6. 1 foll.). In B.C. 389 Agesilaos forced them into alliance with Sparta (Xen. Hellen. iv. 7. 1; Ages. 2. 20). Our inscription records their return to their old allies, accompanied by Korkyra and Kephallenia.

The following epitaph, found in the Kerameikos, may refer to these negotiations (C.I.A. ii. 1678; Arch. Zeit. 1871, p. 28; Kaibel, Epigr. gr., 37).

For the negotiations which led to this alliance, see the preceding inscription. The mention of possible enemies of the demos of the Korkyraians (where we should have expected simply ἐπὶ Κορκυραίους) is explained by the fact that Korkyra was at this time divided by factions, of which the popular one was in power and made the alliance with Athens. The similar phrase in line 6 referring to the Athenians may be due to symmetry, or to the still lingering fear of the anti-democratic party. Cp. nos. 119, 123. But these are standing formulae in alliances.

Appended in two columns were the names of those who swore to the treaty on the part of Athens and of Amyntas; only a fragment remains. . . . [Φύλα]ρχοι (or [Ἵππα]ρχοι)· | . . . . . κλῆς Ἐρχι(εύς), | [Δημοχ]άρης Παια(νιεύς). | [Ἀμύντα]ς Ἀρριδαίου |, [Ἀλέξανδ]ρος Ἀμύντου.

This alliance belongs to a somewhat later date than the treaty commemorated in no. 95, as is shown by the fact that Alexandros (the eldest son of Amyntas III, and afterwards king from 370–369 to 368 B. C.) was now old enough to figure beside his father. Possibly the alliance belongs to the time of Timotheos' expedition to Thrace in B.C. 373. Swoboda suggests also that the Ptolemaios of our inscription is identical with the murderer of Alexandros II.

Dionysios the elder had all along been a faithful, though not very active, ally of Sparta (see Lysias, xix. de bonis Ar. § 20; Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 26–28; Diod. xv. 23. 47; Xen. Hellen. vi. 2. 4. 33; Diod. xvi. 57). The attempt made by Athens in B. C. 394–393 (no. 91) to win Dionysios to their side had not been at all successful. But after the important congress of B. C. 371 (Xen. Hellen. vi. 3), when Athens and Sparta became allied against Thebes, Dionysios was reconciled to Athens (Xen. Hellen. vii. 1. 20. 28; Diod. xv. 70); and at the Lenaia B. C. 367 he gained the first prize for his Tragedy Λύτρα Ἕκτορος, having previously stood second and third (Clinton, F. H. ad ann.). This decree and the next following make an important addition to our scanty knowledge of the transactions briefly spoken of by Xen. Hellen. vii. 1. 27–28; Diod. xv. 70 (cp. Grote, ch. 79; Holm, iii. ch. 9). The second expedition of Epameinondas into the Peloponnese took place in B. C. 369, when the Spartans received assistance not only from the Athenians but also from Dionysios. Probably the crown mentioned in l. 27 was voted at that time. The decree before us was passed in the early summer of B. C. 368. At this same season Ariobarzanes' envoy Philiskos, acting in the name of the Great King, on the strength of the peace of Antalkidas, convened the congress at Delphoi with a view to a general peace, perhaps at the suggestion of Athens (Grote and Holm, ibid.). Little or nothing came of it, as the Spartans stoutly demanded that they should have Messene restored to them. Xenophon names the Athenians and Spartans, and their allies, and the Thebans, as represented at the congress, but says nothing of Dionysios. It is clear, however, from this decree that he was an important agent in these proceedings. Without believing the statement of Ephoros (quoted by the Schol. on Aristeides, Panath. 177. 20—who confuses Dionysios I and II) that Dionysios was in league with the Persians against the liberties of Greece—which represents the diplomatic gossip of the time—we may yet believe that he was very willing to enlarge his own influence by acting with the Persians as a mediator between the contending Greek states.

The following points in the decree require comment. Line 2: for the secretary's name cp. C. I. A. iv (2), 768 b (A), line 18. Line 5 foll.; Dionysios was sending envoys to the Delphian congress; he also sends envoys and a letter to Athens, recommending peace. The temple referred to is that of Apollo at Delphoi, which is generally supposed to have been destroyed by earthquake in 373 B. C. (See, however, Homolle, Bull. Corr. Hellén., 1896, pp. 691 foll.) Just as it was a foremost provision of the treaties of 423 and 421 B. C. (Thuk. iv. 118, v. 18) that the Delphian temple should be neutral, so here in the negotiations for a general peace, it seems to be suggested that each state shall contribute to the rebuilding of the temple at Delphoi, as a pledge of bona fides in the movement for peace; cp. too Xen. Hellen. vi. 4. 2. Lines 9–16: the synod of the allies convened at Athens is to consider Dionysios' suggestions, and report thereon to the δῆμος. The βουλή further frames this προβούλευμα to be submitted to the δῆμος without delay, the deputies of the allies and the envoys of Dionysios being also invited to the ἐκκλησία. (For a discussion of the procedure see von Hartel and Höck loc. cit.) Lines 16 foll.: the Athenians praise Dionysios for his zeal in maintaining the provisions of the peace of Antalkidas (τῇ βασιλέως εἰρήνῃ), and grant him and his sons the freedom of their city (cp. Demosth. xii. Phil. Epist. 10). The decree of the people, approving this προβούλευμα, is lost, if indeed it was ever inscribed; but unless a probouleuma was amended, there was no need to inscribe the decree confirming it.

Mytilene was one of the first to join the new confederacy in B. C. 378 (see no. 101); the particular services referred to in the appended decree, § C, are not known, but probably Lesbian ships had helped Chabrias at the battle of Naxos in B. C. 376, and accompanied Timotheos in his Aegaean cruise the following year. (Yet in this case the thanks would be somewhat late. Judeich refers it to an expedition by Iphikrates in B. C. 369–368 against Samos.) Doubtless Mytilene shared the growing hopes of further maritime supremacy for Athens (Grote, ch. 79): but more than this we cannot say towards connecting our inscription with the history of the time. The restoration of the latter part of § C is highly conjectural. Dittenberger is followed in the main. Stephanos, the mover of the first decree, was the husband of Neaira ([Dem.] lix. 43, where his connexion with Kallistratos, the mover of the decree of B. C. 369–368, is mentioned). See also no. 139. The name Hieroitas is well-known in Lesbos (Wilhelm, Arch.-epigr. Mittheil. aus Oest., xv. p. 8). The σύνεδροι are the deputies of the cities in the league, sent to the synod at Athens. The more important states, such as Mytilene, as it appears from this inscription, had more than one representative; the rank and file had but one (see Höck, loc. cit.). In § B the mover was perhaps a near kinsman of his namesake the envoy.

The Leukadians were allied with Sparta in 373 B. C. in the expedition against Korkyra (Xen. Hellen. vi. 2, 3, 26). No peace or treaty between the Athenians and Leukadians is mentioned by the historians: but as Zakynthos and Kephallenia were already enrolled in the Athenian alliance (no. 101), possibly Leukas also followed them, especially when, after the battle of Leuktra (B. C. 371), the hopes of Athens rose higher than before (Grote, ch. 79).

The preamble of the decree, of which only a few words are preserved in lines 1–3, probably dealt with honours voted to Straton for his various services, and his kindness in helping forward the Athenian envoys, who had come to him at Sidon, in proceeding yet further to the Persian court (ὡς βασιλέα, line 3). In line 1, a paper impression, due to the kindness of Prof. Percy Gardner, shows AI before ἐπεμελήθη, confirming the conjecture Ἀθηναί[ων κ]αὶ made independently by Wilhelm. As Straton is throughout called ὁ Σιδῶνος β., or ὁ Σιδωνίων β., we may construe ὡς βασιλέα in its usual sense, and make the subject of ἐπεμελήθη Straton himself. Straton was famous in antiquity for his luxurious court, as we know from Theopompos and Anaximenes, quoted in Athen. xii. 531: Οἷα γὰρ τοὺς Φαίακας Ὅμηρος ποιεῖν μεμυθολόγηκεν ἑορτάζοντας καὶ πίνοντας καὶ κιθαρῳδῶν καὶ ῥαψῳδῶν ἀκροωμένους, τοιαῦτα καὶ ὁ Στράτων διετέλει ποιῶν πολὺν χρόνον - - - ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον πρὸς τὸν Νικοκλέα φιλοτιμούμενος - - - οἵγε προῆλθον εἰς τοσαύτην ἅμιλλαν, ὡς ἡμεῖς ἀκούομεν, ὥστε πυνθανόμενοι παρὰ τῶν ἀφικνουμένων τάς τε παρασκευὰς τῶν οἰκιῶν κ.τ.λ. ἐφιλονείκουν ὑπερβάλλεσθαι τοῖς τοιούτοις ἀλλήλους . . . οὐ μὴν περί γε τὴν τοῦ βίου τελευτὴν διηυτύχησαν, ἀλλ' ἀμφότεροι βιαίῳ θανάτῳ διεφθάρησαν. This Nikokles was prince of Kypros and the son of Euagoras—see nos. 92 and (1st ed.) 136. Both Straton and Nikokles were of course only subject-kings under the Persian government (cp. Aelian, Var. Hist. vii. 2). Straton took part in the great revolt of the Satraps and perished in B.C. 362: see Babelon, Les Perses Achéménides, p. clxxxiii, citing S. Jerome adv. Jovinian., i. 45. By σύμβολα (in line 19) are meant tesserae hospitales, i. e. practically, in the case of ambassadors, credentials. For Menexenos cp. no. 118. Kephisodotos (l. 30) is doubtless the well-known orator who is named by Xen. Hellen. vi. 3. 2; vii. 1. 14; he was one of the σύνδικοι in the defence of Leptines. (See Comm. on Dem. adv. Lept., which will also explain the exemption from εἰσφορά and χορηγία, &c.) There must always have been a certain number of Sidonian merchants residing at Athens and the Peiraieus: many tombstones of Sidonians are published in C. I. A. ii. 2836, 3316, &c. Any one merely calling at Athens in the course of trade would not be liable for the alien's tax; but should he stay over a certain time (the limit of which is unknown to us), he might become liable, and this rider secures Sidonians immunity from the tax in such a case. In line 17 the ταμίαι τῆς θεοῦ are meant: see no. 101, § 5, where also we find ἐκ τῶν δέκα ταλάντων. The nature of this fund, which was probably a grant from the treasury of the goddess, and is only met with about this time, is discussed at length by Panske, de Magistr. . . . qui pec. publ. curabant (Leipziger Studien, 1890), pp. 26 foll.

The restorations are easily made in accordance with the usual formulas of treaties. With lines 30 foll., which prescribe the manner of taking the oaths on either side, compare the similar provisions in Thuk. v. 47. The restoration of the last few lines is pretty certain as to the general sense, though particular words may be doubtful. In line 37 φρου]ράρχους is due to Kirchhoff, approved by Beloch (L'impero di Dionisio, Memorie dell' Accad. dei Lincei, vii. 1881, p. 235). The phrurarchs came next to the nauarchs, and commanded in the tyrant's strongholds. For the end of line 37, Dittenberger suggests ὀμνύ[ναι δὲ τριάκοντα ἡμ]ερῶν ἑκα]τέρους. The relations between Dionysios and Athens have been described in nos. 91, 108: this alliance with Athens (which is nowhere else recorded) was one of the last acts of his life, for he died towards the middle of B. C. 367.

An alliance between Athens and Sparta was concluded in B.C. 369 (see Xen. Hellen. vii. 1. 1–14; Grote, ch. 79; Holm, iii. ch. 9). We cannot say what was the object of the mission of Spartan envoys mentioned in this decree, which belongs to the month of February 367; but it is noteworthy that this same prytany saw an alliance made between Athens and Dionysios. As Dionysios was a close friend of Sparta, this probably involved further negotiations between the two states.

Then follow the minutes of the adjourned meeting on the seventeenth day of the prytany (lines 42–55); this again is followed by minutes of a meeting in the fifth prytany. The long adjournment was probably only due to accident, and in ordinary years we may suppose that the list was drawn up and checked early in the official year.

For Timotheos' successes, and especially his conquest of Samos, see Isokrates, xv. de permut. 107 foll. In spite of the engagement so explicitly given in no. 101, the Athenians proceeded to send out kleruchs: and though Samos was not a member of the Athenian league, but (since the Peace of Antalkidas) had been gradually brought under Persian dominion, yet none the less the Samian κληρουχία gave great offence to Greece. The first colonists were doubtless sent at once in B.C. 365, and further detachments followed in 361 and 352 B.C. (Grote, ch. 79; Curtius, Hist. Gr. v. p. 95; Beloch, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 274, note 2). The native Samians appear to have been entirely banished (see ed. 1, no. 135), and so large was the efflux from Athens to Samos, that Demades is quoted by Athen. (p. 99 D) as saying: τὴν μὲν Αἴγιναν εἶναι λήμην τοῦ Πειραιῶς, τὴν δὲ Σάμον ἀπορρῶγα τῆς πόλεως ('off-shoot,' perhaps also with the sense of being a drain on the city). The father of Epikuros was one of these Samian colonists, and the childhood of the philosopher was spent there: he came to Athens at eighteen (Diog. Laert. x. 1. 1). The temple of Hera at Samos, a temple well known from Herodotos, was comparable with Delphoi and Olympia for its collection of works of art. The portion of the list given here enumerates the κόσμος τῆς θεοῦ (her 'toilet'). Then follows a statement of the articles missing from the treasury ἐν τῶι μεγάλωι νειῶι; the remainder is certified to be in the treasury, the sealed inventory having been read out and the ἱερός (a temple-slave?) of the goddess having declared that the articles were in their places. Pelysios is a Samian name (B. V. Head, Brit. Mus. Catalogue of Greek Coins, Ionia, p. 365, no. 170—a bronze coin of the third or second century B. C.). The dialect is Attic with an Ionic admixture, e. g. κιθών (χιτών); the Attic treasurers retained the spelling of the previous Samian registers. The heading reveals to us how completely the κληρουχία was a microcosm of Athens itself: here are archon, prytanies, πρόεδροι, ταμίαι, and the other details of the Athenian system. It is evident that one of the ταμίαι for B. C. 346 has been omitted by accident. The inventory was taken during the first six months of the new ταμίαι who entered office in July 346. At Athens it would have been made in the presence of the Logistai; but here it is before a special sitting of the βουλή in the Heraion itself; further, at Samos, it is the new officials who record the taking over of the treasures from their predecessors, while at Athens one board records the handing over of the treasures to its successor. The list closely resembles the treasure-lists drawn up at Athens after the archonship of Eukleides; especially those of Artemis Brauronia of the time of Lykurgos the orator. Ἔξαστις seems to mean 'a fringed edge.'

In B. C. 365 the forces of the Arkadian league expelled the Eleians from the place of festival, and commenced the games of the 104th Olympiad in conjunction with the Pisatans. Attacked by the Eleians, who had summoned help from Achaia, and supported by 2,000 Argives and 400 Athenian troopers, they maintained possession of the place; but in order to pay their troops, they were obliged to plunder the temple treasury. Some members of the league, however, and notably the Mantineians, protested against the sacrilege so effectually that in the end the treasure was restored and peace made with the Eleians (B. C. 363). See Xen. Hellen. vii. 4, 14–35. In the interval the Pisatans granted the honour of proxenia here recorded to Kleandros and Sokles. In B. C. 366 Kleandros himself is mentioned by Xenophon (Hellen. vii. 1. 45) as one of five generals, elected by the Arkadians and Argives at the instance of Euphron the Sikyonian to lead them in the anti-Spartan movement. Note the anacoluthon in the last clause.

Kirchhoff remarks that this decree is dated about nine months before the battle of Mantineia, or shortly before the last march of Epameinondas into Peloponnese. Thebes was at this moment supreme in northern Greece, since the capture of Oropos from Athens in B. C. 366 (Xen. Hellen. vii. 4. 1), the destruction of Orchomenos B. C. 364 (Diod. xv. 79), and the crushing defeat of Alexandros of Pherai (Plut. Pelopid. 35). Note, as regards this last fact, that the hieromnemon who proposed the punishment of Astykrates was a Thessalian.

The Thebans, thus dominant, were not slow to make the Amphiktyonic council subserve their own political purposes, as afterwards in the Sacred War. But in Phokis there was a decided opposition to the supremacy of Thebes; and the Phokians declined to follow Epameinondas in his last expedition (Xen. Hellen. vii. 5. 4). Therefore we may adopt Kirchhoff's plausible suggestion, that the persons here welcomed at Athens were citizens of Delphoi who were friendly to Athens, and were the leaders of the anti-Theban opposition, and had accordingly been banished through Theban influence. Dittenberger notes, however, that of the eleven names mentioned, no less than six occur among the Delphic magistrates between 351 and 343 B. C.; so that it would seem that the exiles were recalled after the fall of the Theban supremacy. Kratinos, who had probably moved the προβούλευμα, appears to have taken the opportunity of moving an amendment to it when brought before the ἐκκλησία.

The Menelaos of this inscription apparently belonged to the tribe of the Lynkestai (a branch of the Pelagones), and is to be distinguished from the half-brother of king Philip (Justin, vii. 4. 5: cp. Harpokration, s. v. Μενέλαος; in the latter passage the two are identified). Our inscription proves that Menelaos was in the neighbourhood of Thrace, and co-operating with Timotheos in those successes in Chalkidike and the Makedonian coast which are described by Isokrates (xv. de permut. 111–113). At a later date (B. C. 351, Philipp. i. § 27), Demosthenes chides the Athenians for allowing Menelaos to fight their battles for them, i. e. against Philip in Thrace. We know that Timotheos' great difficulty was money to pay his troops (cp. Grote, ch. 79), so that it is interesting to find Menelaos assisting him with funds. Timotheos failed to take Amphipolis.

The reference to Menelaos' forefathers is borne out by fragmentary inscriptions (C. I. A. i. 42, 43; Hill, Sources for Gk. Hist. iii. 272, 273), which prove friendly relations between Athens and Arrhabaios, king of the Lynkestai (cp. Thuk. iv. 79 foll.). The ἄλλο ἀγαθόν, as we see from no. 124, was probably the Athenian citizenship.

Keos had been among the first islands that joined the new Athenian league in B. C. 376–375 (see no. 101). It appears that, no doubt at the time of the presence in the Aegaean waters of the naval force under Epameinondas (B. C. 363; Diod. Sic. xv. 78–79; Grote, ch. 79), which had for its object injury to Athenian maritime influence, there took place in Keos an anti-Athenian revolution. The Athenian proxenos was killed by one Antipatros, and the Athenian faction expelled. Chabrias however restored them, and Antipatros was condemned to death. Again the anti-Athenian party rose to power at Iulis, and took the steps sanctioned by custom in such circumstances (§ 3). From the Scholiast on Aischines, i. 64, we gather that Aristophon was sent to Keos as general, and punished the rebels severely διὰ φιλοχρηματίαν, for which Hypereides afterwards unsuccessfully indicted him in a γραφὴ παρανόμων. It was Aristophon then who put down the second revolution. The Athenians appear to have assisted the people of Iulis with money, which now in B. C. 363 they require to be repaid by the month of Skirophorion (June, B. C. 362), the last month of Charikleides' year. Other islands in the league were backward in the payment of loans and συντάξεις, as appears from the mention of the Commissioners in § 1.

§ 2 orders the erection at Iulis and Athens of the terms of agreement settled by Chabrias when he reorganized the city after the first revolution. These are given in §§ 4 foll.

§ 3 describes the second anti-Athenian revolution. It is not clear whether the stelai which were thrown out of the temple contained the original contract with Athens, made about B. C. 374, or the contract referred to in § 2.

Lines 47 foll.: Accused were to appear before the strategoi within thirty days in Keos, or at Athens, the ἔκκλητος πόλις, at which certain cases were to be tried. δίκη ἔκκλητος below (l. 74) seems, although this point is not quite certain, to refer to appeal-cases, and not merely to any cases which were tried in the first instance at Athens (cp. Hesych. s. v. ἔκκλητοι δίκαι· αἱ ἐπὶ ξένης λεγομέναι, καὶ οὐκ ἐν τῇ πόλει). See Lipsius, loc. cit.

§ 4 recites the covenant and oath entered into by Chabrias (representing Athens and the allies) towards the city of Keos. Lines 65, 66: the object of allowing malcontents to reside in any of the allied states was to prevent their going over to the Theban side.

§ 5 gives the corresponding engagement and oath of allegiance on the part of the city of Keos towards Athens and the league. The Keians undertake to allow all cases involving sums of more than 100 drachmai to be tried in the first instance in the ἔκκλητος πόλις (Athens).

§ 6 gives the oath of the citizens of Keos favourable to Athens and now restored to their city.

For a commercial treaty with Keos in which, doubtless as a punishment for the revolt, very stringent terms are dictated by Athens, see no. 137.

This alliance, made under Molon (i.e. after 22–23 July, 362), has to be connected with the battle of Mantineia (Xen. Hell. vii. 5. 1–3). That battle is placed by Diodoros in the year of Charikleides (xv. 82; cp. [Plut.] x. Or. p. 845 e). Either therefore these authorities date the battle too early (as Beloch supposes, who would put it possibly as late as June–July, 361); or this alliance is subsequent to the battle (P. Foucart, loc. cit.; B. Niese, Hermes, 34, p. 527, note 1). In the latter case, the alliance which we have here is merely a renewal of the agreement which must have been made by Athens with the same allies before the battle. Thus, for instance, with the arrangement in lines 34, 35, compare the understanding mentioned by Xenophon (vii. 5. 3), that the hegemony should belong to each state in its own territory. The Lakedaimonians, who had stood with the Athenians at Mantineia, are said to have excluded themselves from the κοινὴ εἰρήνη which followed (see next inscription); accordingly we find they have no part in this new alliance. Xenophon does not name the Phleiasians, but their position was, as hitherto, one of firm fidelity to the Spartan side; see Xenophon's chapter of praise, Hell. vii. 2. Their constitution was democratic in B.C. 381–380 (ibid. v. 3. 16), and probably also at the time of this agreement (cp. l. 30). Elis and Achaia were under oligarchies (ibid. vii. 1. 43; 4. 15).

The restorations given in the text are Wilhelm's, modified in l. 8 in accordance with Fränkel's reading οἴδασιν (cp. Xen. Oecon. xx. 14; Jannaris, Hist. Gk. Grammar, § 970). The inscription is sufficiently well preserved to show that it represents a resolution taken by Greek states who had agreed to settle their differences (l. 4) and join in a κοινὴ εἰρήνη. Böckh supposed this to be the peace of Antalkidas (B. C. 386); Köhler the peace which followed the battle of Chaironeia. Schäfer in his latest reference to the subject doubts the genuineness of the inscription; seemingly without good reason, since a forger would have avoided the difficulties which the text presents to the restorer. For reasons given by Wilhelm, Böckh's and Köhler's dates must be rejected. It is to be noticed that a message has come to the Greeks from 'the satraps,' in reply to which they state that unless the Great King takes the offensive they will not in any way move against him. This circumstance points to the time of the revolt of the satraps (Diod. xv. 90). Just as Tachos of Egypt appealed to Athens (see no. 121), so, it would seem, the satraps who had intrigued together against their master appealed to the Greeks in general. Chabrias went to help Tachos in his private capacity; the Spartans on the other hand were the only Greeks to make an alliance of state with Tachos, and they sent their king Agesilaos (Grote, pt. 2, ch. 80). Now Diodoros (xv. 89. 1) tells us that after the battle of Mantineia, the Greeks συνθέμενοι κοινὴν εἰρήνην καὶ συμμαχίαν κατέταττον ἐν τῇ συμμαχίᾳ καὶ τοὺς Μεσσηνίους. οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι διὰ τὴν πρὸς τούτους ἀκατάλλακτον ἀλλοτριότητα τῶν σπονδῶν οὐ προείλοντο κοινωνεῖν καὶ μόνοι τῶν Ἑλλήνων ὑπῆρχον ἔκσπονδοι. Cp. xv. 90; Polyb. iv. 33. 8 f.; Plut. Ages. 35.

The documents relating to the negotiations between the various states with a view to such a general peace after the defeat of Thebes at Mantineia would naturally, since Sparta abstained from this movement, be drawn up in the dialect of the other leading state—Athens. This explains the fact that the dialect of our fragment is Attic, in spite of its being found at Argos. The satraps seem to have approached the Greeks during the course of their negotiations, and have received the reply embodied in this inscription.

The last lines seem to have reference to judges delegated by the states in connexion with territorial disputes. So far as the negotiations for the general peace were concerned, the settlement of such disputes must have been an important factor. But the inscription when intact probably referred to many matters, of which only one, the relation with Persia, is preserved to us.

Tachos king of Egypt shared in the general revolt of the Western Satrapies from Persia at the latter end of the reign of Artaxerxes II. Tachos, in the desire to render himself independent, called in the aid of mercenaries, and secured the assistance of the aged Agesilaos from Sparta (who died on his march homewards to Kyrene in the winter of 361–360 B. C.), and of Chabrias from Athens. See the notes on the preceding inscription; Smith's Dict. of Biog. s. v. Tachos; Niese on Agesilaos in Pauly-Wissowa's Real-Encyclop. i. 802; Maspero, Hist. Anc. iii. p. 759; Judeich, Kleinasiatische Studien, pp. 164 foll.; Xen. Ages. ii. 27 foll.; Plut. Ages. 36 foll.; Clinton, F. H. ii, Appendix on the Kings of Sparta (Agesilaos). Foucart dates our inscription in B. C. 360–59 or one of the succeeding two years, since in these alone is there a vacancy for the secretary Phanokles. But the assumption of so late a date causes other difficulties. Possibly Phanokles was a suffectus in B. C. 362 or 361.

Relic of Chabrias' Expedition to Egypt: B. C. 361–360 (?).

On a stone (now lost) found somewhere near Memphis: the text is from Böckh-Franz, C. I. G. vol. iii. no. 4702.

All that the inscription itself reveals is that it is a votive monument to an Egyptian deity, erected by Greek mercenaries some time in the fourth century B. C. The writing cannot be later. The editors are therefore justified in conjecturing that these may have been mercenaries in Chabrias' expedition in help of King Tachos (see no. 121). But it is equally possible that the inscription may belong to the time of Chabrias' earlier campaigns in Egypt (B. C. 386–380): see Judeich, Klein-asiatische Studien, p. 159. Strabo mentions a Χαβρίου χάραξ and a Χαβρίου κώμη in the Delta, which doubtless date from this campaign (Strab. pp. 760, 803; cp. Plin. N. H. v. 68; Chabriae castra). The metrical lines, of which only a fragment remains, are only restored verbi gratia. The οἰκοδομαί are the pyramids. Τᾶνος is probably Ptah-Tanen (or -Tatunen) the chief god of Memphis.

Alexandros the tyrant of Pherai (B. C. 368–358), a man of cruel and unscrupulous character, was intent upon enlarging his power at the expense of the autonomous Thessalian towns. The Thessalians accordingly applied to Thebes, and the Thebans in repeated campaigns succeeded in checking and finally curbing his ambition, until he was forced in B. C. 364 to restore the Thessalian towns and content himself within Pherai, becoming a dependent ally of Thebes (Diod. xv. 80; Plut. Pelop. 26 foll.). He had previously enjoyed the alliance of Athens (Diod. xv. 71), as our inscription testifies. The new alliance estranged him from his old friends, although the stelè on which his alliance with Athens was commemorated remained standing for the time (line 39). The death of Epameinondas in B. C. 362 freed him from fear of Thebes, and he at once manned a fleet and proceeded to harass the maritime allies of Athens (Diod. xv. 95; Polyain. vi. 2; Dem. l. in Polycl. 4). The Thessalians, whose freedom he was again assailing, apply to Athens for an alliance against their common enemy. After their deliverance from Alexandros, the Thessalians had elected a chief archon of their league (Agelaos); under him were four polemarchs, commanding the troops of Pelasgiotis, Hestiaiotis, Thessaliotis, and Phthiotis respectively. The hieromnemones cannot (from the place and manner in which they are mentioned) be the general council of the Thessalian league, but are rather two representatives sent to Delphoi by the Thessalians. The phrase εἶναι ἐν τῷ τεταγμένῳ (fin.) means 'he will be acting a proper part,' 'doing his duty' (cp. nos. 60, l. 48; 140, l. 63). For Exekestides, the mover of this decree, see no. 100, l. 18.

This inscription belongs probably to about B. C. 360. Ilion had been seized by fraud by Charidemos (Dem. xxiii. 154) from Artabazos satrap of Daskyleion. Artabazos besieged him. Charidemos appealed to Athens, with the result that Menelaos (see no. 117), who was now an Athenian citizen, negotiated the peace between Charidemos and Artabazos, and in doing so secured the independence of Ilion.

What pretext Philip had for attacking Amphipolis in B.C. 358, after evacuating it in 359, we are not told. Probably during the interval there were two parties within the town, the one desiring a closer union with Athens as of old, the other leaning towards Philip: and he was ready enough to take advantage of the faction. At the commencement of his attack envoys were sent to Athens for help, who arrived just as the Athenians were returned from the Euboian expedition (Dem. Olynth. i. 8), and their names were Hierax and Stratokles. Philon must have been another prominent friend of Athens; for upon the capture of the city Philip τοὺς μὲν ἀλλοτρίως πρὸς αὐτὸν διακειμένους ἐφυγάδευσε (Diod. xvi. 8). Since the decree is passed by the δῆμος, Amphipolis must have retained its constitution, though probably in name only, after the war was over. The dialect is Ionic: for Amphipolis, though an Athenian colony (Thuk. iv. 102: B.C. 437), was yet surrounded by Ionic neighbours, and from the first the Attic element in the town was comparatively small (Thuk. iv. 106). The influence of Sparta must have made it still smaller (Dem. xiii. Phil. Ep. 21). The term προστάται is used in a sense analogous to that of πρυτάνεις in the Athenian constitution.

Athenodoros is described sometimes as a citizen of Imbros (Plut. Phok. 18, &c.), sometimes as an Athenian (Dem. xxiii. in Aristocr. 12); possibly therefore he belonged to a kleruch-family in Imbros. He was one of those condottieri, like Charidemos of Oreos and others, whose adventures are a characteristic of Greek history in the fourth century. We hear of him as serving under the Persian satraps (Polyain. v. 21), and later as the general and kinsman by marriage of Berisades, one of the claimants to the Thrakian throne upon the death of Kotys in B. C. 360 (Dem. loc. cit.); in this position he assisted Athens to regain possession of the Thrakian Chersonese, B. C. 358 (Grote, ch. 80 fin.). Isokrates, in an oration of B. C. 356 (viii. de Pace, 24), speaks of Athenodoros as having 'founded a city' in Thrace. To the same period belongs his encounter with Charidemos narrated by Aineias, Poliork. 24. This was the zenith of his career, and our inscription is of this date: he was then strengthening his position by alliances with neighbouring states. Waddington compares the similar alliance (no. 138) between Hermias of Atarneus and the Erythraians. Later on we hear of Alexander imprisoning Athenodoros and others at Sardeis, and releasing him at the request of Phokion (Plut. loc. cit.; Aelian, V. H. i. 25). We may conjecture Konon (l. 2) to have been the son of some admirer of the Athenian admiral, and so named after him. The date of this inscription is fixed with much probability by its apparent reference to the state of things prevailing during the Social War (B. C. 357–355) and its resemblance to no. 130. From both inscriptions we see that the old rule against the placing of Athenian governors and garrisons in allied cities had broken down. Androtion, who is best known by Demosthenes' twenty-second oration (written for his accuser in B. C. 355–354), was a βουλευτής in B. C. 356–355, therefore this inscription probably belongs to the previous year. The reasons for the gratitude expressed by the people of Arkesine show what opportunities of enriching themselves, not to say of extortion, were enjoyed by Athenian officials. Cp. the note on Aristophon in no. 118, p. 235.

Athenian Expedition to Euboia; settlement of the Euboian cities: B. C. 357–356.

Στοιχηδόν. C. I. A. ii. 64, and iv (2), p. 22; comp. Mitth. d. Arch. Inst., Ath. Abth. 1877, pp. 209 foll.; Foucart, Rev. arch. xxxv. 1878, p. 227 sq.; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 109; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. i. p. 178, no. 181 (xlvi). The original is at Athens.

The earlier part of the inscription (containing the terms of the agreement) is lost: but the date is recovered by the mention of the archon Agathokles. On the expedition itself see Diod. xvi. 7, and Grote, ch. 86, where all the references will be found. The expedition set forth in the archonship of Kephisodotos (B. C. 358–357), and this inscription implies that the Thebans had now been expelled from Euboia, and envoys had been interchanged between Athens and Karystos, Eretria, Chalkis, Hestiaia respecting the revision of their contract; it does not appear that these Euboian cities had actually deserted Athens on this occasion, but some change seems to have become necessary. By σύνεδρος is meant a 'deputy' representing an allied city at the confederate synod. Menon was also a general in B. C. 361, see Dem. l. in Polycl. 12. The name of Chabrias was deliberately erased, perhaps owing to his having fallen into disgrace. For when he fell at Chios he was no longer strategos (Schäfer, Dem. u. s. Zeit, i². p. 168).

The accounts follow for the years succeeding down to B. C. 326–325 or later.

The Delphic temple was perhaps destroyed by the earthquake of B. C. 373 (Strabo, viii. p. 384; Diod. xv. 48, 49, &c.; see p. 216). The board of naopoioi occupied with the restoration of the temple was an international one, and their duty was to supervise the disbursement by the Delphic council of the funds contributed by the various Greek states. Unlike other boards of naopoioi, which had the general management of the temple affairs, the Delphic board was concerned only with the work of building. The board assembled at the ordinary autumn and spring meetings of the Amphiktyony. In the interval the work was superintended by the Delphic members of the board and by those others who remained in residence for that purpose (ἐπιμηνιεύειν). The present quotation covers the time from the autumn meeting in the archonship of Argilios down to autumn B. C. 349. During this time the work was considerably interrupted, doubtless by the war. No work seems to have been done until July in the archonship of Aristoxenos (fixed to B. C. 351–350 by a later passage in this inscription).

I. In hand in the year of Argilios (not necessarily the year immediately before that of Herakleios, B. C. 352–351, but probably before the war, and therefore B. C. 356–355): 20 tal. 14 min. 10 stat. In the Delphic system, 35 staters or 70 drachms were reckoned to the mina. Orders to begin work were given by the naopoioi (those absent signifying their consent by letter—ἐπιστειλάντων) in the year of Herakleios (spring 351).

II. Year of Aristoxenos B. C. 351–350. Expenditure on mortar or some kind of brick-clay (so Keil explains ἰσχεγάου), cranes and other engines, digging foundations (σκαπέτων), quarrying, importing stone and removing unsatisfactory blocks, cooking the meals of the workmen, &c. The stone (see III) came largely from the neighbourhood of Korinth.

III. Appropriation for the works at Korinth : 18 minae.

IV. Expenditure of the said appropriation, on the crane, lead (βόλιμος = μόλιβος), shaping and bringing stones for the base of the crane, bringing triglyphs (carved at Korinth?), cost of tackle (τοπεῖον), epistyle-blocks, tablets for keeping the accounts, weighing and running in (or packing for transport?) the lead, 18 minae 2½ obols. An excess of 2½ obols over the sum granted.

V. From spring B. C. 351 to autumn B. C. 349 the naopoioi did not meet, owing doubtless to the war; Diod. (xvi. 39. 8) describes the invasion of Phokis by the Thebans (the last of the series of events grouped under the year B. C. 352–351, and therefore somewhat later).

The decree is dated in the 9th prytany of Agathokles' year, i. e. about May 356. No wonder that early in the Social War Athens (with the approval of the synod of the league, κατὰ τὰ δόγματα τῶν συμμάχων,) had placed a garrison at Andros; for Andros commanded the Kyklades and Euboia. The stationing of a garrison and archon in Andros would in ordinary circumstances have been a breach of the terms of the confederacy (see no. 101, l. 22). The difficulty was to maintain the garrison: they were demanding their arrears of pay, and were inclined to levy requisitions upon the Andrians. Archedemos, one of the ten generals, is selected to see that the garrison is paid out of the συντάξεις of the islands (see no. 118, § 1). In l. 8 εἶ, as commonly, for ᾗ.

Alliance of Athens with the kings of Thrace, Paionia, and Illyris against Philip: B. C. 356.

Στοιχηδόν. A broken stelè, discovered at Athens: Köhler, C. I. A. ii. pp. 405 foll., no. 66 b; cp. Kumanudes in Ἀθήναιον, 1876, p. 172; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 114; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. i. p. 188, no. 187 (xlviii). The restorations in ll. 9, 10, 15–17, 30, 33, 34, so far as not elsewhere published, are due to Dr. Wilhelm.

Diodoros, xvi. 22, mentions the alliance of the three kings against the aggressions of Philip: κατὰ δὲ τὴν Μακεδονίαν τρεῖς βασιλεῖς συνέστησαν ἐπὶ τὸν Φίλιππον, ὅ τε τῶν Θρᾳκῶν καὶ Παιόνων καὶ Ἰλλυριῶν. οὗτοι γὰρ ὄντες ὅμοροι τοῖς Μακεδόσι, καὶ τὴν αὔξησιν ὑφορώμενοι τοῦ Φιλίππου, καθ' ἑαυτοὺς μὲν οὐκ ἦσαν ἀξιόμαχοι προηττημένοι, κοινῇ δὲ πολεμοῦντες ὑπέλαβον ῥᾳδίως αὐτοῦ περιέσεσθαι. διόπερ ἀθροιζόντων τὰς δυνάμεις, ἐπιφανεὶς ἀσυντάκτοις καὶ καταπληξάμενος ἠνάγκασε προσθέσθαι τοῖς Μακεδόσιν. He does not give their names, nor mention their brothers, nor their alliance with Athens: for these facts we are indebted to the inscription. Coins however of king Lyppeios (whose name is written Λύκκειος or Λύκπειος) and Ketriporis are known: see B. V. Head, Historia Numorum, pp. 207, 241. Probably these kings, like Potidaia (Dem. iv. Philip. i. 35), found Athens but a broken reed to trust in. The news of their submission to his general Parmenion reached Philip at the same time with the news of Alexander's birth, and the victory of his horse at Olympia (Plut. Alex. 3). This decree is dated July 356.

Κρηνίδες was the mining centre, the possession of which brought Philip a revenue of over 1000 talents, and the site where he founded Philippoi. The name of Ketriporis' brother is perhaps Μονούνιος.

Neopolis in Thrace appeals for Athenian protection against Philip: B. C. 356–355.

Στοιχηδόν. The stone is at Athens. Köhler, Hermes, vii. 164; C. I. A. ii. 66 (cp. p. 406); Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 115; R. von Scala, Staatsvertr. i. p. 193, no. 191 (xlix); Perdrizet, Rev. d. Ét. anc. 1900, p. 263. The stelè is broken at bottom, but surmounted by a relief (see Schöne's Griechische Reliefs, p. 23, pl. vii. 48): Athena extending her right hand to a female figure, over whom is inscribed ΠΑΡΘΕΝΟΣ. This is doubtless the Virgin (Artemis) of the Thrakian Neopolis; see supra, no. 75 and Berlin Beschreibung d. ant. Münzen, ii. p. 103).

The decree closed with a grant of honours to the Neopolitan envoys: see the heading.

The Thrakian Neopolis had at an earlier date shown loyalty to Athens, B. C. 410 (no. 75). Philip had captured Amphipolis in the first half of B. C. 357; in the following year Pydna and Potidaia shared the same fate. Already Philip was preparing to found the city named after himself, with an eye to the gold mines of that region (see l. 45 of the preceding inscription). No wonder that Neopolis turned in despair to Athens (see Grote, ch. 86 fin.). Observe that the mover of this decree, Polyeuktos, was the well-known political ally of Demosthenes (Plut. Dem. 23, &c.). The decree is dated '9th prytany of Elpines' year,' i. e. early summer of 355 B. C.

Decrees of Mylasa concerning Maussollos, Satrap of Karia: B.C. 367–366, 361–360, 355–354.

Found at Mylasa; now in the Louvre: Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Archéol. pt. v. 377-9; cp. Böckh, *C. I. Hoffmann, die griech. Dial. iii. p. 79, nos. 176 (B) and 177 (C); Judeich, Kleinas. Stud. p. 236. The three decrees are on one stone.

A. 39*th year of Artaxerxes Mnemon* (B.C. 367–366):—

Ἔτει τριηκοστῶι καὶ ἐνάτωι Ἀρταξέρξευς βασιλεύοντος, Μαυσσώλλου ἐξαιθραπεύοντος, ἔδοξε Μυλασεῦσιν, ἐκκλησίης κυρίης γενομένης, καὶ ἐπεκύρωσαν αἱ τρεῖς φυλαί· ἐπειδὴ Ἄρλισσις Οὐσσώλλου ἀποσταλεὶς ὑπὸ Καρῶν πρὸς βασιλέα παρεπρέσβευσεν καὶ ἐπεβούλευσε Μαυσσώλλωι, ὄντι εὐεργέτηι τῆς πόλεως τῆς Μυλασέων καὶ αὐτῶι καὶ τῶι πατρὶ Ἑκατόμνωι καὶ τοῖς προγόνοις τοῖς τούτων, καὶ βασιλεὺς ἀδικεῖν καταγνοὺς Ἄρλισσιν ἐζημίωσε θανάτωι, πρᾶξαι καὶ τὴν πόλιν τὴν Μυλασέων περὶ τῶν κτημάτων ἐκείνου κατὰ τοὺς νόμους τοὺς πατρίους· καὶ πρόσθετα ποιήσαντες Μαυσσώλλωι, ἐπαρὰς ἐποιήσαντο περὶ τούτων μήτε προτιθέναι ἔτι παρὰ ταῦτα μηδένα μήτε ἐπιψηφίζειν· εἰ δέ τις ταῦτα παραβαίνοι, ἐξώλη γίνεσθαι καὶ αὐτὸν καὶ τοὺς ἐκείνου πάντας.

B. 45*th year of Artaxerxes Mnemon* (B.C. 361–360):—

Ἔτει τετρωκοστῶι καὶ πέμπτωι Ἀρταξέρξευς βασιλεύοντος, Μαυσσώλλου ἐξαιθραπεύοντος, ἔδοξε Μυλασεῦσι, ἐκκλησίης κυρίης γενομένης, καὶ ἐπεκύρωσαν αἱ τρεῖς φυλαί· τοὺς Πελδέμω παῖδας παρανομήσαντας ἐς τὴν εἰκόνα τὴν Ἑκατόμνω, ἀνδρὸς πολλὰ καὶ ἀγαθὰ ποιήσαντος τὴμ πόλιν τὴμ Μυλασέων καὶ λόγωι καὶ ἔργωι, ἀδικεῖν καὶ τὰ ἱερὰ ἀναθήματα καὶ τὴμ πόλιν καὶ τοὺς εὐεργέτας τῆς πόλεως· ἀδικεῖν δὲ κατα-γνόντες ἐζημίωσαν δημεύσει τῆς οὐσίης, καὶ ἐπώ[λη]σαν τὰ κτήματα αὐτῶν δημοσίηι, ἐκτῆσθαι κυρίως

C. 5th year of Artaxerxes Ochos (B. C. 355–354):—

Ἔτει πέμπτωι Ἀρταξέρξευς βα[σι]λεύοντος, Μαυσσώλλου ἐξαιθραπεύο[ν]τος· Μανίτα τοῦ Πακτύω ἐπιβουλεύσαντος Μαυσσώλλωι τῶι Ἑκατόμνω ἐν τῶι ἱερῶι τοῦ Διὸς τοῦ Λαμβραύνδου, θυσίης ἐνιαυσίης καὶ πανηγύριος ἐούσης, καὶ Μαυσσώλλου μὲν σωθέντος σὺν τῶι Διΐ, Μανίτα δὲ αὐτοῦ τὴν δίκην λαβόντος ἐν χειρῶν νόμωι, ἔγνωσαν Μυλασε[ῖς], παρηνομημένου τοῦ ἱεροῦ καὶ Μαυσσώλλου τοῦ εὐεργετέω, ἔρευναν ποιήσασθαι εἴ τις καὶ ἄλλος μετέ[σ]χεν ἢ ἐκοινώνησεν τῆς πράξιος· ἐλεγκθέντος (sic) δὲ καὶ Θύσσου τοῦ Σύσκω καὶ κριθέντος συναδικεῖν μετὰ Μανίτα· ἔδοξε Μυλασεῦσιν καὶ ἐπεκύρωσαν αἱ τρεῖς φυλαί, τὰ Μανίτα τοῦ Πακτύω καὶ Θύσσου τοῦ Σύσκω προστεθῆναι Μαυσσώλλωι· καὶ τὰ κτήματα ἐπώλησεν ἡ πόλις δημοσίη(ι), ἐπαρὰς ποιησαμένη τούτων τὰς ὠνὰς τοῖς πριαμένοις κυρίας εἶναι, καὶ μήτε προτιθέναι μήτε ἐπιψηφίζειν μηδένα· εἰ δέ τις ταῦτα παραβαίνοι, ἐξώλη γίνεσθαι καὶ αὐτὸν καὶ τοὺς ἐκείνου πάντας.

Ἐξαιθράπης is a more faithful transcription of the Persian title usually Graecized into σατράπης: Maussollos did not use the title of 'king,' although Strabo (xiv. 656) and Cicero (Tusc. iii. 31. 75) give it to him. The τρεῖς φυλαί are explained by Waddington as the three oldest and original Tribes of Mylasa: they formed a sort of comitia curiata, with the formal right of approving the acts of the ἐκκλησία. One of the tribes was called the Otorkondeis. Among the πρόγονοι of Maussollos (A, line 8) was Πιξώδαρος ὁ Μαυσώλου named by Herod. v. 118. For the phrase ἐν χειρῶν νόμῳ (C, line 7) compare Herod. viii. 89: Manitas had resisted with armed force, and had died fighting on the spot (αὐτοῦ). The people of Mylasa, who formed part of the Karian satrapy, though enjoying a certain form of independence, were evidently anxious to demonstrate their loyalty to Maussollos. And naturally so, for in their city was the residence of the satraps until (about 367 B.C.) Maussollos removed it to Halikarnassos. At the same time the facts here recorded betray the existence of a violent and persistent party of opposition to his government. At Iasos a similar state of affairs existed, since we have an inscription (Hauvette-Besnault and Dubois, Bull. Corr. Hellén. v (1881), pp. 491 foll.) recording the confiscation and sale of the property [τ]ῶν ἀν[δρ]ῶν τῶν ἐπιβουλευσάντων Μαυσώλλωι καὶ τῆι Ἰασέων πόληι. Zeus Lambraundos or Labraundeus was one of the chief deities of Mylasa, and was worshipped at Labranda, a neighbouring village; he is represented, on the coins of the Karian dynasts of Mylasa, and elsewhere, holding a double axe (λάβρυς) in one hand and a spear in the other.

Maussollos the satrap of Karia has been immortalized by the tomb reared in his honour by his widow Artemisia. The Mausoleum was discovered by Mr. Newton in 1857, and the most interesting remains of its sculpture are now in the British Museum, including a statue of Maussollos (see Newton, History of Discoveries at Halikarnassos, &c.; Travels and Discoveries in the Levant; A. H. Smith, Catal. of Sculpture (1900), ii. pp. 65–135). Maussollos aimed at the subjugation of Ionia, and with that view made an attempt upon Miletos: Lucian, Dial. Infer. 24; Polyain. Strateg. vi. 8. Our decree reveals that he had purchased the favour of Erythrai by some great benefits, doubtless with the same intent. The date is probably between 357 and 355. Rhodes, Chios, and Kos revolted from Athens in the Social War: see Dem. de Rhod. lib. 191; Diod. xvi. 7. Erythrai may have been implicated in this revolt, and required the protection of Maussollos. The representation of υ by ο in diphthongs is common in Ionic inscriptions of the fourth century B. C.

In the year 351 the Thebans were obliged to seek pecuniary help from the Great King (Diod. xvi. 40). In all probability then the Greek allies had begun to fail in their contributions, so that this inscription belongs to the earlier years of the war. Byzantion was in alliance with Athens until the beginning of the Social War (B. C. 357–356), but then seceded and made an alliance with Thebes which is mentioned by Demosthenes in 340 B. C. (Phil. 3. 34). Alyzeia and Anaktorion, towns of Akarnania, are represented by πρισγεῖες, envoys, while Byzantion has σύνεδροι, representatives at the federal council. l. 11 εἴνιξαν = ἤνεγκαν. l. 14 Athanodoros' contribution must have been a private one, as Tenedos was an ally of Athens.

This decree probably belongs to a date soon after the constitution of the Arkadian league in 369 B. C. Then, as now, a large part of Europe was fed by the harvests of the Crimea and South of Russia. Hence the importance of cities like Olbia and Pantikapaion, and the kingdom of the (Kimmerian) Bosporos, over which Leukon ruled B.C. 393–353 or 348. (Grote, ch. 98; Clinton's Fasti H. ii. Append. ch. 13, on the kings of Bosporos; A. Schäfer, Dem. u. seine Zeit,[2] i. pp. 262 foll.; Brandis in Pauly-Wissowa's Real-Encyc. iii. 757 foll.) His relations with Athens we shall elsewhere notice (see no. 140). Here the Arkadians, inland people as they were, vote honours to Leukon, doubtless for favouring them with corn-supplies, and their decree (in its native Aiolic) is inscribed at Pantikapaion, whether by command of Leukon, or by Arkadian mercenaries resident there. Cp. Dem. in Leptin. 29 foll. It is unlikely that the Arkadians here mentioned can be the inhabitants of the insignificant Kretan town Arkadia.

These were decrees of three of the towns of Keos, renewing and making more stringent than ever the existing treaty which forbade the export of red-ochre from Keos except only to Athens (for the reasons for this stringency, see above, no. 118, pp. 233 f.). The fourth town Ποιήεσσα is not named, and perhaps it had no mines. Μίλτος (rubrica, ruddle) was largely used at Athens, both as a drug, and as a pigment in statuary, architecture, painting, and writing. The μίλτος of Keos was the best, according to Theophrastos, de lap. 51–53, though Strabo (xii. p. 540) says the same of that which came from Sinope, and Pliny (N. H. xxxv. 31–33) of the Lemnian. Perhaps also the monopoly in importing Keian ruddle enabled Athens to have a monopoly in exporting the various manufactured pigments of which this was an ingredient. Köhler's date, determined by the characters, may be trusted.

Hermias, the eunuch-slave who succeeded to the petty sovereignty of Atarneus and maintained his independence of the Persian dominion, owes his fame to the friendship of Aristotle, whose unique ode to Virtue was composed in memory of Hermias his benefactor. The facts of his life will be found in any Dictionary: the fullest account is given by Böckh on this inscription (Kleine Schriften, vi. 185). His league with the Erythraians belongs to the period of confusion just after the final crushing of the revolts of the satraps. In 345–344 he was treacherously captured and put to death by Mentor of Rhodes, who was appointed by the Great King to restore order in the western satrapies. The ἑταῖροι are 'comrades' of Hermias who commanded garrisons in towns belonging to his sway. The prospect of war explains the provision περὶ τοῦ ἐκτίθεσθαι (goods deposited in the territory of Hermias for safety's sake are not to be subject to import duty); cp. the Hierapytna and Priansos treaty, no. 172 (ed. 1). The phrase τὰ ἐκ τούτων γενόμενα, which answers to that in the Kretan treaty τούτων οἱ καρποί, must refer to the offspring of slaves or cattle so bestowed away. It appears that Erythrai was also independent of Persia: under Alexander and his successors it was equally favoured: see no. 164 (ed. 1), Letter of Antiochos Soter. L. 34: the shrine of Atarneus, the mythical king of Mysia.

The restorations, entirely due to the brilliant conjectures of Wilhelm, may be regarded as practically certain. Olynthos was captured by Philip in the autumn of B. C. 348. In the preceding year (that of the archon Kallimachos, 349–8) the Olynthians had become allies of Athens (Philochoros, Fr. 132, quoted by Dionysius Hal. ad Ammaeum, i. 9. 1); to this refers the phrase in lines 3, 4. The question on which a vote was to be taken by διαχειροτονία was evidently decided in the affirmative; for Theophrastos (quoted by Harpokration, s. v. ἰσοτελής) refers to the granting of ἀτέλεια (evidently τοῦ μετοικίου) to Olynthos by the Athenians: ἐνιαχοῦ καὶ πόλεσιν ὅλαις ἐψηφίζοντο τὴν ἀτέλειαν οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι, ὥσπερ Ὀλυνθίοις τε καὶ Θηβαίοις. Wilhelm makes the very probable suggestion that the proposer of this motion was Demosthenes himself.

It is remarked by Schäfer (loc. cit.), how neglectful the Athenians were—in spite of the warnings of Demosthenes—in maintaining their ascendancy in the Aegaean and the islands. The coast of Asia Minor was of course in the hands of satraps or of native princes dependent on the Persians. Hidrieus, brother and successor of Maussollos in Karia, had seized Chios, Kos, and Rhodes (Dem. v. de Pace, 25). In 353 there was an oligarchic party in power in Lesbos inimical to Athens (Dem. xv. Rhod. 19; cp. xiii. Synt. 8). Kammes of Mytilene (see Judeich, Kleinas. Stud. p. 295) is expressly called 'enemy of Athens' (Dem. xl. adv. Boeot. 37; a speech spoken in the very year of our inscription, B. C. 347–346, ἐπὶ Θεμιστοκλέους ἄρχοντος): Κάμμῃ τῷ τυραννοῦντι Μυτιλήνης . . ὃς καὶ ὑμῖν κοινῇ καὶ ἐμοὶ ἰδίᾳ ἐχθρός ἐστιν. It seems that Phaidros later in the year had expelled Kammes, upon which the restored democracy renew their friendship with Athens. Envoys came from Mytilene, supported by a letter from Phaidros, and by the testimony of the 'Treasurer of the Paralos.' This last was an office of some distinction (Dem. xxi. in Mid. 172, 173), for, as the two state ships Salaminia and Paralos (like our Royal Yachts) were fitted out, not by the λειτουργία of individuals, but at the state expense, the ταμίας had the management of the sums voted for the purpose. The mover of this decree is Stephanos, the husband of Neaira, already known to us from no. 109.

Already, on no. 136, we have noticed the importance to the Greeks of the corn-supplies of the Crimea, and have referred to the accounts of the Kingdom of Bosporos in Clinton, F. H. ii. app. ch. 13; Grote, ch. 98; Pauly-Wissowa, Real-Encyclopädie, iii. pp. 757 foll. The Kingdom, called by the Greeks Bosporos, had its capital at Pantikapaion (Kertch), and it extended on the west to Theodosia, which remained independent until it was annexed by Leukon I (Dem. xx. in Lept. 33), his father Satyros I having died while besieging it. (Harpokr. s. v. Θεοδοσία.) Nymphaion, once a tributary ally of Athens, situated between Bosporos and Theodosia, passed into the Bosporan dominion before the end of the Peloponnesian War, Gylon, the maternal grandfather of Demosthenes, being at the time a leading resident engaged in the corn trade, and apparently responsible for the loss of the city (Aischin. in Ctes. 171). On the east of the strait the extent of the dominion of the Bosporan kings at this time is somewhat uncertain; but their 'sphere of influence' must have been very wide. Satyros, who succeeded his father Spartokos, reigned B. C. 433–393. He was on very friendly terms with Athens (line 23; see Isokrates, Trapezit. 57); and this friendship was carried still further by his son Leukon, apparently the greatest ruler of the dynasty, B. C. 393–353, or, more probably 348 (cp. Strabo, pp. 309, 310). His favours, and also the honours he received at Athens, are mentioned by Dem. xx. in Lept. 29 foll. The speech against Leptines was spoken B. C. 355. Our decree is dated in April 346, in the archonship of Themistokles, and repeatedly mentions the previous honours voted to Leukon. The mover isAndrotion, against whom Demosthenes wrote a speech in B. C. 354. The 'sons of Leukon' are Spartokos, Pairisades, Apollonios; the last being omitted by Androtion, and only included in the amendment (§ 2). Spartokos and Pairisades succeeded their father, reigning jointly, as this inscription proves. Diodoros, xvi. 52, says that Spartokos died after five years of sole reign (in 348), and was succeeded by his brother: this is refuted by our inscription, although we may concede that his reign was short, and that Pairisades soon became sole king. Diodoros' mistake probably arose from his not knowing that the two brothers reigned together, and he has probably taken Spartokos' five years from Leukon's reign, which therefore we may assume extended to 348. This explanation has the advantage of bringing the date of the embassy recorded in this decree nearer to the date of Leukon's death.

The gold crown is to be given to the kings every fourth year; 'the year before the great Panathenaia' (line 27) in the first instance coincides with the very year of the decree. Crowns received from the people in this manner had to be dedicated to the goddess Athena, into whose treasury they were thus absorbed. The ἀποδέκται (l. 43) are to advance the requisite money out of the military fund pro tem., the sum being considerable, 2,000 dr., and more than the ταμίας τοῦ δήμου had in hand. Note the distinction of tense in διδόναι (the general rule) and παραδοῦναι (the present instance). The name of one of the envoys (l. 50) is connected with the city Theodosia. It appears that the envoys of Spartokos and Pairisades had come to request payment of a sum the Athenians owed them, perhaps for corn (ll. 53 foll.), and to enlist at Athens sailors to man the king's ships (ὑπηρεσίαι). The phrase εἶναι ἐν τῷ τεταγμένῳ is explained on p. 244. The third brother, Apol-

Ionios (ll. 66 foll.), is not otherwise known: it is clear that he was not associated in the government. The mover of the rider is mentioned in Dem. xlii. in Phaen. 11 and xxi. in Mid. 139 with his father Timokrates, who himself was the object of Demosthenes' twenty-fourth oration.

The Phokians, after their surrender in B. C. 346, were condemned to restore the plundered treasures of the Delphic shrine in biennial instalments of 30 talents of silver. They owed more than 10,000 talents (Diod. xvi. 56. 6). The money was paid over before witnesses on either side and received by a banker (τραπεζίτης). Accounts found at Delphoi itself show that some abatement of the fine was made after a few years, and the instalments probably made annual. Thus in the archonship of Damochares (probably B. C. 339–338, at the earliest), ἐνδεκάτην καταφ[ο]ρὰν οἱ Φωκ[εῖς ἀπήνεγκαν] | τάλαντα δέκα (Bull. Corr. Hellén. xxi. p. 337).

There is a similar decree (Dittenberger, Inscr. Gr. Sept. i. 4250; *Sylloge*², 124; Michel, Recueil, 202) in honour of Amyntas, son of Antiochos, who after the death of Philip II fled to the Persian king, and was killed in Egypt soon after the battle of Issos. The son of Perdikkas III is called king of the Makedonians in an inscription from Lebadeia, and Dittenberger suggests that the word βασιλέα once stood where Μακεδόνα now stands over an erasure. This Amyntas was put to death by Alexander in B. C. 335, a fact which gives significance to his association with the son of Antiochos. For the form εἶν cp. no. 95, l. 3.

Kleom(m)is is mentioned as a ruler in Methymna about 346 or 345 B. C. in Isokrates, Epist. vii. 8, and is perhaps the same as the 'Kleomenes' of whom Athenaios (x. pp. 442 foll.) records, on the authority of Theopompos, that he took drastic measures against the vicious customs of his subjects. Isokrates (or the writer of the letter) also praises highly the government of Kleomis; his prudence, as we see from this inscription, led him to cultivate the friendship of Athens, some of whose citizens he had evidently ransomed from brigands.

(Underneath the three crowns is a fragment of relief, representing a four-horsed chariot, with a winged Victory alighting upon it.)

Alketas king of the Molossoi, who joined the new Athenian alliance in 377 B.C. (see no. 101), left two sons, Neoptolemos and Arybbas (see Pausan. i. 11. 1; Plut. Pyrrh. 1; Droysen, Hellenismus, table iii). The mention of Neoptolemos' name in no. 101 together with his father's would show that he was the elder son, and associated already in the kingdom by his father. On the death of Alketas however the succession was disputed, and we find Arybbas and Neoptolemos dividing the kingdom between them, Arybbas being married to his brother's daughter Troas. Neoptolemos died early (certainly before 357 B.C.) leaving a son and daughter, Alexandros and Olympias; these were brought up in the house of their uncle Arybbas, who now reigned alone. Anxious to extend his influence, Arybbas secured Philip of Makedon for his niece's hand, and so gave Philip an opportunity of aggression which he was not slow to use (Justin. vii. 6). First of all he insisted on taking the child Alexandros under his own charge (Justin. viii. 6), an interference referred to by Demosthenes (Ol. i. 13, and Schol.)—and as soon as the youth was twenty years of age Arybbas was expelled and Alexandros made king as Philip's puppet. This happened probably in 343 or 342 B. C. Arybbas fled with his two sons, Alketas and Aiakides, the latter being afterwards the father of the famous king Pyrrhos. Our inscription shows that Arybbas was welcomed at Athens, on the strength of the friendship of Athens with his father Alketas (no. 101) and grandfather Tharypas, who had been educated at Athens. Arybbas was probably never restored, but lived for a long time in exile. The exiled king takes the opportunity of recording at the foot of the slab his victories at the games. On the provision about the πρυτάνεις in ll. 14 foll. see no. 40, p. 66.

An Andromacha ἐξ Ἀπείρου and her husband Arybbas are mentioned in an inscription from Epidauros; the names show that we have to do with a member of the Molossian princely house, but the relationship to our Arybbas is obscure. (Wilhelm, Oesterr. Jahresh. iii. p. 41; Dittenberger, Sylloge[2], 803, ll. 60 foll.)

It was essential to her safety for Athens to retain her hold upon the Hellespont, and so secure her corn-supply from the Euxine. The Chersonese had been an ancient possession of Athens from the days of Miltiades; and in 353 B. C., after the capture of Sestos by Chares, and again under Diopeithes in 343 B. C., fresh kleruchs were sent out (Grote, ch. 87 and 90; Schäfer, Dem. und seine Zeit[2], i. 445; ii. 451). These are the Ἀθηναῖοι ἐν Χερρονήσῳ of our decree. We are told in the Argument of Dem. de Cherson. that all the towns in Chersonese (except Kardia, which was in the hands of Philip) received the settlers with good grace—glad perhaps of any help against Makedon. As however Diopeithes was not supported with money from Athens, and had to pay and feed his troops as he could, there might naturally be complaints made to Athens against him and his kleruchs. This decree enjoins that Chares shall take care that the interests of Elaius shall be respected in the same way as had been provided for the other towns of the Chersonese. Chares was afterwards replaced by Phokion in the relief of Byzantion (Grote, ch. 90; Schäfer, ibid. ii. p. 512). It appears from the fact that the envoys of Elaius are invited ἐπὶ δεῖπνον and not ἐπὶ ξένια that they had received the Athenian citizenship. On the circumstances connected with this decree see the speeches of Demosthenes, de Cherson., and Philippic iii.

The archonship of Theophrastos, B. C. 340–339, is memorable as the year in which Athens finally declared war with Philip, and, by following up with arms the successful diplomacy of Demosthenes, saved Byzantion and the Chersonese. In this decree, mutilated as it is, we find the people of Tenedos, and Aratos their general (?), and also their deputy at the confederate synod (σύνεδρος), are crowned and praised for help given (βοήθεια) and money lent. Tenedos is to be exempt from tribute (σύνταξις) for the whole of next year, and her loan is to be repaid. Köhler is probably right in referring these services of the Tenedians to the defence of Byzantion. The monument of Athena Nike was dedicated (presumably in the temple of that goddess, to the plans for which no. 37 relates) in commemoration of the various campaigns of Demosthenes in 426–425 B.C. (Thuk. iii. 105–112); of the victory in the summer of 425 B.C. of the democratic party in Korkyra over the oligarchs who had taken up a position in the mountains, a victory which was due to Athenian aid (Thuk. iv. 46); and of the capture later in the same year of Anaktorion by Athenians and Akarnanians from Naupaktos (Thuk. iv. 49). Some time after the middle of the fourth century the figure of Athena Nike required repairs, to carry out which a special commission was appointed; and for these changes a propitiatory sacrifice (ἀρεστήριον) was necessary.

The restoration of these fragments is due to Kirchhoff, who got his clue from the following dedication upon a statue-base found on the Akropolis: [Κ]εκροπίδος οἱ στρατε[υσ]άμενοι ἐπὶ Λυσιμαχίδου ἄρχοντος | [κ]αὶ ὁ ταξίαρχος Βούλαρ[χος] Ἀριστοβούλου Φλυεὺς Ἀθηναῖ (see Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 1214). Bularchos had fought in those earlier engagements which preceded the decisive battle: Dem. de Cor. 216 δίς τε συμπαραταξάμενοι τὰς πρώτας, τήν τ' ἐπὶ τοῦ ποταμοῦ (Kephissos) καὶ τὴν χειμερινήν (the one in the winter) κ.τ.λ. (χειμερινή can hardly mean 'in the storm' as Hogarth suggests, Philip and Alexander, p. 126). This was about Feb. 338 B. C.; see Schäfer, Dem. u. seine Zeit[2], ii. &c.[2], p. 556.

The fidelity of the Akarnanians to Athens has been described on no. 105: Livy (xxxiii. 16), speaks of the 'fides insita genti.' There is little doubt that the occasion referred to in the words βοηθήσαντες μετὰ δυνάμεως συνκατετάττοντο μετὰ Ἀθηναίων was the battle of Chaironeia, which was fought in August 338 B. C. The heading of our decree is partly restored from that of C. I. A. ii. 122: it is dated May 337. The exact date is restored by Haussoullier (Rev. Crit. 1899, p. 406)—his date being more probable than that of Reusch, which is δευτέραι φθίν. ἕ|κτηι. Diodoros, xviii. 3, speaks of τοὺς ἐξ Ἀκαρνανίας φυγάδας . . . διὰ Φιλίππου πεῖραν εἰληφότας τῆς φυγῆς—Philip immediately after Chaironeia having subdued Akarnania and banished the partisans of Athens. Among these were the brothers Karphinas and Phormion, whose grandfather Phormion had received the Athenian citizenship. When we remember the strong affection of the Akarnanians for the Athenian general Phormion in the Peloponnesian War (Thuk. iii. 7), we conclude with confidence that the great-grandfather of the brothers had become the guest-friend of the famous general, and had named his son after him.

Although the states concerned are insignificant, this is a good and early instance of the employment by the Greeks in the case of territorial disputes of external arbitration by an ἔκκλητος πόλις (cp. ed. 1, nos. 149, l. 28; 15, l. 12, &c.). The Argives were charged by the κοινὸν συνέδριον of the Greeks (by which is meant the council instituted in 338 B.C. and not the Amphiktyonic council) with an arbitration between the two islands, and decided in favour of Kimolos. The places in dispute are small islands near Kimolos. The βωλὰ σευτέρα is the council of the second half of the year. Such a division of the year into two official halves is found at Rhodes and at Tarsos as well as Argos. The Argive officials are a president (?) (ἀρήτευε = ἀϝρήτευε, see Fränkel in Sitzungsber. d. k. preuss. Akad. 1898, no. xli. p. 3), secretary (γροφεύς), and assessor (πεδιών = μετεών). More detailed accounts of arbitrations may be found, e.g., in Michel's Recueil, nos. 20, 28 and 31.

See also Scholiast on Aristoph. Plut. 277; Schömann, Opusc. i. 203 foll.; Attische Process, 127; K. F. Hermann, Gr. Staatsalterth. 1[5]. § 134, 11; G. Gilbert, Greek Const. Antiquities, p. 397 (Eng. trans.). Every year the nine archons, assisted by a secretary, selected by lot (from among all citizens who applied) 600 from each tribe, who were thereupon drafted into ten divisions of 500 each, the odd 1,000 standing in reserve to fill up vacancies. Each received a tablet (πινάκιον) engraved with his name, with the number of his division (expressed by the letters A to K, so that the πινάκια were often called γράμματα), and with the owl or gorgoneion which served, so to speak, as the seal of the Athenian republic. This πινάκιον is not to be confused with the σύμβολον or voucher which the dikast received upon being impanelled to try a case, and which qualified him to receive his τριώβολον. Nor have the letters anything to do with the letters by which the various courts were marked. Dikasts of different divisions might be impanelled together to try the same case; and the number of dikasts impanelled varied greatly according to the nature of the case, only the number was generally an odd one. Of the three πινάκια printed above, the first two belonged to the third division, the last to the fifth. They were found in tombs; and the fact that Aristotle (Ἀθ. Πολ. 63) describes the πινάκια as being made of box-wood has suggested that it was usual to bury a bronze reproduction of a dikast's πινάκιον with him. This would lend a grim force to the jest in Arist. Plut. 277: Ἐν τῇ σορῷ γυνὶ λαχὸν τὸ γράμμα σου δικάζειν, | σὺ δ' οὐ βαδίζεις; ὁ δὲ Χάρων τὸ ξύμβολον δίδωσιν. At the same time it must be admitted that the bronze tablets have every appearance of being the originals; the sectional letters, for instance, being in most cases stamped on the tablet before the name of the owner was engraved in a different hand. So that it would appear that these bronze tablets (which moreover are very uniform in shape) were delivered to the heliast by the state.

152 [120].

Peace of Demades; Alkimachos the Makedonian honoured at Athens: B. C. 337–336.

Fragment found on the Akropolis: it was surmounted by a relief, which still reveals the figure of Athena seated on the left. Στοιχηδόν. The text is from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 123.

The date is early in 336; ἕκτης alone will fit the lacuna. The names of Chairestratos' father and deme are restored from other decrees of this date (cp. no. 153, and C. I. A. ii. 124 foll.). It is probable that this stelè (the international importance of which is indicated by the nature of the relief) contained the grant of citizenship or of proxenia to Alkimachos and Antipatros, Philip's generals, which was probably carried by Demades: see Harpokr. s.v. 'Αλκίμαχος: 'Αλκίμαχος Μακεδών, οὗ μνημονεύει Ὑπερείδης ἐν τῷ κατὰ Δημάδου (fr. 77 Blass) οὕτως· 'Αλκίμαχον καὶ 'Αντίπατρον 'Αθηναίους καὶ προξένους ἐποιησάμεθα.

With sufficient certainty the name of Demades, the famous orator, is restored as the mover of the resolution, which grants προξενία to a Makedonian who had assisted Demades in negotiating the peace with Philip.

In 336 B.C. Alexander renewed at Korinth (with the assent of all but the Spartans) the compact by which his father, two years earlier, had been recognized as champion of the Greeks against Persia. At the same time a general Hellenic peace was sworn to, in the terms preserved in our inscription. It is alluded to in the speech περὶ τῶν πρὸς Ἀλέξανδρον συνθηκῶν attributed to Demosthenes (xvii. 10: ἔστι γὰρ γεγραμμένον, ἐάν τινες τὰς πολιτείας τὰς παρ' ἑκάστοις οὔσας, ὅτε τοὺς ὅρκους τοὺς περὶ τῆς εἰρήνης ὤμνυσαν, καταλύωσι, πολεμίους εἶναι πᾶσι τοῖς τῆς εἰρήνης μετέχουσιν, cp. lines 11 foll.). Cp. Niese, Gesch. d. griech. u. maked. Staaten, i. p. 53.

To the same stone belongs the following fragmentary list

(no. 133 in ed. 1; Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 184; Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², 159):

It was formerly supposed to be a list of the allies in the Lamian War (323–322 B.C.) with the number of votes allowed to each in the council. The discovery of the connexion of the list with the Hellenic peace of 336 is due to Wilhelm (Dittenberger, *Sylloge*², vol. ii. p. 812).

This edict was issued by Alexander after the reduction of the Greek cities on the coast, and relates to the apportionment of lands and the adjustment of tribute. The word σύνταξις (contribution according to treaty) is to be contrasted with φόρος, which would be paid by actual subjects of the king. Priene was among the cities which submitted without a blow, and therefore might expect some favours (cp. no. 156). Naulochon is named by Pliny, N. H. v. 29; it was a small port at the mouth of the Maiandros (Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Arch. pt. 5, no. 186). It would appear that Prienians resident in Naulochon are to receive privileges denied to the foreigners in the same place. The villages in the neighbourhood are decreed to stand on βασιλικὴ χώρα. This was the beginning of one of the royal domains, on the history of which under the Seleukids cp. (e.g.) Haussoullier, Rev. de Philol. 1901, pp. 27 foll.

Βασιλεὺς Ἀλέξανδρος
ἀνέθηκε τὸν ναὸν
Ἀθηναίηι Πολιάδι.

After the victory of Granikos, on his march southwards, Alexander seems to have spent some little time at Ephesos, where he found the Artemision (burned down on the night he was born) had nearly finished rebuilding. Strabo repeats a story (xiv. pp. 640, 641) that Ἀλέξανδρον δὴ τοῖς Ἐφεσίοις ὑποσχέσθαι τὰ γεγονότα καὶ τὰ μέλλοντα ἀναλώματα, ἐφ' ᾧ τε τὴν ἐπιγραφὴν αὐτὸν ἔχειν τοὺς δὲ μὴ ἐθελῆσαι . . . . ἐπαινεῖ τε (Artemidoros) τὸν εἰπόντα τῶν Ἐφεσίων πρὸς τὸν βασιλέα, ὡς οὐ πρέποι θεῷ θεοῖς ἀναθήματα κατασκευάζειν. We may suppose that Alexander visited Priene also, and found the Prienians less scrupulous or less wealthy (cp. Droysen, Hell. i. 1. 202). The temple was built by Pythios, the architect of the Mausoleum at Halikarnassos.

On the general political movements of this period—the growth of oligarchies and tyrannies in the Aegaean under the Persian influence, the factions fomented by Philip, the motive and the results of Alexander's edict recalling the exiles—the reader is referred to the notes on nos. 139, 158, 159, and 164. As to Eresos, it joined the new Athenian Confederacy in 378 B.C. (no. 101), and no doubt remained democratic until the Social War in B.C. 357. Then followed a time during which, under Persian influence, Eresos was in the hands of 'tyrants.' We gather from lines 37, 38, and 138 that three of these earlier tyrants were brothers named Hermon, Heraios, and Apollodoros, who perhaps succeeded each other in power: for Ἀπολλοδωρείων = υἱῶν τῶν Ἀπολλοδώρου, and lines 37 foll. are equivalent to Ἡρωΐδα τοῦ Τερτικῶνος τοῦ Ἡραίου καὶ Ἀγησιμένους τοῦ Ἑρμησίλα (Ἀπολλοδώρειος, Τερτικώνειος, Ἡράειος being Aiolic patronymics). That Apollodoros was tyrant last of the three explains the circumstance that his children are classed with grandchildren of the other two (lines 137–139): indeed they may have been too young in 324 B.C. to join personally in the application referred to in § 3, where they are not named; although they were virtually included in that application (line 138). It does not appear in what way this dynasty came to an end; probably by a revolution, in which perhaps Theophrastos the philosopher had a hand (see Plut. adv. Coloten 33, p. 1126: Θεοφράστῳ δὶς ἐλευθερῶσαι τυραννουμένην, sc. τὴν πατρίδα; also Non posse suav. vivi sec. Ep. 15, p. 1097: Θεοφράστου καὶ Φανίου τοὺς τῆς πατρίδος ἐκκοψάντων τυράννους). If however the democracy was for a time restored, another tyrant soon appeared in Eurysilaos (lines 63, 131, 134), a man of a different family. Following Droysen's reconstruction of the history, we find that Eurysilaos must have been expelled and the democracy restored by the time of the battle of Granikos, 334 B.C. In the 'Demosthenic' oration, De foed. Alex. 7 (spoken about B.C. 333), Alexander is taunted with his inconsistency in maintaining tyrants in Messenia, and expelling them from Eresos.

The liberation by Alexander in 334 B.C. was shortlived; for in 333 the Persian admiral Memnon (Arrian, ii. 1, 1) sailed against Lesbos to detach the towns from Alexander. The iniquities of Agonippos form the subject of § 2. He was of course violently anti-Makedonian, and destroys an altar of Zeus Philippios, erected in honour of Alexander's father[1]. After a short but cruel reign, he flies to Alexander with a lying version of his late proceedings. How he was received we are not told; but the Eresians formally declare him an outlaw (lines 1–32). The λαῖσται or λῃσταί are the mercenary troops left behind by Memnon.

The date of § 3 is just after the recall of the exiles in B.C. 324. Heroidas and Agesimenes, grandsons of the former tyrants, Heraios and Hermon, had appealed to Alexander to be allowed the benefit of this edict. Many such applicants flocked to Alexander at Babylon (cp. Diod. xvii. 113). The Eresians, by permission of Alexander, refused them return—though the decree is here broken off.

§ 4 belongs to the same date as § 3. It records a trial of

[1] Cp. Dem. xix. de fals. leg. 192: ἐπειδὴ γὰρ εἶλεν Ὄλυνθον Φίλιππος, Ὀλύμπι' ἐποίει, εἰς δὲ τὴν θυσίαν ταύτην καὶ τὴν πανήγυριν πάντας τοὺς τεχνίτας συνήγαγεν. We are reminded of Hadrian and the Olympieion and of the Olympia which were everywhere established in honour of this new Zeus.

Eurysilaos. He too had claimed restoration under the edict of recall. But Alexander had dealt with him as with other tyrants in a similar case: τοὺς τυράννους μὲν τοὺς ἐκ τῶν πόλεων ἐς τὰς πόλεις πέμπει, χρήσασθαι ὅπως ἐθέλοιεν (Arrian, iii. 2. 7), and the Eresians, deciding this time not only by their native laws (line 28) but κα|τὰ τὰν διαγράφαν τῶ | βασίλεος Ἀλεξάνδρω | καὶ τοῖς νόμοις (lines 57 foll.), reaffirm their condemnation of Eurysilaos.

§ 5 informs us that some of the exiles already named, after failing to obtain restoration under Alexander, applied in vain to his successor Philip Arrhidaios (B. C. 323–317) to reverse the previous decisions given above.

§ 6. The sons of Agonippos (who is now dead) being banished from Eresos, had applied to King Antigonos Monophthalmos (B. C. 306–301), who had written a letter in their favour to the Eresians (lines 114 foll.). The Eresians had replied with a decree (line 116), which they had forwarded to Antigonos (lines 109 foll.). To their decree the king replies in this letter, in which no doubt he gives his consent to the perpetual banishment of the sons of Agonippos.

§ 7 is a final decree of the Eresian people, based on a προβούλευμα (line 123), reciting and reaffirming their previous decisions and enactments against 'the tyrants'; both those members of their families who had once lived in the city (οἰκηθέντων, lines 149, 156), and their children who had always lived in exile. It should be remembered that restoration from exile meant not only recovery of political status, and return to native soil, but also the recovery of lands and property confiscated.

Chios in 351–350 B. C. was under an oligarchy (Dem. xv. de Rhod. lib. 19). In the spring of B. C. 333 the Persian admiral Memnon, with the help of the oligarchical party, occupied Chios, in which in the previous year the oligarchy, owing to the failure of Persian power, had been replaced by a democracy. Memnon first, and then his nephew Pharnabazos defended the city, which was finally handed over to the Makedonian besiegers by the popular party (spring of B. C. 332 ?). The leaders of the oligarchical party were banished to Egypt, to the island of Elephantine (Arrian, iii. 2. 3–7 ; Q. Curtius, iii. 1. 3). This rescript was probably written before the recovery of the city. Köhler even holds that it was in the first instance addressed not to the Chians but to the Makedonian admiral Hegelochos; the address as at present, and also the Ionic colouring, were added by the Chians in transferring the document to stone. It was part of Alexander's policy to restore democracies (Arrian, i. 18. 2). The peace mentioned in line 12 is the peace of Korinth. The oligarchs who failed to make good their escape were to be tried as Medizers before the general council of the Greeks which met at the Isthmos. The garrison here mentioned was the subject of a complaint made by the Chians to Alexander in 331 B. C., and was probably then removed (Q. Curtius, iv. 8. 12).

Line 5: 'that the erection of the statue was a protest against themselves.' Line 10: the ἐξεταστὰι are the chief financial officers of the state (Gäbler, Erythrä, p. 120). Line 11: διαστολήν, 'specification'; cp. Polyb. xvi. 14; xxi. 6.

Line 12: ἀρχιτέκτων, 'the contractor.' Line 15: the statue was of bronze. Patina was not appreciated until a later date.

§ 2. Additional resolution, moved by the same person, that the monthly treasures of the state-funds shall supply the commissioners of the market with money for the decoration of the statue:

In lines 24–25 καθ' ἔτος = 'for this year,' not 'annually.' The decline of Athenian influence in the Aegaean, and the consequent extension of Persian dominion, favoured the growth of oligarchies and tyrannies in the islands (see nos. 139, 157, 164). It is well known (see p. 312), that Philip impartially assisted any faction which promised to further Makedonian interests: and herein Alexander followed his example. The consequence was a perpetual series of revolutions throughout the cities of the Aegaean which supplied Aristotle with abundance of material for his political speculations, and explains at once the importance and the wisdom of Alexander's recall of the exiles in 334 B.C. (cp. nos. 157, 158).

ωσιν ἐν τῶι δήμω]ι προ[εδρεύειν κ.τ.λ.

The date is June 330 B. C., Alexander having defeated Dareios at Arbela in October 331. Meanwhile the effect of his absence was seen in various movements in the direction of Greek liberty. (Aischin. in Ctes. 164 foll. describes the hopes of the anti-Makedonian party at that time.) The chief rising was under Agis in the Peloponnese in the spring of 330 B. C., which was promptly crushed by Antipatros in one decisive battle in Arkadia. Antipatros was however hampered in reaching Peloponnese by the critical state of N. Greece. In Thrace Memnon the Makedonian commander had revolted, and Zopyrion had rashly invaded Skythia and met with disaster (Niese, Gesch. d. gr. u. mak. Staaten, i. p. 171). Our inscription shows that the Odrysai shared in the movement, and were acting in concert with the rising in Greece proper. Seuthes sends his son Rhebulas to Athens, and perhaps to other Greek states. Although welcomed at Athens, as this inscription proves, he was not able to effect anything. The Athenians took no part in the revolt, and Demosthenes himself, while warmly sympathizing with the movement, did not counsel more decided action (Diod. xvii. 62, 63; Droysen, Hellen. i. 1. 392; Q. Curtius, x. 1. 43, seems to refer to these events, but he is out in his chronology. See Schäfer, Dem. u. seine Zeit[2], iii. 200).

The financial administrations of Lykurgos began in midsummer 338 B. C., and lasted for three πεντετηρίδες, i. e. twelve years, until midsummer 326. His public services are recounted by Plutarch, Vit. X. Oratt. vii., cp. no. 145 (ed. 1). Of his public works the chief were the repair of the great Theatre, and the building of the Panathenaic Stadion. In line 17, however, the 'Panathenaic Theatre' is not the great Theatre, but the theatre-like seating of the stadion (see Dörpfeld-Reisch, Das griech. Theater, pp. 31, 282). ζεῦγος is a cart and pair, for the hauling of marble and the carting away of earth (cp. no. 90). εἰς τὸν πόλεμον, l. 13 fol., may surprise us: for what war were the Athenians likely to engage in? It was well known to Alexander however that Athens was only submissive to him under compulsion, and no. 160 significantly shows the feelings of the time. Two great works of Lykurgos himself were the rebuilding of the Athenian fortifications and the erection of an arsenal (σκευοθήκη). Line 29 foll.: his burthens, if he resided at Athens, were to be those of a citizen and not those of a metoikos. The exact date of the decree presents some difficulty. In lines 5–6 ἑ[νδεκάτ]ηι fills the gap exactly; but from another inscription (C.I.A. ii. 177) it is clear that the fourteenth day of Thargelion was the thirty-second of the ninth prytany; hence the eleventh day of the same month should be the twenty-ninth day of the prytany, and not the nineteenth, as in lines 6–7 here. We assume therefore an error of δεκάτηι for εἰκοστῆι, suggested by the presence of ἐνδεκάτηι in the previous line.

Dedication at Olympia by one of Alexander's quartermasters: B. C. 330–320.

A statue-base excavated at Olympia: Dittenberger, Archäol. Zeitung, 1879, p. 139; cp. Olympia, v. p. 403, no. 276; *Sylloge*², 156; Michel, Recueil, 1088; Frazer, Pausanias, iv. pp. 48, 49. A fragment of a similar base is edited Archäol. Zeitung, 1879, p. 209.

ἡμεροδρόμας καὶ
βηματιστὴς τῆς Ἀσίας
Φιλωνίδης Ζωΐτου Κρὴς
Χερσονάσιος ἀνέθηκε
Διὶ Ὀλυμπίοι (sic).

This statue is mentioned by Pausanias, vi. 16. 4: ἕστηκεν . . . . καὶ Φιλωνίδης Ζώτου, γένος μὲν ἐκ Χερρονήσου τῆς Κρητῶν, Ἀλεξάνδρου δὲ ἡμεροδρόμος τοῦ Φιλίππου. We transcribe the remarks of Droysen, Hellenismus, i. 2, p. 383, where, speaking of the materials anciently available for the history of Alexander, he says: 'We may say much the same (as of the log-book of Nearchos and the Ἐφημερίδες βασίλειοι) of what is told us concerning Alexander's βηματισταί (steppers). There could not fail to be a full staff of quartermasters in Alexander's army, who had among other duties to arrange each day's march, to direct the route of the several columns, to mark out the place of encampment, &c. The memoranda drawn up by these officers in the execution of their duties yielded exact information concerning the distances and routes traversed, which was of the highest importance to the geographical studies of the following time. We hear of Βαίτων ὁ Ἀλεξάνδρου βηματιστὴς ἐν τῷ ἐπιγραφομένῳ Σταθμοὶ τῆς Ἀλεξάνδρου πορείας (Athen.

x. 442), or again, of "Diognetus et Baeton itinerum eius mensores" (Plin. N. H. vi. 21. 61), or else Ἀμύντας ἐν τοῖς σταθμοῖς, from whose First Book is cited a note about Syria, and from the Third a note upon Nineveh. Archelaos also, ὁ χωρογράφος τῆς ὑπ' Ἀλεξάνδρου πατηθείσης γῆς (Diog. L. ii. § 17), may have served, though Diogenes does not say so, in Alexander's army. It is worth observing that Patrokles, governor of Babylon under Seleukos I, the explorer of the Caspian sea, asserted in his work on geography that Alexander's officers drew up a summary account (ἐπιδρομάδην) of the countries they traversed, which Alexander himself revised (ἀκριβῶσαι), and put into the most expert hands to be edited (Strabo, ii. 69).' Another of Alexander's ἡμεροδρόμοι was Antimenes of Rhodes, according to Wilcken's certain emendation of ἡμιόδιος in Pseudo-Aristot. Oeconom. ii. 34 (Hermes, 1901, p. 194).

The Greek allies of Alexander were sent home by the king at the end of 330 B.C. when the war against Persia, for which they had volunteered, was closed. This dedication to Zeus Soter on their safe return must therefore belong at latest to the next year. The Orchomenians belonged to the ἱππεῖς ξύμμαχοι, who are distinguished by Arrian from the Thessalian cavalry and Greek mercenaries. A similar dedication by Thespians is recorded in the Anthology (iv. 334):

Θεσπιαὶ εὐρύχοροι πέμψαν ποτὲ τούσδε σὺν ὅπλοις

τὸ δὲ ψάφισμα τ]οῦτο ἀναγράψαντας τοὶ[s - - - -

The letters are beautifully inscribed στοιχηδόν. The restorations, which are taken from various sources, are merely suggestions as to the probable sequence of construction and meaning. The dialect is Aiolic, but some forms are peculiar: l. 15 κατάγρεντον = καθαιρούντων, as ἀγρέθεντες l. 33 = αἱρεθέντες; ὀείγην l. 43 is οἴγειν. We may understand διαλυσίεσσι l. 28 to refer to decisions which Alexander had given in special cases of difficulty on which he had been consulted by envoys.

When Alexander sent Nikanor to Olympia, in July 324 B. C., to proclaim the restoration of all exiles throughout Greece, he was not influenced by a merely selfish policy. His father Philip had with much impartiality aided either or any faction in the Greek states which would help him in his policy of aggression; and therefore the first to benefit by Alexander's edict would be the banished enemies of Makedonian interests. Large numbers of them had enlisted in the Persian service; but now the victories of Alexander left them without home or object, and they were finding their way back to become a source of disquiet throughout Greece. The edict was therefore a wise exercise of despotic power, in the interests of peace. It was obeyed by all except the Aitolians (who feared the vengeance of the exiles of Oiniadai), and the Athenians, who, having occupied Samos with kleruchs in 365–352 B. C., were loth to lose their possessions (see no. 114). How much excitement and disturbance was caused by the return of the exiles is shown by the crowd of envoys which hastened to Alexander at Babylon ἐξ ἁπάσης σχεδὸν τῆς οἰκουμένης (Diod. xvii. 113; Arrian, vii. 19). For the troubles at Eresos see no. 157. The present fragment shows us how matters gradually settled down at Mytilene: see Droysen, Hellen. i. 2. p. 291. The βασίλης are a college, the chief magistrates of the state, and were probably under the presidency of the prytanis.

Concerning Gorgos and his brother see no. 135 (ed. 1), and cp. Athen. p. 538 b. Gorgos was in the service of Alexander as ὁπλοφύλαξ, and perhaps identical with the author of a work on mines (Strabo, p. 700). The 'little sea' is the sinus Iasius, a wild and gloomy inlet, which was probably valuable for its fishing: see Athen. p. 105 e, and Strabo, p. 658: Ἰασὸς ἐπὶ νήσῳ κεῖται προσκειμένη τῇ ἠπείρῳ· ἔχει δὲ λιμένα, καὶ τὸ πλεῖστον τοῦ βίου τοῖς ἐνθάδε ἐκ θαλάττης. In line 9, ἐγγόνοις is used, as often, for ἐκγόνοις; cp. no. 148 (ed. 1). We may doubt whether it is due to a phonological change, as Jannaris supposes (Hist. Gr. Grammar, § 59 a), and not rather a mere misuse of one word for another.
